DANCING PARTY AT GREENOUGH HOME.

Mrs. W. D. Greenough will entertain this evening at a dancing party for her little daughter, Mildred Greenough.

The occasion is the celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of the young hostess.

The rooms of the spacious home will be cleared for dancing and about 30 friends of Miss Mildred will be present to enjoy the event.

TWO ARE HOSTESSES AT LUNCHEON.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. George Taft and Mrs. J. W. Oakes for a charming affair to be given by them next Wednesday afternoon at the home of the latter on Ninth avenue.

The entertainment will be in form of a 1 o'clock luncheon and afternoon at bridge. Forty have been included on the guest list.

LUNCHEON FOR MISS WHITSON.

Charming appointments marked the affair given this afternoon by Mrs. R. L. Thompson and Miss Boyer in compliment of Miss Clara Whitson.

Sweet peas and roses were used as decorations and made beautiful the tables where the dainty luncheon was served. The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to bridge, tables being arranged for 12 guests.

The place cards were hand painted favors of baskets of spring flowers and bore the names of the following guests: Miss Whitson, Mrs. S. H. Richards, Mrs. Victor Piolet, Miss Ida Spear, Miss Edith Brownlee, Miss Susan Mason, Miss Gladys Ham, Miss Annette Odlin, Miss Margaret McLain, Miss Stella O'Brien and Miss Eleanor Welch.

MISS BROWNLEE ENTERTAINED.

Complimentary to Miss Catherine Kerr of Seattle, who is a house guest of Miss Susan Mason, Miss Edith Brownlee was hostess yesterday afternoon at a luncheon and card party at the Brownlee residence, on Eighth avenue.

Spring flowers carried out the appointments in a charming manner. Twelve guests enjoyed the informal afternoon.

DINNER PARTY.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry B. Luhn entertained at a dinner party last evening complimentary to Dr. and Mrs. Willis of Seattle, who are their house guests for a few days.

CHURCH DINNER PARTY.

The gentlemen of the Pilgrim class of the First United Presbyterian church entertained the ladies at a dinner party last evening given at the home of their teacher, Mrs. F. L. Dwyer, 62528 Glenwood street.

The party was the result of the termination Tuesday evening of a membership card party which began January 1 between the gentlemen and ladies, the terms of which were that the division securing the most additions to the class were to be the guests at a dinner served by the other.

The gentlemen, being defeated by two counts, invited the ladies to the home of their teacher, Mrs. F. L. Dwyer, 62528 Glenwood street, where they prepared and served a four course dinner. Mr. A. C. Raub acted as swamper. While these prepared the men the other men entertained the ladies at various games. When all was ready the head waiter, Mr. Clyde Rowland, invited the ladies to the board and the remaining men assumed places on the waiters' staff. The table decorations were carnations.

Those present were: The Misses Alma and Hazel Whitmore, Lila Hawk, Ethel Huff, Nellie Haworth, Cleone Ransome, Marie Lasselle, Blanche Thompson, Grace Lovell, Evelyn Aldrich, Lucile Ward, Eva Raun, Ora Rowland, Ruby Rowland and Alma Baty. Messrs. Coe Spear, Irwin Kernkamp, Howard Copley, Edward Hicks, Howard Potter, Clarence Rowland, Marvin Thompson, Clyde Rowland, C. C. Durham, A. C. Raub, J. W. Kohler, Wesley, Baty, John Aldrich, Floyd Brower, class president, and Mrs. F. L. Dwyer, teacher. The only regret is that some members of the class did not reach the place and were deprived of the pleasures.

CHARITY PARTY.

Mrs. B. H. Stettler and Mrs. J. Faney were hostesses this afternoon at a card party and musicale given at the Stettler home, on Eleventh avenue.

The affair, to which about 80 guests were invited, was given for the benefit of the church home for children at Lidgerwood.

The hostesses were assisted in receiving by Mrs. George Clausen, Mrs. George S. Brooks, Mrs. Courtland Hunt, Mrs. Mitchem and Mrs. Edris.

The fore part of the afternoon was devoted to bridge and five hundred and was followed by a splendid musical program.

The members of the "Garnet" entertained for her yesterday at the home of Mrs. Dwight Mason, on Cross street. The social hours were spent with games and music.

MISS STRANG HONOR GUEST.

Miss Mary Straag, since the announcement of her wedding, has been having high showers and teas given in her honor.

The members of the "Garnet" entertained for her yesterday at the home of Mrs. Dwight Mason, on Cross street. The social hours were spent with games and music.

MRS. WRIGHT IS HOSTESS.

The Brown's addition chapter of the First Presbyterian church met today with Mrs. George H. Wright at her home, 1925 Pacific avenue.

DANCE AT ELKS TEMPLE.

The ladies auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will give their fifth annual ball April 21 at the Elks' temple. All friends of the brotherhood are invited.

A MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC RECITAL.

A musical and dramatic recital will be given this evening at the Auditorium of Our Lady of Lourdes church as a benefit for the Holy Ghost parish.

