the following note to Justice Stringham, of MAJOR SWEETSER, Placerville: Monday, May 9th, 1864.

T. J. Strangham—Honorable Sir: Through an amanuensis, I wish to notify you of an altercation in which I had the misfortune to be one of the principals, resulting in the death of Martin Partin, of the Central Ferry, and the wounding of myself, and which I wish to have investigated in your court. My injuries are such that I am not able to report to you in person.

His Honor convened some kind of a court at the Central Ferry on Wednesday morning, and two or three witnesses were sworn and examined, although the affair was witnessed by perhaps over a dozen spectators. As Mr. Favorite seems anxious that the case should DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, BOOTS & be sifted to the bottom legally, it is thought the following interrogatories may not be out of place: 1st, Is there any precedent for a of place: 1st, is there any precedent for a court becoming a portable institution, and moving after causes, instead of causes coming to it? 2d, Is there any authority in our stat-A FULL and complete assortment of desirable goods will be kept constantly on hand, and For Sale at the Lowest Market Rates. utes for a Justice of the Peace acting, ex offi-cio, as a Coroner? 3d, If such is not the case, how did his Honor do so in this case? (It must have been in the character of an inquest that witnesses were sworn and jurymen duly impaneled, as Mr. Favorite was not cited to appear and answer any charge.) 4th, If there is such authority, how can an inquest be held on a body after its burial? (This was done in this instance.) Mr. Editor, it is simply to promote justice that I ask these questions, and not to show any disrespect to his Honor. Let the law befully vindicated.

Grant; accompanied by his staff, Meade, Hancock and Warren, all started for the eminence, within sight of each other, while vast columns of our army slowly gathered together for the great struggle. Just as the attack was about to be made, the enemy advanced our right, threatening to press back that portion of the line, disconcerting for the time, the plan of assault. Trops were hurried to the right, and succeded in checking the rebels. Half past six was then fixed upon for the assault. Watches were compared by the corps commanders. They finally separated with orders that at an appointed hour, simultaneously, with the fire of 12 guns, the whole line should advance with cheers. The movement was indescribably grand. A portion of the army moved in a solid column, while others advanced in the usual order of battle; the whole army moving together, Favorite, one of the proprietors of this establishment, that is of Bluff Station and Payette Ferry, below the Basin, on the main line of travel to Grand Ronde and points on the Last Winter, Mr. Favorite bought a half interest in this ranch, stage station and ferry, and immediately started below to see about the transportation of a stock of merchandiseorder of battle; the whole army moving together, and yet each command fighting its own battles, when the robel army opened a most galling and mountain snows in the Spring,-his partner obtained of the Central Ferry Company a when the robel army opened a most galling and murderous fire, against which our lines marched on, and driving the enemy steadily back from the position, capturing nearly 3,000 prisoners and 10 pieces of artillery; the latter were however, frequentured by the rebels. Night closed with our forces occupying the field.
