YAKIMA MARKETS.

Local market prices remained practically the same as for some time past. Shipments are moving regularly, but prices remain firm. The potato market is a little firmer this week than last, but no change in the price has taken place. The commission men are paying a little more for the best quality potatoes this week than last, but the price of low grade stock is the same. It is expected that a large number of shipments of potatoes will be made within the next few days to the Sound and eastern points.

The hay market is a little weaker this week. Alfalfa has taken a drop in price. The dealers are only paying $11 per ton for alfalfa. Other hay prices remain unchanged.

Starting with the first of March the commission houses commenced shipping apples to eastern points, and from now on they will make shipments regularly. Shipments have been made more or less during the past few months, but to other warehouses on the Sound; shipments for market commencing the first of March.

The commission houses have a large supply of apples in storage, and when heavy shipments are called for they will be able to meet the demand.

Indications point to an increase in the price of eggs today. The price was reduced the first of last week, and since then the dealers have been paying 15 cents per dozen and retailing at 20 cents. An increase of 5 cents per dozen is looked for today.

OVERRULES MOTION.

Will Not Dismiss Famous Idaho Murder Case.

BOISE, March 18.—In the case of Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone Judge Wood at Caldwell today overruled the motion made by the defense to dismiss the case. The motion was based on the long delay in the trial. Since the cases were ready for trial two terms have passed and the defense contended the accused men are entitled to liberty on the ground that these two terms have passed since their arraignment. Attorney Richardson for the defense argued that the statutes of the United States do not act as a bar in such cases pending determination of appeal in habeas corpus proceedings. He held it only prohibited the execution of any sentence that might be imposed.

Senator Borah for the state took the ground that the statute as construed by the supreme court prohibited the state court from proceeding in any manner.

Despite several discharges of hot air the high school site still remains where the school board said it should be.

DEFENSE HAS NOT CLOSED CASE

JEROME PROLONGS EXAMINATION

Evelyn Thaw May Be Called Today Jerome Looking for an Important Witness.

NEW YORK, March 9.—By prolonging his cross examination of one of the seven alienists introduced by the defense to testify that Thaw was insane when he shot and killed White, Jerome made it impossible for the defense to close its case today. When the adjournment until tomorrow was taken there was pending only the matter of the admission of a letter written by Thaw to J. Dennison Lyon, a Pittsburg banker, which Delmas said would help fix the young man's state of mind before the tragedy, and there is likelihood that Evelyn Thaw will be called tomorrow to complete the testimony of Hummel. Jerome hinted that an important witness for the prosecution might reach the city tonight. The chances are that half a day's session tomorrow will be sufficient to conclude all the testimony that is to be offered by either side. The adjournment will be taken until Thursday morning, when Delmas will begin his summing up speech. He will have all day Thursday to himself and Jerome will reply on Friday. Judge Fitzgerald may charge the jury that evening or may hold court for a while Saturday in order to conclude the case before the week ends. With the exception of the last few minutes this afternoon the entire day was given over to expert testimony.

GIVES LAW.

Judge Lynch in Interview Tells of School Warrants.

Judge John H. Lynch was interviewed by a Herald representative relative to any suits which might be brought against the county treasurer to secure the amounts on warrants which it is stated were raised by William Cowles while clerk of the school board of district No. 2. He said:

"The theory on which the banks proceed in their suit against the Old Town school district is that the so-called raised warrants were duly signed by the directors of the district and that therefore they are not forged warrants. It will be remembered that these warrants were written by the clerk, William Cowles, leaving ample space for the amount of the warrant in both words and figures. The warrants were made payable to himself, then he took them to the directors and had them signed, after which he altered or raised the warrants by writing in other words and figures in the blank space left by him for that purpose. Now, if these warrants were what is technically known as negotiable instruments it is probable that under the negligent circumstances attendant upon their issue the district would be bound to pay their face value, for the law merchant holds that one who issues a negotiable instrument and negligently leaves blanks that may be easily filled out without detection of the fraud, the maker of such instrument, because of his negligence, would be bound to pay the full amount of the fraudulent altered instrument, if it is found in the hands of a bona fide purchaser, for value and without notice of the fraud.

"Undoubtedly there was negligence on the part of the directors of the Old Town district in permitting these warrants to be issued as they were, and if they were negotiable instruments in the full sense of the form the district would be bound to pay them, even in their altered form. "However, the supreme court of the United States in the case of Wall against Monroe county (103 U. S. page 74) has held that county warrants, although in form negotiable, are not negotiable in the sense of the law merchant, so as to shut out, in the hands of bona fide purchasers, inquiries as to their validity, or preclude defenses or set-offs which could be made to them in the hands of the original parties.

"Again, the supreme court of the state of Washington in the case of Bardsley vs. Sternberg (17 Washington, page 243) holds that the warrants issued by a city are not negotiable in the sense of excluding inquiry into the legality of their issue or of excluding defenses thereto, and a subsequent holder does not occupy the position of an innocent purchaser.

This ruling is again sustained by the supreme court of Washington in the later case of Fidelity Trust company vs. Palmer (22 Washington page 475.)

"This law is applicable to warrants of school districts as well as to county and city warrants. It is believed, therefore, that if the banks of North Yakima bring suit against the county treasurer, as threatened, that they cannot prevail, as it will be competent for the district to show by way of defense that these warrants have been fraudulently altered, and those who have purchased them must be deemed to have taken them subject to all defenses as to the legality of their issue."

OLD STAGER.

W. H. Packwood Carried Mail in the Early Days.

William Humboldt Packwood, who died at his home in this city Friday, and whose funeral took place Sunday, was one of the well known pioneers of this valley. Packwood was born at the Sinks of the Humboldt river in Nevada and was named for the famous river.

In 1877, when the present city of Ellensburg was the historical "Robbers' Roost," he came to Kittitas and has since that time made his home there. In those early days of Packwood the mail was carried in stages and on horseback from The Dalles, Oregon, via Goldendale, Port Simcoe and Yakima City to Ellensburg, and Packwood was one of the most faithful and efficient drivers of that period. Staging in those days with the now almost forgotten "thoroughbrace" and the cayuse teams, was not such a pleasant occupation, and to be a successful stage driver meant that a man was courageous and hardy. Roads were scarcely more than trails across the mountains, settlers were far apart, marauding Indians were numerous, few, if any, bridges were in existence, and storms had to be braved. Packwood was a member of the Red Men and Elks, which orders conducted the funeral.

BOUND OVER.

Spencer and Winwitt for Superior Court Under Bonds.

Chester Spencer, an Indian, was bound over for the next term of the superior court under bonds of $1000 by Justice of the Peace Taggard Monday morning. Spencer was given a hearing before Justice Taggard charged with assisting his brother, Oscar Spencer, to escape from the Toppenish jail. Louis Winwitt, Spencer's friend, was given a hearing before Justice Taggard Monday afternoon and was bound over to the superior court under $500 bonds. Winwitt turned state's evidence and confessed to the deputy sheriff of Spencer's and his work in effecting Oscar Spencer's escape.
