

HUERTA ENDS HIS 1ST YEAR AS PRESIDENT

DICTIONARY DESPITE MURDERS AND TREACHERY KEEPS HIS PLACE.

But indications are that he is slowly losing power and that his position is slipping away from him—Review of Past Events Are Given in Interesting Way.

(Written for the United Press by an American in Mexico.)

VERA CRUZ, March 5.—Just a year ago Victoriano Huerta took possession of the Mexican government and in spite of murders, treachery, oppression and the hundreds of other means he has taken to keep himself in power, each day has seen him slipping further downward on his bloody self-constructed skids. A review of the 360 and more days that Huerta has been in power discloses that on no single day has he been as strong as on the day before; there has not been a minute, in his career as dictator, that he has seen reasons for hoping that the end of his grim road would bring him peace and success.

Just a year ago the terrible "de-conna tragica," as the Mexicans call it—"the bloody ten days"—took place. Francisco Madero, who had driven Diaz from Mexico a little over a year before, set in his presidential office in the palace; Huerta was one of his generals; his ablest general, in fact. Matters were more or less peaceful in the capital, though Orozco, in the north, had turned against his old time commander, Madero, because Madero had taken into his government many of the men—"scrafters" Orozco called them—who had been associated with Diaz. But Orozco held only Juarez and Chihuahua had been hopelessly defeated by Huerta, himself, a short time before.

But, up to the palace, on the morning of February 8, marched a crowd of soldiers, headed by Gen. Reyes and Felix Diaz. Diaz had corrupted a part of the army and it had gone with him to seize the palace. Thousands of Mexican citizens filled the great park opposite the palace, as Diaz and Reyes marched up to the portals; they were onlookers of a historical event, and, in truth, one of the bloodiest events of Mexican history. Out of the portals of the palace issued a band of soldiers. Diaz and Reyes expected them to yield up the palace; that had been the plan. But somehow the plan went awry. From the gateways came a burst of bullets, from the roof of the palace came a deluge of machine gun fire. A bullet went through Reyes forehead. Soldiers fell by scores. But worst of all, the onlookers in the park were caught by the rain of death. They fell in heaps and mounds, dead and dying men, women and children. Like people in a theater fire panic, they rushed from the park, seeking the side streets, but the bullets mowed them down. Again, in the terrible history of Mexico, a dynasty was fighting for its life and what mattered the lives of a thousand or more onlookers? A thousand of them fell there under the palms and eucalyptus trees in the park. Only the dark ages show more terrible sights than that. And what is to be said of the hours that followed on that Sunday morning, when the wounded lay screaming in the sun? When physicians who passed among them were themselves wounded and killed? Or, of the next two days, when the dead were piled in mounds and burned after being covered with oil? Or, of the third day, when a gas main was punctured and the escaping gas was lighted and converted into a 26th century funeral pyre over which bodies were placed to be consumed by the gas flames? The fire from the palace drove Diaz back. Many of his men deserted. His band hurried into a side street, where they gathered around their putzled leader. "Something is wrong," said Diaz. "Those palace soldiers were to have surrendered." "What will you do now?" asked an American friend of Diaz, who came hurrying to the spot. "I must get away. We must all fly," said Diaz. "Why not go to the arsenal?" suggested the American. Diaz's face lighted. Such a move had not occurred to him. At the arsenal were all the elements necessary for fighting.

"To the arsenal," he cried out to his men. They dashed a mile through the streets on horseback and on foot. At the arsenal there were only a few soldiers. Four of them were killed by Diaz's men, and within a few moments Diaz was safe behind the heavy walls of the great stone building, surrounded by more ammunition, guns and cannon than he could use. Then began ten days of fighting, with shells flying over the city; with tens of thousands of citizens locked in their homes; with hundreds killed in the streets. "Don't worry," President Madero would tell the newspapermen who, by devious means, found their way to the palace every day. "We'll whip them soon." But on the tenth day at noon, an astonishing thing happened. A representative of General Victoriano Huerta, Madero's stand-by, the man on whom the president depended mostly for safety, marched into Madero's office in the palace and arrested him. Almost at the same time, Huerta himself, who had invited Gustavo Madero, brother of the president, to dine with him at a cafe, laid his hand on Gustavo's shoulder and said, "You're under arrest."

