Pratt Urging Commission Hearing—Sullivan Now Wants Council Hearing.

The resignation of Acting Chief of Police Sullivan and the apparent prospect of his being tried by both the police commission and the city council has split the city hall ring into factions...

Sullivan today declares that he would rather be tried by the council than by the police commission, he having evidently come to the conclusion that Mayor Pratt has decided to make him the burn offering which shall save the Pratt administration from the disgrace which at present attaches to it.

THE SWEETEST SINGER IN THE WORLD TODAY

What's the sweetest vocal music (not taking into consideration musical tones of the voices of those you've ever heard? If you were at the Auditorium theater last night, you will instantly answer: Gadski's voice. For Gadski is unquestionably the queen of song. Sweetest low notes, brilliant, piercing, yet entrancing high notes, perfect voice culture, high natural and attained art, spirituality of interpretation—all these and more Gadski possesses.

SUPREME COURT UNMASKED

BY JOE SMITH Copyrighted October 19, 1910.

Corruption of the Law of Personal Liberty. For 20 years supreme judges for Washington have been selected by political conventions ruled by parties, ruled by bosses, ruled by money. There have been exceptions but this has been the rule. And because of bosses and money, parties and partisanship, judges in many instances have been selected not for their knowledge of the law, not for their love of justice, but for their regularity in politics and their sympathy with what money wants.

I speak of a system, not of individual judges. The prevalent protest against the court is a protest against a system, not against individuals. But the system is an evil system and its influence upon the court has been an evil influence, warping some of the decisions of the court until they have been biased decisions, favoring the strong and the crafty at the expense of the weak and defenseless, robbing the many of the rights to enhance the power and the profits of the few. Defenders of the system and of the court insist that most of the judges selected by that have been honest judges. Granted. Many of them have been both honest and honorable. Doubtless some of them have struggled manfully to counteract the evils of the system. But no creature of such a system could successfully resist the encroachments of that system as long as it possessed the power to crush him. And but for an uprising of the people on November 8 in behalf of the non-partisan candidates for the supreme court that system still prevails.

A DEADLY SHOT FRIGHTENS SHOOTING GALLERY MAN TERRIBLY--FINANCIALLY

An old mountaineer stepped into a shooting gallery on Main avenue yesterday. He had on a woolen jacket much faded, and an old pair of what had once been blue overalls. A pair of well worn boots were on his feet, and an ancient slouch hat that had seen service in the late civil war, by its appearance, strove to conceal a number of spikes of hair that persisted in peeping out through the vents in the crown. His face was heavily bearded and his little blue eyes twinkled like two bright beads. Sifting into the small crowd that was watching proceedings, he waited for an opening, and then took up one of the Winchester 22s that lay on the counter. Raising his arms slowly brought the sights up to the right level and pulled the trigger. One of the ducks that were bobbing up and down disappeared from view. Raising his gun with the same easy assurance he pulled a second time, this time sighting from his left shoulder, and duck number two apparently ceased to exist. Again he shot, and again an uneasy duckling was sent into temporary oblivion. The crowd by this time was interested and crowded around the old man as he raised his arms for the fourth shot. Duck number four was an easy as the rest. Alternately firing and pumping in new shells, he continued to pull.

A QUICK DECISION BY JURY

(By United Press Leased Wire) LONDON, Oct. 22.—Standing in Old Bailey court at a bar where scores of murderers and other criminals have heard their doom, Dr. H. H. Crippen, convicted of wife murder, this afternoon learned that he would be hanged on either November 14 or November 15.

"And I advise you to entertain no hope of escaping the gallows," added Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, in pronouncing sentence. "I implore you to make your peace with God. Crippen arose briskly to learn his fate. He seemed fairly composed while the court announced the verdict of the jury, but as the sentence of death was pronounced he became perceptibly paler and seemed in a trance. As Lord Alverstone concluded, Crippen said: "I still protest my innocence." The prisoner then relapsed into a stupor and remained in that condition until long after he was taken to his cell.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, stripped of British law of technical defense, handicapped by the disappearance of his wife, and was mentally deranged. Continued on Page Two.