"JAPANESE MAKE BEST HUSBANDS"

"I Am Happy. Isn't That Enough?" Answer of White Girl to Protests of Neighbors Who Have Ostracized Her

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—Do the men of Japan make better husbands than Americans? Are they kinder to their wives than Americans? Do they accord them more consideration after marriage than Americans?

Yes.

This is the answer of Mrs. Katnot saved her from being ostracized by her sisters because she crossed the barrier of racial prejudice.

The couple have one child—a little girl. The almond eyes, the brown skin and the look of the Orient has engraved its race mark upon the child.

"My husband never forgets the sutara Tanigoshia, the American wife of a Japanese attorney in this city to a storm of protest from householders in an exclusive residence section where her brown husband bought a home.

"Japanese make better husbands than Americans. I know my husband is better than nine-tenths of the neighbors, who criticize us."

She is a white-skinned girl with delicate, refined features, big dark eyes, but her race and birth have little things that count with a woman," continued Mrs. Tanigoshia as she gently rocked the Occident-Orient baby to and fro.

"I would like to know how many American husbands get up and build the fire? A few perhaps there are, but how many, let me ask, get breakfast? Yet that is what my husband does. He brings me flowers and calls me pretty names just as he did in the days of our courtship. I am happy. Isn't that enough?"

pounds big and just as beautiful as I am big, yet they do say that four years ago I was nothing but a bald-headed china watermelon like that egg in our nest. Can you believe it?"

"And Mrs. Bill said, 'Let's hatch it out and see.' So they did, and that's all.

ALL AROUND THE HOME

Tomorrow's story will be "The Bike and the Bird."

When coffee is left over, strain it from the grounds and set away to use in the next morning's coffee, to flavor custards and creams, or in cake making.

A good dish of "left-overs" is made by chopping pieces of meat, adding an equal quantity of soft bread crumbs, sage, seasoning, a little milk and a beaten egg. Make them into sausage shapes and brown in skillet in a little hot fat.

To clean boys' clothing, wash in hot suds, using white soap and plenty of borax, the quantity depending upon the hardness of the water. Wring and rinse in clear warm water, then again in warm water, adding a little ammonia to the last rinse. Never place woolens in cold water.

To make successful pie crusts, follow this rule: Two cups flour, one cup lard, one teaspoon salt, one-half cup water. All ingredients must be cold.

To make flannels soft in washing add a teaspoon of glycerine to the rinse water.

Clean white felt hats with stale bread.

The STORY CLUB

By EDMUND YANCE COOKE

(Copyright, 1910, by the Author.)

By Truepenney.

"For a true story, that wasn't half bad," said Angelimp. "Tear another yard off the same piece, will you?"

"Same kind?" asked Truepenney.

"Yes, a fact story, Truepenney!" said Angelimp. "Go ahead."

"Well, then, here's the story of the other ostrich egg. The big hen ostrich laid this one on the ostrich ranch, and she sat on it all day, and all the next day, and the next day, and the next for seven weeks."

"Go on!" said Gableoff; "she'd starve to death in seven weeks."

"I said she sat on the egg every day," replied Truepenney. "Every evening at early supper time, the papa ostrich went on the nest and stayed till after breakfast time next morning. In seven weeks they could see the baby ostrich inside the shell. Ever notice that in one end of an egg there's a little empty place? Well, the papa and mamma ostrich cracked open this end and yanked the little ostrich out by his neck, and there he was, a little huddled-up, rough-looking, gray-looking bird about as big as a barnyard hen. But he didn't stay that small long. He grew about a foot a month, and that's a plenty."

"Wished I'd grow a foot a month," said Willbill. "There's some fellows I know of would get what's comin' to 'em."

For awhile the ostrich farmers kept him in a warm house, then they let him out every day and when only kept him in at night. When he was big enough for that, he thought he was a big, big bird, and so he was. He was so big they called him Bill Taft."

"What did he eat?" asked Fizzwig.

"Alfalfa," answered Truepenney. "One day he got hold of some barley and ate that, and the next soon he ran to his mother, and said, 'Oh, mammy, mammy, I got such a tummyache.' And his mamma said, 'You foolish little six-foot baby. Now, you'll have to have a doctor.' Then the doctor came and gave him a colic and he rolled up with something else, and you could see it go down his neck all the way."

"About this time, Bill was surprised one day to have a man drive him into a three-cornered pen, and then he was more surprised when something slid over his head so he couldn't see. Then some one cut off his wing and tail feathers, but it didn't hurt, and the feathers weren't very showy, so he didn't care. A couple of months after, they drove him into his pen again and he rolled up to the end of the quills, and then the new feathers began to sprout, and Bill looked pretty good, and the third crop was prettier still. When Bill had given up half a dozen crops of plumes he was the biggest bird on the place and was old enough to have a mate."

"Then he and his mate dug a nest in the ground with their breast bones and Mrs. Bill laid an egg. And then Mr. Bill ruffled his beautiful black and white plumes and stretched himself up to his full height and strutted before his wife and said, 'Look at me, Mrs. Bill, look at me. Four hundred
