Hughes and Fairbanks Nominated Republicans Make Selection Unanimous

ALL EFFORTS TO END STRIFE ARE WITHOUT RESULT

Peace Conference Between Republicans and Progressives Come to Close Without Either Side Gaining Point.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Perkins reported to the progressive convention the result of peace conference as follows:

"We met the republican conferees and remained in conference last night until 1 o'clock. We were again asked to state a second choice candidate for president. We maintained the position that we had presented our candidate and they had not. We advanced our arguments. The republican conferees returned and asked what we thought of Hughes. We replied by asking if each desired to sign a statement endorsing Hughes. They replied no. Then we adjourned to meet again this morning. When we entered the conference, they said they had all agreed on Hughes. We took them into consideration and put it before the chairman. We decided to present their communication in this convention. The question of second choice on our part was deeply discussed. We laid the whole matter before Roosevelt last night and the colonel sent a telegram."

Roosevelt's telegram said: "I understand you have a last conference today with the republicans, but your committee has not settled upon a second choice. For months I've thought of this matter and tried to find a common standing ground. Can't we forget past differences and find a common ground to express our Americanism? I appreciate your loyalty to me and realize that this loyalty is a loyalty to principles for which we both stand. In view of the existing conditions I suggest the name of Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts. He is a man of highest integrity and broadest national spirit and has a close knowledge of naval affairs. He understands and supported preparedness, the upbuilding of the navy and army and the protection of the Panama canal. He stood for progressive legislation like the pure food law, the labor bureau and other laws. If you agree with me, lay this telegram before both conventions. Let me again read my telegram of Thursday."

We here repeated part of the Jackson telegram on nationalism. "I believe the nomination of Lodge will meet the vital needs of the nation. I ask you to do what you can to bring about his nomination, in the name of common Americanism."

W-W-F-F!
The natorium is going to be opened tomorrow for those who care to take a cool plunge. Though the weather so far has not created any great demand for a refuge from the heat, there have been a number of the younger "waterdogs" howling for the opening of the pool and the council committee has decided to try them out.

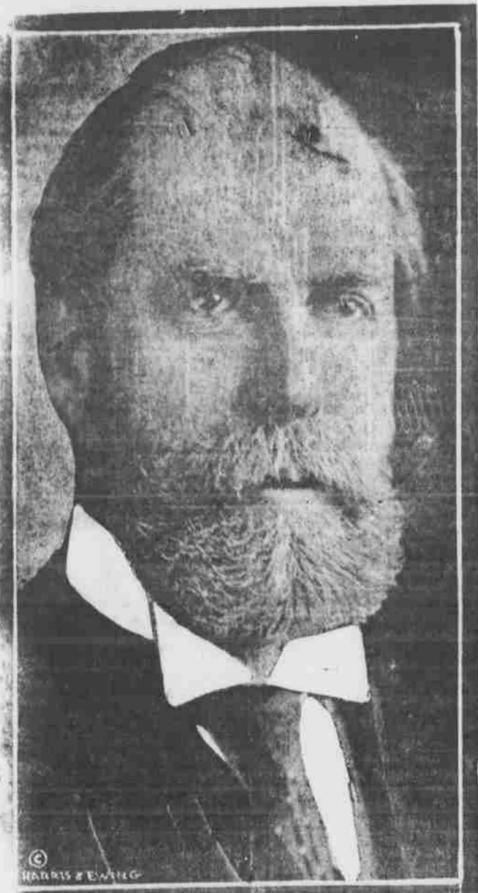

The pool will be filled tonight and tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the gates will be thrown open to whomsoever wants to swim. Some member of the committee will be in charge.

Extra ROOSEVELT REFUSES TO ACCEPT THE NOMINATION

CHICAGO, June 10.—IT WAS ANNOUNCED HERE THIS AFTERNOON THAT ROOSEVELT HAS REFUSED TO ACCEPT THE PROGRESSIVE NOMINATION, "AT THIS TIME."

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.
WASHINGTON, June 10.—At 4:10 o'clock this afternoon President Wilson accepted the resignation of Justice Hughes from the supreme bench.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 10.—Fairbanks had not decided this afternoon whether to accept the republican vice-presidential nomination. He may make a statement tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Hughes telegraphed Harding this afternoon his acceptance of the nomination, endorsing the republican platform and announcing that he stands for preparedness. He criticized the Wilson administration.

America Urged to Act.
LONDON, June 10.—The Daily Graphic, discussing the alleged hardships of British prisoners in Germany suggests that the prisoners of all the belligerent nations be transferred to neutral countries and be paid for the respective governments.

The Graphic urges the United States to take up the matter to the extent of making a special appeal to the German government to agree to such an arrangement.

Hughes Shows He Has a Smile When Informed That He has Been Chosen By Republicans

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Washington realized for the first time today that Hughes has a real smile. When informed of his nomination he seemed to discard his judicial bearing without losing a whit of his dignity. He beamed at the reporters and called them "You boys" as he shook hands cordially. He admitted he "had not seen as much of the newspaper boys as he wanted to since coming to Washington."
Immediately after the result was known, Hughes shut himself in his study with his secretary, Lawrence Green, to dictate a reply to Harding's notification telegram. Hughes dispatched the following message:
"To the President—I hereby resign the office of associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. Respectfully, Charles Evan Hughes."
The following reply went to Harding:
"Chairman and delegates: I have not desired the nomination. I have

East Oregonian is First to Flash the News of Convention

BULLETINS POSTED AS SOON AS MESSAGE IS RECEIVED AT NEWS ROOM.

