IS MOTHER LOVE NECESSARY IN REARING A CHILD?

BY WILLIAM E. SMYTHE.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 21.—For 10 years Catherine Tingley has been endeavoring to demonstrate at the theosophical headquarters on Point Loma, California, that there is a more scientific way to train the young human plant than the old fashioned method prevailing in tens of millions of homes throughout the world.

She contends that the average parent is not yet fitted, either by temperament, experience or education to bring up children, especially their own children.

She once said to a proud father: "Send the boy to me. I will rear him scientifically. I will love him with the love of humanity, while you will love him with the foolish indulgence of a fond parent, always doing things you know are not for his best good, pretending you do it to make him happy, though as a matter of fact it will be done for your own selfish satisfaction in seeing the gleam in his eye when he receives something which he knows and you know he ought not to have."

She added: "You could take some other child and bring him up with a deep sense of responsibility to the child and its parents. You cannot do as well by your own."

Here is the doctoring that strikes pretty deep into accepted notions of home life and child nature. But this is not the whole of the doctrine.

The rect of it consists in the development of a class of "trained parents," as they might be called in comparing them with trained men and women of other professions. They must, of course, be fitted by temperament and sympathy to deal with children, but that is not enough.

They must also acquire special knowledge, not only of things to be taught, but of diet, housing, clothing and all other subjects touching the welfare of childhood. For they do not meet their charges merely in school hours. They live with them, sleep with them—in a word, actually bring them up, often from a few days old until they are ready to go out into the world.

Through the whole period of their education they live apart from the world, immune from its influences good and bad. They have their own world, with its own influences, and are reared physically, intellectually and spiritually according to the theosophical ideal developed during the past 30 years by Mme. Blavatsky, Wm. Q. Judge and Mrs. Tingley.

There are not only white children at Point Loma, but brown, yellow and black children. Since they have never heard a word of race prejudice, they readily accept the theosophical idea of universal brotherhood. And the democracy of childhood is inspiring to behold.

There is no doubt that the Rago Yoga children live in a more beautiful place, with finer homes, than most other children in the world. But have those other children something that the children of Rago Yoga miss entirely—namely the mother love?

One man who has observed the new system carefully for years and knows many parents who see their children but two hours a week, makes this comment: "I think it is a good deal rougher on the parents than it is on the children. I have no doubt there are many homes, many of them, better for a child than any system of trained and artificial motherhood can possibly devise. On the other hand, no one will attempt to deny that there are millions of homes whose children would be mighty fortunate if they were transferred to a place like Point Loma and to the advantages of its whole system."

"But after all this is said, you come back to the proposition that when a baby falls down and bumps his head he has lost something that can never be made up to him if he misses the mother's kiss to make it well. No matter what he has gained, he has lost something exceedingly precious."

Cynthia Grey's Letters

Dear Miss Grey: What chance has a young man who has not led a very good life, and who has been through the fire of despair, to get into a lodge or other organization which will help him in his effort to retrieve? STRANGER.

A.: Consult officials of lodge you wish to join.

Dear Miss Grey: (1) In passing a boy on the street is it my place to speak first? (2) What color is prettiest for hair ribbons? My hair is dark. ANXIOUS.

A.: (1) Yes. (2) Black, pale blue and cherry.

Dear Miss Grey: Kindly give recipe for renewing nickel plating on stoves when slightly rusted. Also the best way to entirely cover the plating when badly rusted.—Uno.

A.: Cover the spots with grease for a few days and then remove the rust by rubbing with a little ammonia. Polish with whiting. If very badly rusted take off the grease with dilute hydrochloric acid. If it does not remove the rusty marks better send rusted parts to the factory for replating.

Dear Miss Grey: (1) Will going without breakfast reduce one's weight? (2) Are meats fattening? READER.

A.: (1) No. (2) Lean meats in moderation are not fattening. Fat meats, bread, potatoes, cereals and sugars are fattening. Drink no fluid at meals. Chew the food longer and eat less. Walk out of doors, and take cold spray or tub baths.

