No Charm in Noble Title for Spokane Heiresses

In Fact, "Lord Worth Naught" Might Be Coolly Received If He Came Here.

BY PARY DALTON.
WHAT do you suppose is the latest news from abroad? A real, live, grand nobleman, in the person of Lord Robert Innes Ker, brother of the duke of Roxburgh, is coming to New York! My, what a plash it will make in the elite society of the metropolis!—at least, most likely.

The feature which makes the visit more interesting is the fact that Lord Ker will neither affirm nor deny that he is bent upon a matrimonial venture. Of course, we believe, from former like experiences that the many wealthy dowagers will treat him with pomp and glory and place him upon a pedestal, but just suppose he came to Spokane, how would our popular society maids treat his noble lordship? Read what some of them say.

Mrs. Seth Richards: "Of course, I have never met a titled person, but I have no doubt but what there are some who are honorable, worthy men, and for this reason I don't feel inclined to say that all are unworthy of American girls. The fact that so many unions between American heiresses and titled men have been unhappy naturally makes one fear the results."

"However," said Mrs. Richards, with that charming little accent so characteristic of her, "I can't speak from any personal experience, because, as I said before, I have never known a titled man and have never had money enough to dazzle them with my charm and beauty—and," she laughed, "I like an American best." Of course, we all know who she meant.

Mayme Jordan: "I know only one titled man and he was on English soil. If they are all like him, I wouldn't want one. American men are hard enough to understand, without getting a foreign conundrum."

Miss Edith Brownlee: "We girls out here haven't had much occasion for worry concerning the marriage of noblemen. There aren't very many floating around this part of the country. Whether or not American girls should marry them depends entirely upon the character of the man. It is a queer sort of girl who would sacrifice all for title, but, on the other hand, if you really loved him, oh, my!"

Miss Mayme Jordan: "After we read and hear of all the results of the many unhappy American-foreign marriages and know of the sorrows that have been heaped upon the heads of many of the heiresses who have taken such matrimonial steps, we shudder at the thought of any more of our loyal girls marrying titles. Of course, there are some good men in the ranks of the nobility, but it would well pay the girls to be doubly sure that the man loved her for herself alone, and that she was truly in love with his lordship."

Miss Annette Oudin: "American men are good enough for American girls. An American for mine."
Miss Estelle O'Brien: "It would be such a novelty to see one of the nobility out here that it is hard to tell just how we might act. I don't believe there is any occasion for immediate alarm in this part of the country, but I should think the past records of the unhappy escapades would discourage a woman with the strongest nerve."

Miss Mabel Spencer: "There are always two sides to every story. Doubtless there are very successful marriages among the wealthy American girls and the heads of the royalty, but there are also many unsuccessful ones. Respect, with married people means more than anything else, and what man could respect a woman that he felt had purchased his name for a few paltry dollars, and what woman could be happy with a man she married merely for titles?"

Miss Susan Mason: "To marry a foreigner for money is foolishness. I think there is a barrier between the Americans and foreigners and I certainly wouldn't want one if he were burdened with all kinds of titles."

To Entertain at Cards and Court Lunch

With cards Mrs. Homer M. Kennedy will entertain at a pretty affair Tuesday afternoon at her apartments in the Monrovia, on Fifth avenue.

A delightful court luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock. Following the luncheon four tables will be arranged for cards, and the social hours will be spent at five hundred.

About 16 guests have been invited for the occasion.

Spokane Woman Is Chairman of Local Committee

The Spokane Sorosis club has been honored by having one of its members appointed as chairman of the local committee of the Washington State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Harris Baldwin received the appointment from Mrs. Vestal Snyder of North Yakima, who is chairman of the state committee. Mrs. Baldwin will form a local committee and asks ladies of the various clubs to assist her in this work.

Pretty Reception to Past Matron of Eastern Star

Mrs. W. H. Ludden was hostess at a pretty affair Friday evening when she entertained complimentary to Mrs. Wheatley of Seward, Alaska. The honor guest is a past matron of the Eastern Star and the guest list included all the past matrons of the Electra chapter of this city.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the whist tables. The high score was made by Mrs. Barnhart, while the second favor was awarded to Mrs. Hattie B. Powers.

Another charming feature of the affair was the musical numbers rendered by the Eastern Star quartet.

Mrs. Wheatley is visiting in the city as a guest of her mother, Mrs. Briscoe and her sister, Mrs. John McCarthy.

Whist Club to be Entertained at the Patterson Home

Mrs. R. B. Patterson will entertain the members of the Whist club Tuesday afternoon at the beautiful Patterson residence, on Seventh avenue.