News of the presidential nominations made in Chicago this morning was received with varying degrees of satisfaction and disappointment by Pendleton people.

The republican leaders are highly pleased at the nomination of Hughes as the standard bearer of their party though they do not like the prospect of Roosevelt leading a third party again. They declare that the only chance that the colonel will have of ever again securing republican recognition is for him to refuse the progressive nomination and fall in line for Hughes. The choice of Fairbanks as Hughes' running mate is not very pleasant to local republicans. "They could have picked a better vote getter," is the consensus of opinion.

Roosevelt admirers in this city are not entirely pleased with the situation. His most ardent local followers are still for him, republican, progressive or nothing, but some of those who were for him strong if he could get a united support are inclined to stand by the party choice.

As for the democratic warhorses, they are smiling a smile of confidence. With Hughes and Roosevelt both in the running they declare Wilson's victory will be an easy one. However they assert strongly that Wilson could defeat either one or both.

The first news of the nomination of Hughes and Roosevelt was received in a flash to the East Oregonian this morning within a few moments after the counting of the ballots. A bulletin was posted at once at the Welch cigar store and soon the whole town new of the choice of the two parties.

BULLETINS
CHICAGO, June 10.—The nomination of Hughes is made unanimous.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Weeks, Burton, Du Pont and Cummins withdrew on the third rollcall in favor of Hughes.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The progressives nominated Roosevelt unanimously.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Hughes formally resigned from the supreme court.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The republican convention adjourned at 2:01 p. m. Chairman Harding announced that Hughes had accepted the nomination.

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 10.—Charles E. Hughes was chosen the republican standard-bearer of the republicans this afternoon on the third ballot. Vote 949 1/2 out of a possible 987 ballots. Roosevelt, his nearest competitor, polled only eighteen and a half. Soon afterward the convention chose Fairbanks as the vice presidential nominee.

Illinois was the first state to withdraw her favorite son in Hughes' favor. Others clamored aboard the bandwagon in a regular scramble as soon as the convention met. The selection of Hughes came after Roosevelt had made a last hour attempt to swing Lodge as a compromise candidate of the progressives and republicans.

After the uproar following the nomination had subsided, Alexander Moore of Pennsylvania moved to make the nomination unanimous. It was carried. Sherman, Weeks, Fairbanks, Burton, Cummins, Brumbaugh and DuPont successively withdrew in favor of Hughes. Stevenson of Colorado, announced that all the Roosevelt delegates were released from their obligation to vote for the colonel.

Harding telegraphed Hughes as follows: "With deliberation and enthusiasm and under circumstances which could not have been more complimentary and with an unanimity never expected, you have been nominated by the republicans as candidate for president of the United States. Voicing the sentiment of the convention over which I presided, I congratulate you and the country upon the outcome of the convention."

Wanamaker of Philadelphia, nominated Fairbanks; Baldrige of Nebraska, nominated Elmer Burkett. These were the only vice-presidential nominations. The official vote was: Fairbanks 863, Burkett 108, Borah 8, Johnson 1, Burton 1, Webster 2. The nomination of Fairbanks thereafter was made unanimous.

The convention adjourned at 2:02 p. m. Harding announced a reply from Hughes, accepting the nomination was coming.

It was perfectly apparent soon after convening that the republicans proposed to run their own steamroller over Roosevelt's aspirations. Brief but roof-raising applause followed the announcement of the result of the third ballot. California and Oregon led a parade with banners.

Massachusetts gave 32 of the 36 votes for Hughes. Governor McCall explained that although the delegates appreciated the fitness of Lodge nevertheless they felt that the spirit of the convention was for Hughes. Willis of Ohio, concurred, withdrawing Burton's name.

After Wanamaker nominated Fairbanks, Kentucky, Maine and Ohio seconded it. Balloting started quickly after Burkett was nominated. The Oregon delegates split, voting as follows: Fairbanks 7, Borah 1, Webster 2. These were the only votes that Webster received. Washington voted solidly for Fairbanks.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The republican national committee will meet Monday to elect a chairman to conduct Hughes' campaign. There is a strong feeling that Hilles will be reelected, but it is believed that Hitchcock could land the post if he launched a fight. Hitchcock said he was not a candidate.

Progressives Nominate T. R.

AUDITORIUM, Chicago, June 10.—Roosevelt was nominated as progressive candidate for president by acclamation at 12:53 o'clock, two minutes after the republicans nominated Hughes.
The nomination came in the face of the colonel's own recommendation that the progressives and republicans, unite on Lodge. Hedlam broke loose when the chairman suspended the rules, called for the nomination and announced the result all within a minute.
Bainbridge Colby of New York, made the nominating speech and Johnson seconded it. Anxious to nominate Roosevelt before the republicans nominated Hughes, Johnson and Colby urged haste. They jockeyed about waiting for word from the republicans. The Bull Moose were unable to finish the nomination until two minutes after Hughes was chosen at the Coliseum.
The peace conferences came to naught, although the committees conferred until early this morning and met again before the conventions convened. The republicans suggested Hughes and the progressives decided to lay his name before their convention, but it was too late to effect a compromise.
Immediately after Roosevelt's nomination, Johnson telephoned him, urging him to make a statement accepting the progressive nomination.