Thanksgiving Dinner Ideas

- THANKSGIVING MENU. Fruit Macedoine. Oyster Soup. Wafers. Olives. Turkey. Cranberry Sauce. Mashed Potatoes. Sweet Potatoes. Stuffed Onions. Salad. Plum Pudding. Pumpkin Pie. Coffee.

In 1621 the first American Thanksgiving feast was held by the Puritans. Wild turkey, which cost nothing but a cartridge or two and a little labor to prepare, occupied the most prominent place on their table, just as the domesticated descendant graces our table of today.

Here are a few ways to prepare the accompanying good things. Sold old, some new; all good. Cranberry Sauce.—Wash one quart cranberries, put into granite kettle with one pint water and five cored and sliced sour apples. Cover and cook 20 minutes. Press through colander, add one pound sugar, boil five minutes and set away to cool.

Stuffed Onions.—Take four large onions and boil until tender, but not broken. Drain. When cold remove the centers. Chop these of these centers and mix with them a cupful of chopped cooked ham, and season to taste. Moisten with cream and the beaten yolk of an egg. Fill the centers with this mixture. Place a piece of butter on the top of each. Set in a deep dish. Pour a little milk about them, and bake, covered, for 20 minutes. Uncover, sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake 10 minutes longer.

Salad for the Thanksgiving dinner may be simple celery with mayonnaise, or celery and apple, or celery, chestnuts and tart apple with French dressing.

QUIT SUITORS WHO LOVE DRINK BETTER THAN THEY LOVE YOU, SAYS CYNTHIA GREY

BY CYNTHIA GREY. Let me read you a letter which came to my desk today—you girls who have sweethearts who "drink occasionally." And listen to my reply to it, too, for it will answer your letters to me as well:

Dear Miss Grey: I am a young woman, 25 years old, and have been well educated and raised. I am engaged to a man who is disipated, and in fact drunk nearly every day of his life, and my parents are so much opposed to him that they will not allow him to call to see me at our home. In order to see him I am obliged to arrange to meet him at some other place in the city, which I do several times every day, as I am under such a spell that for some reason I yearn to be with him all the time. My friends claim that I am being injured by associating with him. What do you think? And what should I do? Shall I yield to my parents, or shall I have my own way? Kindly advise me. ANNIE.

A.—Your parents are wiser than you. They love you and have your interests at heart. They know just what your life would be with this man, who does not love you well enough now to give up his bad habits for you. Picture to yourself the loneliness, the heart-break, the humiliation, and utter misery that is always—ALWAYS—the lot of a drunkard's wife. And the humiliation would extend to your little innocent children, which would hurt you far more than your own personal grief. They would be pointed out as "drunkard's children" by their schoolmates. They would be ashamed of father, and worse still, they would possibly inherit father's weakness, and your mother-heart would ache with more dreadful agony than it had ever known before.

Now, my dear girl, this word-picture is not overdrawn. It is one of the commonest things in this world—the distress and desolation of a drunkard's wife. Look about you, with eyes wide open, and you will find the proof every day. And this I must add—for it's just as true as truth itself: The man who will forsake drink for his sweetheart, will never forsake it for his wife.

"WOMEN LIKE BOYS CASTING THEIR FIRST BALLOT. Comes now Mrs. Hutton with observations erudite and the present inability and unfitness of women to hold office. "Women should remember that they are like boys casting their first vote and are not capable of holding offices at the present time," quoth Mrs. Hutton. Continuing: "I would not think of supporting a woman for commissioner in case the commission form of government is adopted. Any right-minded woman will realize that she is in the class of a boy of 21 who is casting his first vote."

WILL TRY TO FIND GOLD BY MEANS OF WIRELES

MRS. FRED VAN HOUSEN.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 21.—Frederick Van Housen, his wife, and a party will plunge shortly into the wilds of Vancouver Island to find gold by means of wireless telegraphy.

Frederick Van Housen is a wireless operator who has a theory that ore interrupts the air waves sent out by a wireless instrument when the waves pass over the point where the ore is hidden. So he has formed a party that will try to prove the theory. This trip is the result of years of experiments in which he has been greatly assisted by his wife. When the trip was first talked of, Mrs. Van Housen declared that she was going with her husband into the wilds. The dangers and hardships of such a trip were pointed out to her, but the game little woman never faltered.

