Cynthia Grey's After-Supper Talks.

A NEGLECTED ART.

With all the progress made in the arts in this country, there is one art so sadly neglected that only a few of the inner circle know it is an art.

Don't you think it is an art? It is one of the fine arts, albeit one which may be mastered without money or instructors.

A third party coming into a home, especially in a position of dependence, brings potent possibilities of misery both for himself and the home.

Enter a home feeling that you are a dependent and for that reason will be neglected; enter it feeling resentful that you will be outside the inner circle of the family affections.

Enter it feeling that you are blessed in having friends or relatives who open their doors to you; enter it remembering that your presence there means a certain sacrifice of the family privacy.

Those who have mastered the fine art of living in other people's houses will be members of service to the mistress of the house in every way possible without officiousness.

And, most of all, they will remember to throw oil upon troubled water when the family serenity is threatened.

But, phaw, what's the use? Nobody can master the art of living in other people's houses but the wise, and they need no instruction.

WANTED—A WIFE WILLING TO BE A MOTHER

A young professor, delivering an address at a teachers' institute took occasion to remark that there were two things in life he desired more than all else: One was a wife, the other a wife who was willing to be a mother.

The young ladies were properly shocked, the young men indignant, the old maids and bachelors scandalized.

To vary an old saying—purity is in the ear of the hearer.

The young professor wanted the most beautiful, the most precious thing on earth:

A wife who knew God made them twin that they might become one in love and desire;

A woman whose greatest joy was to feel a baby head cuddling up close to her cheek; who was willing to forego the disfiguring, dehumanizing exactions of fashion that she might hold "her man child drinking at her breast"; whose mother heart was so great that her mother arms were never too full;

A home where patter of baby feet made its sweetest music; sons to call him "father," and daughters to base their standard of manhood upon what he should strive to be.

A "little" thing, a "despicable" thing, a "thing for ridicule"—but something so great that it is the nearest to heaven we will ever know here—a home, with wife and babies to call his own.

LYDIA WEARS NO STOCKINGS

LYDIA LIPKOWSKA.

Lydia is a Russia singer in the Boston opera company this season. See the ribbon about her hair. See the priceless earrings. See the wonderful sli-gown. Oh, she has lots of clothes—only—only, she hasn't any stockings.

"They are not healthful," she says. "I learned it at a health resort in Russia. Many Russian women go without stockings so that the feet will become used to the cold."

Two Hundred and Fifty Handsome Suits All Representing Values Extraordinary $13.50

Garments Made to Our Own Order Under Unusual Conditions

A GROUP of two hundred and fifty suits will be offered at a price tomorrow so extremely low as to be sensational. New, stylish, well made garments that in every respect measure up to the standard this store sets for its garment stocks.

The Styles

The styles selected are late season models which have proved most successful. Tailored effects predominate, hardly any of them showing more than just a touch of trimming.

The Materials and Colors

Soft wale cheviots, good quality serges, and fancy mixtures. Many handsome mixtures, in many of which black and navy blue effects predominate; also the dark soft tones that are fashionable this season.

The Workmanship

Tailoring such as is seldom seen except in garments of the finer kinds. Garments that are made to look right in the beginning and to hold their shape until worn out.

All sizes from a misses' 14 that will fit a growing girl or a small woman, up to size 44 for an extra large woman. A good assortment in each size. A variety broad enough to make it easy to find just the model you wish. Special price $13.50

Boy's Shoes, Special $2.15 and $1.65

FOR boys requiring sizes 2 1/2 to 5 1/2, several styles will be shown tomorrow in patent leather, black calf and tan calf. Not all sizes in each kind. That's the reason for the special price, but a good assortment and all sizes in one style or another. Special price $2.15

For boys requiring sizes 8 1/2 to 11, there will be shown patent leather, calf and kid shoes in several styles, in one or another of which will be found every size. These are good solid durable shoes, of good appearance, specially priced to close them out. $1.65
