Better Prices Should Prevail.

Foreign crop reports add favorably to the anticipation American farmers have that wheat prices will be higher. In Germany the cereal crop will not support home consumption and export is needed the estimate being 3,000,000 tons of wheat, 1,000,000 tons of rye, and Germany engaged in a commercial war with the United States is placed in the embarrassing position of having to rescind some of her laws recently passed and seek food stuffs at the only market where a surplus is to be had for export.

Russia, the other great source of European supply, has the greatest crop shortage known in many years. Want and privation will reign in many of the Russian provinces this winter and since the publication of the crop reports active measures have begun in organizing for relief for the famine stricken district.

America has a large wheat crop, almost the greatest known but the home demand was never better. Labor is employed in the largest measure in the various industries of the land and the American laborer always furnishes the best market for the products of the American farmer. The strength of the home market coupled with the foreign demand will undoubtedly tend to raise prices. The outlook is at least greatly encouraging.

Idaho is Next.

The restoration of the West to the Republican party is now practically complete. Utah is undoubtedly Republican, as is Colorado; while the return of Senator Jones as well as Stewart to the Republican party is an indication of the temper of Nevada. The Republican vote in Nebraska shows a handsome increase at each election. There is not a dark spot on the map west of the Mississippi and north of Missouri, except Montana and Idaho. At the next resort of the people to the polls we expect to see those two commonwealths come in out of the wet and make the Republican family reunion complete.—Post Intelligence.

Reformers Need Reform.

Everything went Republican again this year only more so than ever. It accentuates the fact that the party of opposition must revise itself. The temper of the people today is against a party of obstruction, and for one of constructive policy. There is no longer room for the carper and fault finder. The question is, what can you do? And no interest is taken in the complaint that the other fellow has failed.—Caldwell Tribune.

The people of the nation once more emphatically announce their approval of Republican politics and of their administration through the party's chosen representatives. Nothing can shake that confidence short of some act of folly, which will not be committed, or some great wave of national unrest of which there is no sign, and for which there could be no reason. The people are prosperous, happy and content. They have transferred without qualification to President Roosevelt that loyal and affectionate confidence that they felt in President McKinley. Again, the commission of the Republican party to direct the fortunes of the nation has been ratified by the people, and most faithfully will be discharged.

President Roosevelt's proclamation appointing November 28th as a day of national thanksgiving departs somewhat from established phraseology. In place of the usual formula, a feeling of reference to the death of President McKinley is followed by the statement that "the manner of his death should awaken in the breasts of the people a keen anxiety for the country, and at the same time a resolute purpose not to be driven by any calamity from the path of strong, orderly, popular liberty which as a nation we have thus far safely trod." Another characteristically direct statement concludes the document: "We can best prove our thankfulness to the Almighty by the way in which on this earth and this time each of us does his duty to his fellow-men."

There does not seem to be anything the matter with Nebraska. Like Kansas she seems to have settled down permanently in the republican ranks having decided to cast her lot with the party of progress and prosperity. In the late campaign the fusionists hoped to profit by crop failure and again raised the calamity howl, but the prosperity of the people as reflected in the statement of the banks robbed fusion of all hopes. In the past year the increase in deposits in the Nebraska banks has been upwards of $2,500,000. Never in the history of the state have bank deposits been so great. Money is in poor demand for loans and bankers complain of low rates of interest. This is the wave of prosperity that carries Nebraska safely into the republican ranks and against which the wall of fusion cannot prevail.

The Illinois supreme court has decided that Chicago corporations must pay their share of the taxes and that share must be assessed on the market value of the stock of the corporation. This decision follows the precedent laid down in several other eastern states where the question of taxation of franchises has come up for solution. The general policy is that a franchise should be assessed at the market value of the stock plus the bonded indebtedness.

It must be cheering news to Idaho's new democracy to hear that Senator Dubois, their leader, has decided to be a free lance in Congress with a strong leaning toward the republican party. Dubois left the republican party on issues that are no longer pertinent he staid out long enough to be returned to power on the last flood tide of reform and he is seeking new anchorage.

A little advance in the price opens the farmers wheat bins to the warehousemen. At 45 cents per bushel over a million bushels were sold at Pendleton last Saturday. At 50 cents the flood gates would open and the returns would make a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year for the homes of the Inland Empire.

Senator Dubois will have to use a ready letter writer to keep pace with the correspondence his democratic followers will inaugurate with reference to his "free lance" attitude as announced by Washington dispatches.

Kansas seems to have the real thing in the line of desperados. Nothing since the days of "Bleeding Kansas" has surpassed the chase and recapture of the fugitive convicts who escaped from the state penitentiary.

The success of French diplomacy in Turkey is due to the presence of French war ships in the Sutan's ports. Having disclosed the weak spot in the Turkman's armor other nations will join in the hold-up game.

England's vigorous campaign in South Africa is outdone by her vigorous campaign to secure funds to prosecute the war.

What Dubois will Do.

A Washington dispatch of recent date gives some startling news regarding the attitude of Senator Dubois on the issues of the day. The tenor of the matter is that Dubois will be a free lance in Congress and will not hesitate on some issues to affiliate with the Republicans. The correspondent says: Having six years before him, and being free to act without regard to strict party lines, his position during his term will be practically that of a free lance. With the silver issue, if not dead certainly in a very quiescent state, and with a strong republican congress, to which Idaho must of necessity look for favors, it is highly probable that the senator will affiliate to some extent with the majority. Having once served as a republican it would be strange were he to do otherwise.

In the discussion of public questions because of his peculiar position he will have greater latitude than many of his colleagues and he may be dependent upon to exercise it.

One of the most important subjects and the one to which Senator Dubois promises to devote a great deal of attention this winter is that of national legislation for arid lands in the west. While not an advocate of federal appropriations for this purpose, he is inclined to favor somewhat the Newlands plan of allowing the states to use the proceeds of the sale of public lands under proper guarantees from the states to build irrigation plants and utilize available reservoir sites for the storage of flood waters.

As a resident of long standing in a region where only water is needed to make the desert blossom as the rose, Senator Dubois can speak wisely and to the point to his brother senators.

Open a Rich Territory.

A project is on foot in the south end of the county to build a road up the North Fork of the Clearwater from Ahsahka. It would reach a country now almost inaccessible, which aside from his white pine, of which so much has been heard, will in time become a great fruit and stock raising district, and contains rich promise of mineral wealth. Thousands of people will build themselves prosperous homes there before many years, and the building of the road will greatly hasten the time when the country will have been brought under the sway of civilization.—Wallace Press.

McKinley's First Diplomatic Victory.

The first social incident of President McKinley's first administration was his granting Vice President Hobart precedence over the Ambassadors. Lord Pauncefote is known to have reported this innovation to his Foreign Office, which is said to have thereupon inquired into the custom of other countries. It was eventually agreed that Mr. Hobart should be regarded as the heir to the Presidency and therefore on the same social footing with the crown princes of European monarchies, whose social rank is second only to that of the heads of state, their royal parents.—November Ladies' Home Journal.

Future of Pacific Coast.

Capital is going into the Pacific coast states and will undoubtedly be attracted there more largely in the next few years. Far-seeing financiers are planning large projects in connection with the trade of the Orient which promises to greatly stimulate the development of Pacific coast resources. The outlook for progress in that section was never more favorable than it is at this time. This is evidently understood by the people of those states and to promote their progress and prosperity they should support those commercial politics which changed conditions show to be necessary. As to what these are there is no better statement than that contained in the last public utterance of the late President McKinley.—Omaha Bee.
