Democratic Nominees.

SHERIFF—S. T. SMITH.
TREASURER—T. F. BISHOP.

The next representative from Hardeman county must come out openly and promise to vote for Senator Bate, and he must carry out that promise.

SENATOR Bate lost Davidson County, but he has carried several other counties since the primary was held there. His friends are now on their mettle.

The democrats of Hardeman county are called to meet in mass convention here Saturday to send delegates to the Congressional convention to be held in Memphis.

Hobson can sink ships, but he cannot defeat a good man for office. He made a mistake in opposing Bankhead, who was renominated for Congress in Alabama Monday by a safe majority, as he should have seen.

The counties of Haywood, Hardeman and Chester, which compose this Floterial District, have all endorsed Senator Bate. The nominee of the convention, which meets in Bolivar in August next, must pledge himself to vote for Bate.

MR. SENTER has withdrawn from the race for Railroad Commissioner. He had a majority of the vote of West Tennessee, which section of the state is, by consent, entitled to the office, but Enloe manipulated matters in the other divisions in advance of West Tennessee's action.

The republicans are compelled to make a showing. They have nominated a candidate for Governor, Mr. Littleton. Also, a candidate for Congress from this district, Mr. Matthews, of Memphis, formerly of East Tennessee. Both will be defeated.

The Twenty-sixth Senatorial District, is composed of the counties of Benton, Decatur, Hardin, Hardeman and McNairy. Only one county in the district, Benton, has endorsed Benton McMillin (on account of the name, perhaps.) Decatur county will hold a primary in August to decide the Senatorial question. The other counties have spoken for Bate. The Senator from this district, if he respects the will of the majority, will vote for Bate.

BATE AHEAD.

[From Nashville American.]

Speaking of the result of the primary election in Davidson County, one of Senator Bate's supporters at his headquarters said: "We had great confidence in the result of the primary and thought we were entirely justified by all the circumstances and the expressions given out by the citizens of the county, believing that the county would instruct for Gen. Bate. Occurrences took place, however, which changed the result from that which was anticipated. These might well be discussed with considerable force, but it is not necessary to do so now. It was a hard fought battle, the opposition being very strongly organized. The general result is that Mr. McMillin has carried the county and will receive its votes. We will look at it as the matter now stands."

"Six Senatorial districts have instructed for Senator Bate as follows: The Second, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-ninth, and Thirty-first. He has received instructions in the Second, Fourteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Floterial Districts. This gives him twelve votes from the Senatorial and Floterial Districts. Bate has received positive instructions in the following counties which have Representatives proper in the General Assembly: Crockett, Dyer, Fayette, Hawkins, Haywood, Hardeman, Landerdale, Lawrence, McNairy, Monroe, Overton, Rutherford, Sullivan, Sumner and Tipton, a total of fifteen. This added to the above twelve gives the Senator twenty-seven votes in the caucus to which he can safely claim a perfect title. Now in addition he has three votes upon which he can count with perfect safety. In the twelfth Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Maury, Lewis, and Perry, Mr. Schubert, the nominee of Lewis County, which is entitled to the Senator, was elected as an avowed Bate supporter, and he has been endorsed by Perry County. Maury, the other county, has not as yet taken any action in the matter. Both of the nominees for the legislature in Robertson County, D. E. Garrett, the candidate for the Senate, and Charles H. Love, the candidate for the House, were nominated after they had declared upon the stump that they were for the reelection of Senator Bate, and the same is true of Mr. McKenzie, who was April 7 nominated in Henry County for Senator. There have been no instructions direct upon the Senatorial question as yet in the two counties and it is therefore proper that these four votes should be counted for Bate. Including the four votes just referred to, Senator Bate has now thirty-one votes already nominated or instructed.

