MUST RETURN CHILD

FATHER ORDERED TO GIVE UP BABY GIRL

Divorce Granted in Case of Mrs. Iva Walton Against David Walton.

Orders were issued by Court Commissioner Ward Tuesday that David Walton must return his baby girl, Cora Elizabeth Walton, to the mother, Mrs. Iva Walton, who secured a divorce in the superior court just previous to the issue of the order. While Walton can not be located now, he faces a serious charge if he does not immediately return the child, for he is guilty of contempt of court.

Mrs. Walton stated to the commissioner that the child was stolen from the home near Mabton by the father and that it has been taken out of the jurisdiction of the court. Officers were unable to locate Walton to serve the divorce papers on him.

ANKENY AND JONES.

Voters Want Him.

Mr. W. L. Jones has returned from Washington and will see the people of this state before the campaign closes. If there is a particle of doubt about his success at the primaries in the fall it will be dispelled when he gets to talking to the voters. They will want him.—Ellensburg Capital.

Ankeny's Explanation.

The Oregonian says Wesley L. Jones is recognized in Washington as being the ablest member of congress from the western states. Don't be surprised now to hear the Union say that this is prompted by the fact that Levi refused once to give Harvey Scott the job of editing his newspaper in Walla Walla.—Walla Walla Bulletin.

Stevenson's Occupation.

Governor Mead says "one George Stevenson, whose name has been a synonym for infamy and corruption in the history of this commonwealth from its birth, has found his occupation gone." There is no doubt that Stevenson has lost whatever influence for evil he ever possessed, but he still has "occupation" in the employ of Ankeny as the pal and co-worker of Crocker.—Tacoma News.

Knocks for the Compact.

The so-called King county compact with Ankeny is getting some hard knocks right at home, and it is not at all likely that the goods will be delivered. It is an attempt on the part of a few to head off W. L. Jones' candidacy for the senate, but it is an uphill fight, for a great majority of the voters there are against Ankeny, on his record, and the rest of the state is looking on King county with a feeling akin to pity.—Ellensburg Capital.

Line of Broken Pledges.

The idea of those virtuous politicians and tricksters, Crocker and Stevenson, claiming that some one has repudiated a pledge is in itself a marvelous example of cool effrontery. Their entire political life has been one long line of broken pledges and they have thrived on them. Their present proteges, Piles and Ankeny, have followed in their footsteps too long and have learned their lessons too thoroughly to expect serious consideration by the public of their charges that anybody ever broke a pledge given them.—Walla Walla Bulletin.

Deserting Ankeny.

The Tacoma Ledger publishes a telegram from Chicago that A. P. Statter has deserted Senator Ankeny and accepted a minor clerkship with the Taft headquarters in the hope of landing a position in one of the departments in the event of Taft's election. The Ledger correspondent goes on to say that Statter has taken this course on account of the certain defeat of Ankeny for re-election. Statter may see defeat for Ankeny, but that is not the reason he has accepted a job as typewriter for the Taft headquarters. He needs a job and may as well take it with the Taft forces as with any one. He is a fore-flasher and will accept a committee clerkship in the end if he can get nothing better.—Walla Walla Bulletin.

Jones and King County.

What has Senator Ankeny ever done for Seattle or Puget sound in comparison with the congressional services rendered by Congressman Jones during the last ten years? On the other hand, did Ankeny not achieve a notable deed of nothingness when in a state of senatorial torpor he allowed the A.-Y.-P. exposition bill, during the absence of Senator Piles, to pass off the calendar without raising his voice?

Is this the kind of unintelligent friendship the Seattle Times would return to the senate on behalf of King county? The state knows the Seattle Times and its kinky-haired colonel too well. It also knows Senator Ankeny and his methods. The material reason for the Seattle Times supporting Senator Ankeny as a "friend" of King county is too obvious.—Lincoln County Times.

No Chance for Joint Debate.