A number of the club members, among whom are many of the most popular society matrons of the city, will be missed from the circle Tuesday. It is remarkable to note that this social club was formed about 15 years ago, and in spite of the fact that at intervals some members are abroad and visiting at other places, the interest in the club is never for a time forgotten.

Among its members who are out of town at present are Mrs. Patrick Clark, Mrs. Patrick Welch and Mrs. J. J. Brown.

A delightful court luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock Tuesday at the Patterson home and will be followed with an afternoon at whist.

Society Events of Past Week

Never in many months has society been at such a low ebb as during the past week, and it is surprising to see how many of these fine winter days are being allowed to slip by without any recognition from the hospitable maids and matrons of Spokane. From present indications the winter season has no charms for the butterfly maids and debutantes or even for the more staid dowagers, as many are planning to travel in the sunny south while others have decided to spend the remainder of the winter season abroad. Although this week has not been crowded with festivities, it has been marked with a number of exceptionally pretty affairs.

Among the delightful affairs of the week were the series of card parties given by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wentworth on Monday and Wednesday evenings at their home, on Third avenue. Both affairs were given complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Walker, who recently returned from abroad. Party guests were included on the invitation list for each occasion, and the social hours were spent at whist.

Another notable event of the same day was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Ross in celebration of their sixtieth wedding anniversary. The affair was given at the home of their daughter, Mrs. F. E. R. Linfield, on Broadway avenue. An interesting feature of the reception was the display of old family relics and china and furniture which have been in the family for over 100 years. About 200 guests called during the day to extend their congratulations to the host and hostess.

Complimentary to Mrs. M. Hexter of Portland, Ore., Mrs. Sol Mayer was hostess at a delightful informal bridge luncheon given Wednesday afternoon at her apartments at the Westminster.

Mrs. T. E. Redmond, a late arrival from Michigan, was motif for a pretty affair on Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. J. H. Spear entertained at an informal afternoon tea at the Spear residence, on Ninth avenue. During the receiving hours, from 3 to 5, a number of friends of the hostess called to meet the visitor and drink tea with Mrs. Spear.

A charming informal affair of the week occurred at the Martindale residence, on Ninth avenue, Friday afternoon, when Mrs. M. G. Martindale was hostess at a bridge luncheon. The invitation list included about 40 guests.

Miss Phillip Laidlaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Laidlaw, proved herself a charming young hostess yesterday afternoon when she entertained a number of her friends at a box party. About 17 guests were included in the party, and they had a delightful afternoon at the Orpheum.

Undoubtedly one of the smartest affairs of the week was the party given Saturday afternoon at the Masonic temple. The hostesses of the affair were Mrs. W. S. Nicholson, Mrs. Esther Converse and Mrs. William O. Smith. About 300 guests were invited to spend the afternoon at whist.

On the evening of the same day Miss Edith Brownlee entertained a few friends informally at her home on Eighth avenue. The appointments at the luncheon table were

Romantic Possibilities of the Little Stew Pan

Like an acquiescing echo to the statements of Mrs. May Arkwright Hutton regarding marriage, divorce and alimony, which appeared in The Press last Sunday morning, Mrs. J. W. Clark, of the Wifehood guild, in New York city, gave out an interview this week to the United Press in which she declares that the majority of the world's unhappiness is due to wives' inability to cook.

One can scarcely realize the tremendous romantic possibilities of the stewpan until they have had a chat with this grand old lady, whose daily duty it is to educate housewives in the common elements of cooking and housekeeping.

"If every woman knew how to cook there would be fewer divorces, fewer men, more men in love with their wives, fewer wives with broken hearts, more men with happy dispositions and fewer men with wrecked careers," says Mrs. Clark.

Girls of Brunot Hall Will Present "Twelfth Night"

A feature of early February will be the play, "Twelfth Night," which the girls of Brunot hall will present on the evening of Saturday, February 5, at the gymnasium of the school, on Pacific avenue.

The students from the four year academic course possessing most talent in the dramatic line have been chosen to make up the cast and the girls are hard at work with their rehearsals. The characters have been cast as follows: The Duke, Dorothy Anderson of Seattle;

Viola, Jennie Philbrick; Sir Toby, Elise Howell; Malvolio, Hazel Osborne; Sebastian, Jessie Bradley; Curio, Josephine Oudin; Clown, Marjorie Norman; Fabian, Sarah Page; Maria, Irene Garnersey; Sir Andrew, Winifred Foote. There will also be ladies' maids and attendants.