The dynasty of Madero had fallen. Huerta's treachery became apparent. It had been his duty to overcome Diaz; instead, he had plotted with Diaz and together they had decided to put the Maderos out of the way and take over the government themselves. The fighting ceased. Huerta was declared provisional president. The two Maderos were put in jail. The next day the news went out that Gustavo Madero had been killed. A band of soldiers had taken him into the yard of the arsenal and had said: "We'll give you a chance to run away. Now go as fast as you can."

And while he ran they had shot him dead, according to the brutal Mexican custom known as "the law of flight." The world looked on, waiting the fate of Francisco Madero. Those who know knew most of Mexican ways felt that nothing but Madero's death could be expected; the world at large could hardly believe that he would be slain. A few days later newspaper correspondents were called to the palace at midnight and informed that Madero, the former president, had been slain.

est, pay my debts, love and care for my wife and family. "A man gets no credit I tell, and deserves none for doing what the law would make him do. You don't go to heaven for doing what you ought to do. It is the divine life that puts you into connection with God. Business is better and men are better because they live in a Christian land, and eat the fruits of Christianity, and have Christian standards to live up to, and then brag of their morality and honesty, and they know if they were not so, and it was found out, it would land them in jail or ruin their business. The sceptic and scoffer ought to go to India or Mexico."

The evangelist proceeded to apply God's measuring rod to himself, the audience, and local conditions and to human affairs and conditions in general. As a measuring rod he used the ten great commands or words given to Moses on Sinai. When that was finished and men despaired to attain to its standard lest they fall down in one point of it which left them helpless at judgment, they were offered the way out through faith in Jesus Christ. Nine young men came forward to accept it. Some thoughts through Dr. Bulgin's sermon is as follows: "Since God is, and you are, he makes known that he has business with you. It was thus thinking that Dr. Hale of Yale began to think and has announced himself a Christian. "To love God with all the heart is the first and biggest commandment, therefore unbelief is the biggest sin for it sends the dagger at the very heart of God's remedy for sin, for it replaces faith, love and obedience in the heart with unbelief, envy, and disobedience. You are lost, God can't help it. "To have any thing before us as an idol in the place of God degrades both the individual and the nation. You cannot evolve a system of morals higher than your source, yourself. Idolatry is self worship, neither nation or individual will rise, yet some still say that they are their own God and can save themselves. The one who obeys not God, will soon not respect laws and becomes an anarchist. "The Sabbath rest on a seventh day is necessary, and has been demonstrated by science, both for the human system and machinery. There is a royal seven running through the world, The man who breaks God's laws, don't break the law so much as he breaks himself on the law." ## URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

danger to national life. "I never killed anybody; I don't need that law. Wait a minute. Did you ever vote for a saloon. A man fills up with booze, goes out and kills some one, you are particeps criminals accessory in the crime before the law of God. What about anger in the heart which is the root of all murder?"

"Thou shalt not steal. Many different ways to steal, short weights, small apples and potatoes in the bottom, all shows us out of harmony with God. To produce a perfect life we must be in harmony with God, like the plant is with the sun if it grows. "Bear false witness. Now let me speak to the ladies," said the speaker and the graphic picture of a real gossip brought mirth but it seemed to strike home so hard that the speaker said, "If you don't like that you can lump it."

An earnest appeal from the evangelist followed as he summed up his argument, and showed how utterly hopeless it was to be saved through the law or morality, yet how deep and real had been the love of the Christ who had died because he loved us so.

SOAP ON HAIR CAUSES DANDRUFF, SCALP GETS DRY, HAIR FALLS OUT

Girls! Boys! Get a 25 Cent Bottle and Try a "Danderrine Hair Cleanse"—Save Your Hair!

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderrine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderrine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderrine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre. Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderrine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderrine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful. Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderrine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.