"All of the counties above enumerated are Democratic, and in addition the following counties which are Republican or doubtful, have instructed for Senator Bate: Roane, Carter, Washington, Hamblen and Bradley. It is very probable that Washington County will elect a Democrat this year, as it has been carried by Gen. Bate in former campaigns. Cheatham County, which is in the floterial district with Robertson and Williamson, will in all probability be conceded the Representative this year, in which event Gen. Bate will receive that vote, as Cheatham County instructed for him. Adding all his votes together, the 27 absolutely certain, the 4 where decided preferences have been expressed by the people but no instructions given, and the other two where his chances are excellent, and he has a total of 33 votes.

"Outside of Davidson Mr. McMillin has only four votes certain. These, added to Davidson give him 13. Benton County, which he carried, only shares in a vote with Decatur. Knox County, where six votes are claimed, is being warmly contested by citizens there; and, besides that, it only has three direct Representatives and a Senator, whilst it shares two other votes with other counties which are for Bate. But even should he get 6 votes there, Mr. McMillin would have only 19, against the 33 for Bate.

"Should there be 100 Democrats in the next Legislature, then 51 would be a majority of the caucus, Gen. Bate is now only 18 votes short of that number, on the basis above stated.

"There remain a sufficient number of Democratic counties which have not yet acted (but most of which will act next August) to elect 46 or 50 additional members of the Democratic caucus. If the number to be elected be 48, then Mr. McMillin in order to win, must get 32 of them. Even should he already have 19 now, which is disputed, Senator Bate will be elected if he gets only 18 more votes than he appears to have pledged at present.

"These members, not yet indicated, must come from the following counties: Franklin, Moore, Bedford, Coffee, White, Putnam, Wilson, Jackson, Houston, Stewart, Dickson, Montgomery, Hickman, Maury, Giles, Williamson, Lincoln, Marshall, Cannon, DeKalb, Lake, Greene, Hamilton, Gibson, Henry, Madison, Obion, Weakley and Shelby. Out of these, to be elected, Bate must get 18 and McMillin 32."

There was a jubilant crowd at Gen. Bate's headquarters Saturday night when the returns from the Lincoln-Marshall primaries came in. This is the first primary held since Senator Bate's defeat in Davidson County and was naturally very gratifying to his supporters, who claim that it proves that the result in this county will have the opposite effect from what was claimed by the opposition. They now insist that instead of their candidate's failure to carry this county injuring his chances it has really proved a blessing in disguise, as it has stirred his friends to greater activity and they are more than ever determined that the old soldier shall be returned to the Senate. It was stated at Gen. Bate's headquarters that the result of Saturday's election added four votes to his column increasing his vote, so it is claimed, to 37. Both Lincoln and Marshall have a representative proper and together compose the Nineteenth Senatorial District. Lincoln County is in the floterial district with Bedford and Moore counties, neither of which have acted upon the Senatorial question, but both are claimed for Bate, hence the statement that Saturday's victory will add four votes to his list.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Which is the democratic party, and what are its tenets and its platform? Is it Cleveland, Carlisle & Co., and the small contingent which followed the Palmer and Buckner bolt, and those that strayed off to the McKinley camp; or the six millions who stood "pat" on the Kansas City platform and fought the battles of 1900 against the allied forces of the republican party both in 1896 and 1900, with the assistance of the national administrations, trusts and manufacturing combines, and the disaffected from the democratic ranks? If Cleveland & Co. be the unalloyed, and you or I have any doubt of the genuineness of our democracy, let us bottle up a sample, hermetically sealed, and send it to them for analysis. There were six millions of them rejected in 1900, and only two or three hundred thousand of them of the right brand, according to that tribunal. Why are Mr. Bryan's sins so heinous—because he refused to "harrah" for Mr. Cleveland? Did Cleveland do so for him? But they say he must yield to the behests of his party. Did Mr. Cleveland do so, even while he was exercising the functions of the chief magistrate of the nation? Well, you might say that was the reason, but did he in 1900 when he stood for himself only? Now, if Mr. Bryan be guilty, Mr. Cleveland is doubly so on that score. What is there so obnoxious about the Kansas City platform that democrats should be ashamed of it? The present administration is trying to expand the currency in every conceivable way outside of free silver, by giving greater scope to the bank, by issuance of the U. S. bonds deposited of national currency to the amount of their face value, by the assistant currency scheme, etc., for its pet money barons. Anything except the bug bear free silver to give volume to the currency sufficient for the demands of trade. Shame for the democratic party that it should thus retrench! Because it had been beaten once, twice or forty times, if the dictum be right stand to it though the heavens fall. Or is imperialism right? Do we have to confess that the United States has a right to subjugate every petty kingdom or republic far and near that is weaker than she? Are there good and bad trusts, and shall we give way to their encroachments until all competition is a useless factor in the commodities of the world, for fear we might strike down one of the good trusts? Is tariff for revenue only a subterfuge, introduced merely to catch votes, injected into our party to render us different from the republican party? No, it is right; it is for the protection of the poor and needy against the pampered manufacturers and monopolies. Government by injunction? Is it a thing to be desired, not to be judged by the peers, but to be esopped by the restraining force of one man, if we are legion? These are some of the planks inserted in the Kansas City platform, enunciated by the democratic party in national convention assembled: Anti-imperialism, anti-trust and monopolies, free silver at ratio of 16 to 1, and tariff for revenue only. These or at least some of them were what frightened Cleveland so that he alighted himself to another party and threw the force of his administration in 1896 against the free silver plank, and in 1900 himself against all, as set forth in the Kansas City platform. Now Mr. Bryan must kiss the feet of the vicegerent of democracy in the person of Grover Cleveland and ask his forgiveness for his presumptions and for the sins of the six millions who followed him astray. Oh, take us back under your fatherly wing, for you are the personification of true democracy! We have been so undutiful and churlish toward him who knoweth the right way! We believed free silver to be right in 1896 and talked it and preached it as well as Mr. Bryan. If we were wrong then, we may be wrong in any of our deliverances. Then what is the use of alighting ourselves to any party if we advocated a thing so absurd and foolish as some say free silver is now. If free silver be absurd and foolish, I have no hope for the democratic party any more; nor any respect for my political opinion on any tenet, for we had more light by the best debaters of erudite statesmanship on that one subject than any other in the scope of my memory. So if I were mistaken in that instance, I surrender to the powers that be and contend no longer.