"I can make the trip as well as any man," declared Mrs. Van Housen, and so she's going along to assist her husband in his search for wealth.

In the wilds, stations will be set up, and when sending between two points, if it is found that the waves are interrupted, then the party will hunt for gold in that locality. The expedition will be made up of six persons, four being expert wireless operators and each will carry a portable wireless outfit, similar to the instruments now used in the army. The start will be made shortly.

End of Piano Sale in Sight

Make Up Your Mind to Buy a Piano This Week. A Small Payment Will Hold It Until Christmas for You. Fine New Pianos and Player-Pianos at Cost and Even Less.

As stated before the prices now quoted were forced upon us because the limited accommodations of our temporary store where we are located during the erection of our new building makes it necessary to keep all odd stock and slightly used pianos sold out, and right now with many carloads of new Christmas goods arriving and en route, we need room badly and must have it.

Whether you wish to pay little more than $100 for a plain upright or as much as $1000 for a magnificent grand or player-piano it will pay you to buy now.

Installation buying is the common way today and there's no doubt but that the Eilers' easy payment plan is the most liberal and accommodating in existence.

PLAYER-PIANOS REDUCED. We are introducing the most up-to-date lines of player-pianos and have on hand several new and slightly used player-pianos, including all Weber, Steck and Wheelock Pianos—prices $408, $455, $468, etc.

Even in the fact of the tremendous bargains we have heretofore offered, we declare these prices to have set a new record for us.

So widely and favorably known is Eilers Music House that to buy of us is assurance of the most for your money and we guarantee lasting satisfaction.

The Half Price Sale on Furs

Continues Tomorrow

Our fur sale started off mighty well Saturday, but the weather was so bad the latter part of the day that we are sure that many who desired to take advantage of this sale didn't come down town. So we have decided to continue it for tomorrow.

We are selling furs like this: Black and Brown Coney Furs.

- $2.30 neckpieces on sale at $1.15
$3.00 neckpieces on sale at $1.50
$5.70 shawls on sale at $2.85
$6.00 rug muffs on sale at $3.00
$66.00 black fox set on sale at $33.00

Japanese Mink Furs. $11.25 cravat on sale at $5.63
$19.50 cravat on sale at $9.75
$31.50 shawl on sale at $15.75
$19.50 pillow muff on sale at $9.75
$30.00 rug muff on sale at $15.00

Fox Neckpieces. Isabella Fox neckpieces, worth $7.50 on sale at $3.75
Isabella Fox neckpieces, worth $10, on sale at $5.00

Don't fail to see our stock of furs before making your purchases for the winter. We bought a big sample line of furs, and we bought them for a very small part of their real worth, and we are going to sell them the same way. This is a fine opportunity to get good furs at very much less than at any other Spokane store. Come in and see them, anyhow, whether you are ready to buy now or not.

Talk On Saturday Advertising

The advertiser who does not use the six-day evening paper strong on Saturday evening is overlooking something good.

The Saturday edition of the six day paper is read probably more thoroughly than any other edition of the week. Then the subscriber has more time to read it and digest it, if not on Saturday night entirely, he finishes it the next morning at his leisure.

The big, bulky, hard-to-read Sunday paper is not in favor with lots of people. They prefer to read the paper they are used to reading six days a week. They realize that the Sunday paper does not give them anything in the way of actual news that they do not get in the six day paper, for the very good reason that things which are considered news, do not as a rule occur on Sunday.

In many cities the merchants find it more profitable to use the Saturday night editions of the six day papers with large space for their Monday business than to go strongly into the Sunday editions.

In Toledo, Ohio, for instance, the News-Bee, which is the strong evening paper, carries large copy for most of the leading stores on Saturday evening for their Monday business. Leading stores of that city frequently use full pages telling of Monday store news. If it wasn't profitable it's a cinch they would not do so.

The advertisers in this paper who do not use big Saturday night space are not taking the fullest advantage of their opportunities to make the most possible profit out of their publicity.
