

DON'T TRIFLE WITH HEALTH BOARD ORDER

When the health inspectors visit your place and order it cleaned up get busy on it immediately. If you do not you stand in danger of being arrested. You may be lucky enough to receive a notification which reads like this:

"Sir: There is a nuisance on your premises consisting of offal which has become offensive and is dangerous to health. You are hereby ordered to cause the said nuisance to be abated within 24 hours after date of service of this notice, otherwise you will be proceeded against according to law."

Or you may be unlucky enough to make a short answer to some inquiring fellow who is a health inspector and who can procure a warrant for your arrest.

ABOUT SAME OLD BOARD

C. W. Tuerke simply stepped into ex-City Commissioner Wither spoon's shoes this afternoon by the organization of the new board of public works, and without further change the board went on as it had before. Mr. Wetzel was chosen president of the board and water commissioner. Mr. Tuerke was chosen street commissioner and president of the board of police commissioners. Jack O'Brien retains his job as secretary of the board and president of the board of fire commissioners. He was also named as building inspector, commissioner in charge of the crematory department, weight and measure department and of the electrical and gas inspecting department.

Mr. Tuerke was presented with a beautiful horseshoe of red roses and pink carnations by the improvement association of Altamont Heights.

FUNK AND MOHR DEFEND CITY

Councilmen Funk and Mohr made vigorous protest last night against the amount of publicity given sickness in this city. It was stated that the scare was being used by Seattle boomers to keep people away from Spokane, Mohr claiming that of a carload of 70 people destined for Spokane, but two or three got off here, and they were shivering with dread.

Funk criticized the health department, saying that it had been given money when it asked for it, and that if the board would quit chewing the rag and get down to work, a great deal more would be accomplished. He refuted the statement that Spokane was any more sickly than any other city of its size in the country.

If Spokane was in such straits, he said, it would be better to take the $5000 given the chamber of commerce to decorate with and use it to clean up with. Both speakers were applauded.

PUGH SPRINGS SURPRISE IN CLEIN TRIAL

removing the gun from Clein's overcoat and concealing it in her hat box, where it remained until after the tragedy, but told a different story as to the occasion when she first saw the gun.

Her statement as to the time of Clein's return home on the night of March 1 differed from that given after his arrest, but she blamed this onto the aggressive questioning of Donovan at the time, as Pugh was not then present. She said Clein came home at 20 minutes of 10 and that the clock was one hour fast.

The cross examination of Mrs. Douglas was completed this afternoon.

A little slip of the tongue by Mrs. Douglas was one of the interesting features of last night's session. After the preliminary questions had been asked Mrs. Douglas was requested by Attorney Winston to state the exact time at which Clein returned home on the night of March 1. Mrs. Douglas was laboring under repressed emotions and in an abstracted manner remarked:

"Twenty minute to 12—no, I mean 20 minutes to 10."

The little slip of the tongue was not lost on the attorneys for the state. Twenty minutes to 12 would corroborate the statement of the Nivory boy, Glen Smith, who testified that Clein procured a horse at the Keystone stable at 9:30 and was gone about two hours.

TEDDY OUGHT TO SEE THIS INDIAN FAMILY

MARY LEHAN AND HER FAMILY.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 24.—Mary Lehan has 21 children, all living. She has just arrived from Seattle, bringing her children with her. She is a full-blooded Cherokee, but Lehan, her second husband, is a Servian. The youngest of the children, aged four, is his. The father of the others was a Cherokee.

This strange family has traveled all over the country from Florida to California. The mother and the two older girls are palmists and fortune tellers. They also sell watch charms and trinkets. Carrying a large sack of money, Mrs. Lehan walked into the city clerk's office and asked City License Clerk E. B. Lovie to take out enough for three licenses. While he was counting out the $90, she told him something of her history. Mrs. Lehan is 50 years old, erect and handsome for an Indian. As a girl, she must have been a beauty. Even now she does not show her age. She has letters from governors, mayors and others in prominent official position, in all the places she has visited.

Six children are boys and 15 are girls. Many a woman thinks her husband is a jewel when he is really a rhinestone.

Any boarding house mistress will tell you that none but the brave deserve the fare.

HILL AND HARRIMAN AT PEACE

(By United Press)

NEW YORK, May 26.—J. Kruttschnitt, director of operations for Harriman lines, today officially announced that arrangements had been completed whereby the Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads had agreed to bury the hatchet in the northwest and jointly use the bridge at the Columbia river; also the Northern Pacific tracks between Vancouver, Wash., and South Tacoma.