On account of the very unfavorable weather, our farmers are a little backward about their crops. Col. Geo. Bradford visited Fulton, Ky., last week.

Miss Lucie Dorris, of Bolivar, and Miss Fannie Watson, of Dorris, were the guests of Miss Dora Dorris Saturday and Sunday.

Solon McDaniel, of Hickory Valley, passed through our city recently.

The Bolivar military boys passed through on the Local last week, enroute to Jackson. While the train was switching they alighted for a few minutes and drilled. We were glad to see the boys. Hope they will come again soon.

bright little children blest this union, the oldest a boy of seven, the two youngest little girls. In the nine short years of her married life we had the pleasure of being in her company and her home a great deal and was so deeply bound to her by the strongest ties of affection that we can truthfully say that we knew Rosie well, and to know her was to love her. She was a true, earnest christian, having joined the Methodist church several years ago. She was a kind, gentle and affectionate wife, a devoted mother, always trying to train her children in the right way; she was kind and sympathetic, never spoke ill of any one, and tried to make those around her happy. If there was one characteristic of her life more prominent than another, it was that of thoughtfulness and kindness to those in distress. Ministering to the wants and needs of the unfortunate was her greatest delight. So the hearts that are bowed down in sorrow be comforted with this thought: that Rosie dreaded not death but bravely met its cold embrace with the sweetest smiles. Always remember the sweet influence of her life, and rejoice that heaven has higher and nobler attractions than earth. To the heart broken husband, who with the watchful care of two physicians, and the helping hands of many friends, did everything he could to save her from death, look away from the pale face as you saw her last, and center your thoughts on the happy reunion you will have on the other shore. And the three little children, who begged so pitifully at the grave for their mother to be carried back home, may they live to the age that they can understand and realize why death is, and may they be so reared that they may be prepared to meet their mother in the better home, where suffering and sorrow are unknown, where there will be no more parting and never a tear drop fall.
