KEEP ALIVE A FINE SENTIMENT

What a fine thing is sentiment. It is a leaven, a force that is playing a beautiful part in the refining and regeneration of mankind.

We do things that serve no practical purpose; that put no money into the vault; that rear no fortunes, because of the human love that is in us, and so long as we do them we know that we are on the road that leads to a higher existence.

Here's a little story that touches you in the spot where you keep your love of country locked.

President Roosevelt was passing Mount Vernon and the tomb of Washington, in the Mayflower. He noticed the ship's company take position, the marines line up, the ship's bell toll, the national colors dip, and a bugle sound taps.

And being a good American he was touched. You know the feeling. If you do not, listen to some great band playing "The Star Spangled Banner," and you will get a sensation that will make a better citizen out of you.

And the president learned that all naval vessels observe the same ceremony at this spot and that there was no regulation requiring it.

Just sentiment, you see.

And finer yet, he learned that the pilots of the Potomac, the men whose fathers many generations back, perhaps, bared their breasts to the bullets of Bunker Hill, had kept alive that bit of devotion to the memory of the man who was "first in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen" for more than a century.

It is in the naval regulations now, and that is good, for the sentiment, builded on the glories of the past, cannot help but improve citizenship, increase loyalty, and make men stronger to battle with the problems of the future.

EDWARD'S COMPLIMENT TO AMERICA

King Edward VII is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, living diplomat.

An instance—

At the dinner given by Ambassador Reid to Congressman and Mrs. Longworth, Britain's king was present and by special request "Alice" was seated at his left.

The compliment, it is to be explained, is a rare one. It is said that never before in England was such a distinction conferred by England's king at what may be termed a state function.

It was King Edward's polite way of showing regard for the republic.

But at the same time comes the declaration of Bishop Potter, just returned from London, that "there is no love lost between Great Britain and America."

This is mixing things.

What is really the strength or weakness of the hands-across-the-seas sentiment?

It is really unnecessary to inquire what has caused the change in Bishop Potter's feelings. He has served as chief in the Angliomanic tribe whose members have been reverent toadies of England's aristocracy and who have tossed their ready caps in the air to the blood-is-thicker-than-water slogan. Suffice it that he is a close observer of tendencies.

The truth is there is considerable sentiment in this country—mostly manifest at international feeds and gabfests—of-the-God-save-the-king-and-republic sort, but it is to be doubted if the sentiment goes deep.

Let England cross our political dreams in the least and there is an end of the kith-and-kin business.

Edward is a smart old king.

He knows how to tickle us with a straw. But neither he nor any typical Englishman can ever quite understand the American people.

Was Wasting Away.

"I had been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years," writes Robert R. Watts of Salem, Mo. "I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." During the summer kidney irregularities are often caused by excessive drinking or being overheated. Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure. Chas. McNab, 402 Riverside.

FISKEY IS ALL IN

Fiskey Barnett the variety show manager, of fame in the northwest died yesterday at Seattle. For a year past he has not been well and almost blind and deaf.

He managed theaters in Spokane for several years. Toward the close of his career, things went bad with him and several benefits were given him by the profession. His wife, Ida Clayton, is now back on the boards.

ACCESSORIES.

Dainty line accessories form one of the fascinating features of the feminine wardrobe this season. Collars, cuffs, parasol and the shawl-like coat collar are among the treasures that every girl sighs for. If she is handy with her needle they are hers.

A pretty collar for the outer coat is made of heavy linen. Its slightly scalloped edged and eyelet embroidery are not difficult to make. High, deep cuffs are made on the same model. They are fastened with large linen buttons. A pretty stock and tabs have a scalloped edge, and small dabs of embroidery. White linen parasols are much more popular than silken ones. An embroidered band sets one off, as does the heavy wrought monogram of its owner.

UNCLE SAM STIRS UP ROW AMONG TAILORS

(Scripps News Association.) WASHINGTON, June 30.—The employment of an English tailor to help the style of the uniforms issued to enlisted men of the army has aroused much comment, not all of it of a friendly nature. The announcement of this engagement of British assistance and skill is responsible for much feeling on the part of the American tailors, especially those who make military and naval uniforms. They think it is, more or less, a reflection on their business that the war department goes to England and brings over a foreigner to give the soldiers' dress the required smartness. It is half expected by those who are watching some interesting developments in the case of the war department that some one may file a complaint against the British tailor, and so lead to his detention by the immigration officials. It has been desired by the army quartermasters for some time that the government cutters be trained to give a better shape to their suits of clothes, and that the uniform of the trooper be put in a more attractive form.

TOOK ONLY 400 YEARS TO SETTLE THIS SUIT

(Scripps News Association.) NICE, June 30.—The two villages Luceran and Lanconque, in the Alpes Maritimes, have just held a celebration in honor of the ending of a great lawsuit which has kept the two villages divided ever since November 14, 1462. The question in dispute was the possession of a piece of land at Lova, which each village claimed. A few days ago the court at Nice definitely settled the matter by dividing the land equally between the villages. The total cost of the lawsuit during the 444 years amounts to about $150,000, while the value of the land in dispute was about $2000. The legal documents which had accumulated in the course of the centuries were docketed in 1856 parcels, which weighed 16 tons, and were stored in a large disused church.

NO AMERICAN SHIPS TO CARRY COAL

(Scripps News Association.) WASHINGTON, June 30.—The navy department continues to have much difficulty in obtaining American ships for the transportation of coal from the Atlantic ports to Mare Island and Puget Sound, where it was intended by the bureau of equipment to ship a large quantity of American coal the present month. The same condition applies to contracting with American bottoms for the shipment of fuel to the naval coaling station at Cavite, where the navy department maintains a large coal pile for the convenience of the ships on the Atlantic station.