The performance will be given under the direction of Miss Warner, a graduate of the Emerson School of Expression at Boston, who is instructor at the academy.

Miss Laidlaw Gives Box Party and Luncheon

A group of pretty girls were guests at a box party given at the Orpheum theater yesterday afternoon by Miss Phillip Laidlaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Laidlaw.

Following the afternoon's enjoyment at the theater the young hostess entertained her guests at a delightful luncheon served at the Palm. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. Laidlaw. Those invited were Gene Boggs, Helen Grinnell, Josephine Oudin, Francis Rutter, Col Rutter, Isabelle Graves, Annabelle Moore, Madge Norman, Helen Mason, Kathryn Laird, Phillip Bleecker, Augusta Hall, Agnes Kennedy, Mary Heyburn and Kathryn Bean.

Wrist watches on leather straps again are being worn. Sterling silver charms of all kinds are now in favor. Belts for street costumes are wider and have large buckles. Rhinestones and crystal embroidery are being lavishly employed on evening gowns.

The small girl's millinery is extremely practical as well as pretty this season. The favored model for every day wear is a medium shape with rounded crown and slightly drooping brim. Often the sole trimming will be a simple scarf while again if the hat is for better wear the crown will be encircled by a broad soft ribbon, folded and held down on either side just above the ears with a rosette of the ribbon. Contrary to the general rule, the rosette is larger on the right side than on the left.

Wagner Club Reception, Musicales and Grand Ball

ONE of the largest and most interesting events of the year will be the affair given by the members of the Wagner club on the evening of Tuesday, February 8, at the Hall of the Dogs. The entertainment will be in the form of a reception and musicale and will be concluded with a grand ball.

The committee members and the artists appearing on the program will wear Wagner costumes and every feature of the affair will be carried out in the purely Wagnerian style. Arthur Frazer, one of the leading pianists of the city, will impersonate Mozart and Miss Wheeler of Brunot hall will wear a Wagner costume and will be heard in several violin solos. Mr. F. W. King will also take part and Mrs. Pearl Hutton Schrader will sing in a chorus which will include 16 prominent society ladies of the city.

No little success of the affair will be due to the energy and untiring efforts of Miss Halliense Hall. For the dance which follows the musical there will be 100 patronesses and the guest list will include the members of the society set.

Miss Julia Goldstein to Visit East

Miss Julia Goldstein, in company with her mother, Mrs. J. G. Goldstein, will leave tomorrow for an extended trip through the east.

During their travels they will visit New York city, Boston, and will spend some time at Amherst, Mass., with Harry Goldstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein, who is a student at Amherst college. They will return to their home in about eight weeks, by way of Mexico and California.

Two Evenings At Dancing

Society is looking forward with pleasure to two events of the coming week, the dance at the Post, which is given Wednesday evening, and the Westminster dance, which occurs on Thursday evening. A number of the most delightful affairs of the season have been those given at Fort Wright and at the fashionable Hotel Westminster, and the parties scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday promise to be no less brilliant than on former occasions.

Coming Events

Miss Jessie Rice, who leaves shortly for New York, will give a testimonial recital tomorrow evening at the Vincent Methodist church. Those who will appear in the recital are Miss Rice, Miss Olivia Dahl, Arthur Frazer, Carl Grissel and George Greenwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, who recently returned from abroad, will be honor guests at another pretty affair Tuesday evening, when Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Northrup will entertain for them informally at cards at the Northrup residence on Eighth avenue. Party guests have been invited to spend an evening at whist.

Miss Mary and Lucy Twoby will be hostesses at a bridge luncheon to be given Tuesday afternoon. Invitations have been issued to 30 guests.

A rare musical treat is in store for Spokane people next Thursday evening, when Mme. Teresa Carreno, one of foremost pianists, will appear in a recital at the Spokane theater. Mme. Carreno is an artist of rare ability and temperament and favors many American compositions.

The music lovers of Spokane are looking forward with interest to the recital to be given here Sunday afternoon, January 30, by Miss Maud Powell. The artist was a protegee of the late Theodore Thomas and is one of the greatest violinists on the concert stage today.

The First Dentists in Spokane to Depart From High Prices in Favor of the Masses

The dentists who tell you that we cannot do good dental work at our prices means that THEY can't do good work for that price. Some of the reason's why they can't are: First, they can't afford the modern equipment such as we have. Second, they have to pay considerable more for materials as we buy in immense quantities direct, pay cash and discount all bills. Our modern appliances save a great deal of time and labor as well as reducing the pain to a minimum.

The Very Best for a Little Less
