Indians Beat Seattle Again

Aberdeen Crowding The Spokane Team

KID GRADUATE TO THE BIG LEAGUE

DUFFY LEWIS.

Special Correspondence to The Press OAKLAND, Cal., July 17.—Duffy Lewis, the phenomenal young outfielder recently purchased from the Oakland Coast League team by the Boston Americans, is bound to make the Eastern fans eyes stick out, if he plays up to his present form when he goes to the big brush.

with remarkable speed. His first professional engagement was with the Alameda outlaw team last year. Before the season was half over the Oakland Coasters grabbed him. He is only five feet five, but is solidly built weighing 150 pounds, but what he lacks in size and weight he makes up in grit and strength.

CAN'T SCRAP LIKE DAD DID

That sons of great fighters never become ring stars is as true as the old saying that fighters are poor pickers of winners in glove contests.

The latest of the sons of former pugilists who made their marks to enter the ring is Joe Greggains, whose father, Alec Greggains, was one of the toughest middleweights of his day and whose battle, under sensational circumstances, with Buffalo Costello a Robby, Ind. about 15 years ago, forms one of the most interesting chapters of ring history. Joe made his debut in the San Francisco amateur ranks a few nights ago, and while he showed much of the cleverness for which the elder Greggains was famed, he lost the decision after three rounds of fighting.

THREE RUNS ON HOMER

A home run by Bassey in the sixth inning of the Portland-Tacoma game, when two men were already on bases, put the Tigers' chances and ultimately developed a 6 to 3 defeat for them.

GOOD RACE PROGRAM

There will be six days of good harness and running races at the Interstate fair this fall. According to present plans by which the speed program, just issued by Secretary Cosgrove, has been made up, purses amounting to about $10,000 will be offered in amounts ranging from $150 to $1000.

TWO FAST CLASSES FOR MATINEE RACES

The first matinee harness racing program for lovers of this sort of sport in Spokane will be given at the fair grounds Saturday, July 24. If the present plans of the promoters are carried out, Secretary Cosgrove of the Interstate fair and Mr. Greer are the promoters.

PERHAPS Mike Lynch was joking when he said he was going to "slip one over on us."

As a prophet Mike may lose his reputation before he leaves us. Jensen's got 'em buffaloed, and so has Vic Holm.

AN ERRORLESS GAME

Bunching of hits in the sixth inning won the game for the Black Cats by a score of 3 to 1 over the Champions in a game played without an error on either side, over at Aberdeen.

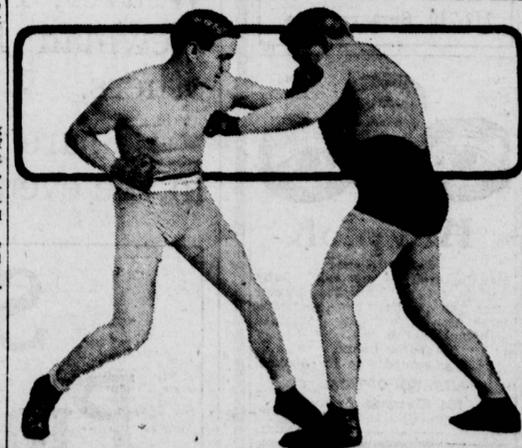

There was lots of fun about that game for the fans, and they gave "Dad" Brown the hand that they had saved for the hero of the day when with Lynch's hot drive burning his hit he fell boldly across second base, catching Bennett, and was forced from first by the batter.

Ostdiek outgeneraled the Turks in great shape. In one inning he stood way clear of the plate and took the first one Miller lobbed over in a hunt and beat it out, then he stole second and about two blinks later pilfered third, and then scored.

Miller was easy pickin's for the Indians. "Dutch" Altman, drat his tricky skin, worked him for a score in the first inning, nearly getting Miller's ears pulled by Chief Turk Mike.

Yes, we've clinched the series—four out of five already and two more to be played.

I want to go back to good old New England. Piano men out here rush too much. I like Boston, Mass. I go, too, in less than a week. I take $4 to $10 per month for pianos if you buy quick. Bowers, across from Review building.

HOODOO CAN'T HURT "HAPPY"

"HAPPY" HOGAN AND THE LATE J. FRED MAIER.

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—The Vernon base ball team in the Pacific Coast league has come to be known as the "hoodoo team" of the league. There is a reason. Never in the history of base ball, so far as can be gleaned, has death and sickness followed in the wake of a newly organized nine as it has the Vernon club.