The Northern Pacific will begin immediately to double track the road so it can handle the business of the three companies. The agreement is believed in Wall street to end the legal battle between the Union Pacific and Northern Pacific over rate questions affecting the Portland gateway.

NO WHITEWASH IF GRAND JURY FINDS ANYTHING WRONG

Rumors have been going around that the grand jury investigation of the courthouse would be a whitewash if certain political influences could accomplish that end. Deputy Prosecutor Clansen this afternoon that the grand jury is making a thorough investigation and that no pressure could be brought to bear to swerve them if they found anything justifying drastic action.

GIRLS STRIKE WHEN TOLD THEY MUST NOT TALK

(By United Press)

STEUBENVILLE, O., May 26.—New rules and changes ordered at the Steubenville exchange of the Bell Telephone Co. resulted in a walkout of the five daylight operators. The girls demurred when they were asked to change hours, but when they were told they

WHAT DID HE THINK AND FEEL AS HE FELL 400 FEET TO DEATH

cled to a degree to the fate that awaited him, must have brought him to a fuller realization that his time had come.

Although it was with the speed of a cannon ball, he dropped slowly that first second. He only fell 16 feet in that stage, you'll remember—he did not reach the acme of velocity until the last second, when his body covered a distance of more than 264 feet.

Warren didn't do much thinking in the first half second. He had lost his footing, he knew; he was falling. He was terribly frightened. He recovered himself to some extent in the latter half of that first second. He very likely grabbed instinctively for something that would save him, for some support.

It was in the second second that he began to more fully comprehend what had come to pass. HE HAD FALLEN FROM THE METROPOLITAN TOWER. His body was plunging down, down, down—to death. He was thrilled. He felt cold chills. His head filled with blood.

In the third second his eyes began to see. All had been black before. He had had no time to use his eyes. But now—now he saw the city unfolded below him. He had seen it from higher altitudes than this before, but then, it had always been with indifference, and the careless eyes that danger has given the iron worker.

He was plunging down into Twenty-fourth street, to him now but a narrow canyon rift in the skyscrapers. There were people down there, many of them—My God, was he going to hit one! He could see great black squares, nearer to him than the ants the people seemed. They were roofs across the street too far away for him to strike. There was nothing between him and death.

Warren may and may not have been a praying man, but a heathen would pray at such a time. As he fell the second stage, his lips moved—he prayed. He thought of his family, his friends, his life flashed by in swift review, his sins with his good works, his mistakes with his achievements. He shut his eyes and prayed the faster. His lips moved fast, not as fast as the brain that impelled them, but not too fast for the recording angel above.

Now he has come to the last second, the fifth and a fraction. He prays no more. He thinks no more of the present or past—it is the FUTURE that concerns him. Will I be killed outright or will God be less merciful, will I die ingeringly. Warren had no thought of life. Death could not be avoided. Nearer, Nearer, NEARER—he wasn't dropping to the street. THE STREET WAS RUSHING UP TO HIM.

Thud! it was all over before his brain could complete the thought. It was the merciful, instant death he wanted. For he missed the cab.

INSANE MAN TRIES FLYING LEAP ESCAPE

"Come and save Ryan—help! help!" was the cry that rang through the courthouse this afternoon and brought everybody within hearing running to the county jail.

They found Deputy Sheriff Ryan clinging desperately to the coattails of H. B. Willard, who was dangling from the platform leading into the jail. Willard had just been adjudged insane and Ryan was taking him back to jail when he tried to escape by leaping. Ryan got him by the coat, and Mrs. Richard, probation matron, saw enough of the scuffle to indicate that something horrible was happening to Ryan. She mentioned it somewhat above a whisper and Ryan was rescued.

Deputy Prosecutor Cromwell seized Willard by his disordered head and they hauled him back to safe keeping until he can be taken to the asylum.

INSURANCE INSPECTOR TO TAKE HAND IN CLEAN UP

Health Inspector Combs today received a telegram from State Insurance Inspector MacKenzie that he would be in Spokane tonight.

If MacKenzie follows out the same program in Spokane that he did in Seattle, he will let people who take the cleanup as a joke know that there is something doing, it is stated.

He sends his men out with directions to clean up and if the property owners don't come through in time they will shortly receive a notice that their insurance is no longer in force.