Congressman W. L. Jones has arrived at his home at North Yakima and expresses himself as confident of receiving a majority of the Republican votes for United States senator at the September primaries. He expresses the wish that the election was tomorrow, and after filling a number of engagements, will stump the state. If Senator Ankeny would travel with him, speaking from the same platforms, it would give the voters a splendid opportunity to judge of the merits of the two candidates, but the campaign managers of the senator, even if he was willing, would probably veto any such proceedings; the contract of the ability of the two men would be almost ludicrous. The Jones sentiment seems to be spreading everywhere throughout the state, and, barring a complete revulsion of the present feeling of the voters, which is not probable, he should win the contest by at least two to one.—Puyallup Republican.

MATERIAL ON ROAD

STREET CAR EXTENSION

ASSURED BY FAIR TIME

Transportation Company Receives Word that Rails and Poles Have Been Shipped.

Material for the extension of the Yakima Valley Transportation company line to the Washington state fair grounds, including the wiring material for the entire work, is now on the way to North Yakima. The steel is on the way from Pennsylvania, the steel poles for Yakima avenue are on the way from the east, the ordinary poles are coming from a western point, and the cars are just about ready for shipment from St. Louis, Mo. Ties will be secured in North Yakima.

General Manager Rankin said Tuesday evening that it looked as though all the material would be in the North Yakima yards within three weeks, and that there was no doubt of the fair grounds extension being completed in plenty of time. If the material does arrive at that time there will be over six weeks for the company to complete the line, and the work can easily be done in less than a month.

Another meeting of the board of trustees was held Tuesday to consider the financial questions of the road, and a number of the leading and largest stockholders were called into conference to see what they thought about the financing plans. The stockholders fully agreed with the board that the plan presented by Manager Rankin was the advisable one, and it was decided to appoint committees to see the various stockholders and secure consent to the changes necessary.

Owing to the absence of President Splawn from the city these committees will not be announced for several days, but immediately on his return from the sound work of seeing the several hundred stockholders will be started.

WRECK OF CLE ELUM

FROM TERRIBLE EXPLOSION Declared Under Martial Law and Fifty Deputies Are Preserving Order.

Disaster at Cle Elum. Eight killed by magazine explosion, with possible ninth victim. One seriously injured and many slightly injured.

Houses are shaken and 100 houses have shattered windows. City declared under martial law. Fifty deputy sheriffs are sworn in. Report that Governor Mead was killed untrue.

George Mead, formerly of North Yakima, was victim.

Herald Special Service.

CLE ELUM, July 16.—The powder magazine of the Northwestern Improvement company at the Cle Elum mines blew up at 3:40 this afternoon, resulting in the death of seven men and one woman. The dead are George Mead, manager Cle Elum store of the Northwestern Improvement company; Gifford McDonald, clerk Northwestern Improvement company; Andy Grill, delivery clerk of the Northwestern Improvement company; Joseph Borteno, miner; B. Bemichtes, miner; Joseph Rossi, miner; Thomas Fogliotti, miner; Mrs. Peter Moffit, wife of brickmaker. Seriously injured; George Evans, electrician, struck by flying brick and skull fractured.

The cause of the explosion is unknown. It is presumed that it was caused from rolling powder cans from a car to the powder house. The explosion was felt for miles around. In Cle Elum most of the windows in the east portion of the city were broken. Many people were jolted off their seat, while several men were thrown to the ground. The men in the powder house were blown to atoms, not a trace even of clothing having been found. The bodies of miners working in the car were found on the side hill, from 50 to 100 yards distant, burnt and mutilated beyond recognition but identified by some ornament or remnant of clothing.

All but one of the killed were single men. Mr. McDonald leaves a wife and baby. Mr. Geo. Mead a mother and sister.

The explosion ruined the ball grounds, covering it with rock and broken brick. The grand stand and benches were completely destroyed. Had a ball game been on hundred of people would have been killed by the concussion and flying rocks.

Hundreds of people have been on the grounds all the evening and gruesome finds of hands, fingers, parts of legs, feet, etc., have been made. The bodies found were burnt black, every particle of clothing gone and horribly mutilated.

It is the most horrible disaster in the history of Washington with the exception of the explosion in the Roslyn mines in May, 1892, when 40 lives were lost. The whole city is in mourning for its dead.
