What We Think.

Nobody has as yet set up a repair shop for broken resolutions.

I some women used as much care in picking out a husband as they do in selecting a hat there would be fewer divorces in this country.

The groom hopes no one finds out they are just married; the bride wants to shout it aloud.

And the man who can never tell a story twice alike wonders why newspapers sometimes get things twisted.

The only way some people can keep out of an argument is to talk to themselves.

Before marriage he used to want her to hang onto his arm whenever they went for a walk; now he walks three paces in front of her and growls because she can't keep up.

Some men are noted for their good judgement—others try to argue with th ir wives.

Don't think your wife is a fool. The neighbors may have thought the same thing when she married you.

If some men could hear their own funeral sermon they would wonder who the preacher was talking about.

When most of us get what we ask for, we're sorry we didn't ask for more.

Another thing we've noticed is that it's the the things we have for sale that always drop in price and the things we have to buy that raise.

He may be as homely as a mud fence and have been passed up by half the other girls in town, but that doesn't seem to keep the newley-engaged girl from thinking that rest of the girls are trying to steal him from her.

Deaf, dumb and blind girl who hears with her fingers and tells colors by smell, ought to be able to tell if boot-leg whisky contain's wood alcohol.

Charlie Chaplin said at a Los Angeles reception: "My very best compliment was made to me by a little Philadelphia girl. One evening after her prayers were finished, she turned to her mother and asked: "Mama will I go to heaved when I die?" "Yes, dear if you are good and always do what mama tells you." "And will you go to heaven when you die, mama?" "Yes, of course." "And will papa go to heaven?" "I—er hope so, darling." "Mama will Charlie Chaplin go to heaven when he dies?" "Oh, I guess so." The little girl in her long white night gown clapped her hands and jumped up and down ecstatically: "Oh, mama, she said, 'won't God laugh!'"

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.