Only a few weeks after the organization of the team and beginning of the league season, J. Fred Maier, the millionaire owner of the club, died of appendicitis. Following close upon his death, two players of the team nearly ended their careers as a result of ptomaine poisoning. They were Truck Eagan and "Kitty" Brashear, and though prompt treatment saved their lives, they were out of the game for weeks.

"SEES" BALL GAMES; YET BLIND SINCE BOYHOOD

Blind from boyhood, but able to follow a ball game and enjoy it—that is the experience of Clarence Hawkes of Hadley, Mass., baseball writer and naturalist. When Hawkes goes to a game he is accompanied by a friend. How he enjoys a game is told by Hawkes. He says: "For one blind to say he has been to see a game of ball sounds like a contradiction, yet no one sees more of the game than I. From the moment the umpire calls 'play' until the last man is out, I follow every play."

"I can tell plays by noticing where they are made and how far away the 'spat' is. Occasionally it is hard to tell whether a play is made by the shortstop or second baseman, but there is some clew that makes it clear. 'One ball!' cries the umpire. That was a wide one. 'Strike.' 'Now I am puzzled. Was it called or did he miss? A boy clears doubt by muttering disgustedly, 'Stand there like a wooden man.' 'The bat cracks and the fraction of a second later is the 'spat' of the ball on a gloved hand. 'Out!' cries the umpire. There is another easy one. It was in the pitcher's hand. 'Another steps to the plate. Then there is a dull thud and shouts of delight, and the umpire cries, 'Take your base.' 'I picture the batter limping to first or rubbing his ribs as he goes. 'Now get away off,' cries the coach. 'Go down with his arm. 'Spat' goes the ball on a mitt at my right. The pitcher is trying to catch the runner. This I do not care for, so I am glad when the ball is shot over the plate again. 'There is a scampering and then the thud of the ball in the second baseman's hands. The umpire has nothing to say, so the runner is safe. And so the game goes on, with its hits and runs, plays and errors.' 'Sometimes when I am in the bleachers a little sight would be handy. It is when the bat cracks viciously and I feel a start of the spectators and hear a cry of 'Look out!' from a dozen spectators. Why should I dodge? I am as likely to dodge wrong as right. So I put both hands over my head and wonder what it would feel like to be shot by a 10 inch shell. 'I do not care about my arms and legs, but my head and stomach I am particular about. I have been hit several times. Once a wild throw struck me in the forearm, but this saved the home team the game, as the bases were full, and the ball rebounded toward the baseman. I had no intention of interfering, but gave my arm a forward motion when the ball struck it. 'I am usually tired when the last man is out, but no boy feels better paid for coming than I do.' "Tip Wright's COLUMN

BY TIP WRIGHT. Take a chance. That's what wins many a ball game. The only time to play safe is when in the lead, with things breaking right. I know this is radical talk, usually the team in the lead is the team that takes the chances, while the fellow tagging along is content to wait for a lucky break or a fortunate hit to start things. John McGraw tells his players to "make them throw the ball." And by making them throw the Giants get an extra base now and then, which may mean a run and win a game. The team that takes chances is the team that is up and doing all of the time. Base ball may be only a guessing match between pitcher and batter, and then again it may be a gamble between fielder and base runner. If Tom Blank would try for second on every hit into right or left or center, he would probably be credited with more two base hits than he is. Many times only a perfect throw to second would get him, and when a fielder is hurried he isn't apt to make perfect throws every time he wings the ball toward the diamond. If base runners would try to pilfer third oftener they would be credited with more stolen bases. How many men can you name off handed who are willing to take a chance to reach third unassisted? Not many, I'll bet. There is a difference between taking a risk and making a fool play. The man who takes risks and gets by is the man who weighs the chances for and against him, and seizing opportunity when it heads his way, does the unexpected. The very suddenness and boldness of some plays make them great. And don't forget that men forced to throw the ball around a lot are apt to make a poor heave at any time, which means an extra base or two and possibly the difference between the winning and losing of a game. One must not blunder twice in war.—Latin.

NO SCORES IN 18 INNINGS

In a pitchers' battle against Gray and Groom of Washington yesterday, Summers of Detroit held out for 18 innings, when the game was called for darkness without a run being made on either side. Summers struck out 10 men and gave but six hits. Gray pitched for Washington till the ninth inning, with but one hit on him. For consecutive scoreless innings this game is a record breaker.
