Death of Rev. Peter Anderson, a Prominent Baptist Preacher—Other News and Comment.

To the "News".
Uncle Peter Anderson, an old and esteemed citizen and pioneer of the mountain died here last week. Rev. Peter Anderson was an ordained minister of the Primitive Baptist Church and had been for nearly 40 years. He leaves a wife, two sons, William and Thomas J. Anderson, and three daughters. Your correspondent is not acquainted with the daughters, but all are married ladies and well respected. His last words were to his wife when asked if there was anything in his way, he said: "There is nothing in my way and it will only be a little space until I will be happy, happier than any mortal ever could be on earth. I'm so happy now I feel like shouting but I haven't got the strength." He wanted all to live so they could meet him in glory. Is this not a fine testimony for a man or woman to leave behind them. T. B. Lankford held funeral services at the cemetery five miles east of Tracy City. All have our deepest sympathy for their loss and we advise them to live as Uncle Peter lived, so they can be able to die as he did, in the full triumph of a living God.

Rev. Stroud, pastor of the M. E. Church, south, was in Nashville a few days last week.

Hon. A. H. Woodlee and daughter, Miss Hallie, of Altamont, passed through here Saturday, on their way home from Chattanooga, where they had been to see medical advisors. Miss Hallie had some teeth extracted some time ago which has affected her eyes very much, and it is feared nothing can be done for them. We are very sorry for her as she is such a charming young lady and is just now in the "full grown roses" of life.

What is the matter with Sequatchie County? $1000 spent for "joy water" in Dunlap, and yet the sheriff is digging coal for a livelihood?

Rev. W. B. Cates and daughter, Miss Mary, of Tullahoma, were visiting Wm. L. Brown's family Friday and Saturday. Bro. Cates returned to Montevallo and his daughter will spend a week with friends here.

Mr. F. L. Kellner, a brewer of Louisville, Ky., in closing a letter to a friend in regards to his daughter, little Alma, who had been kidnapped or killed the last week in December, said: "God alone knows what these long, long days have been to us, and how we beg for our child." Alma, eight years of age, disappeared one morning as effectually as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up. Every effort has been made to discover her alive or dead. If the parents knew the child was dead they would have greater ease and perhaps not so great a sorrow, as when they are driven between the hope of one moment, which they scarcely dare to hope, and the fear of the next. Despairing of finding her alive, scores of men have been searching underground vaults and basins. It is said the Louisville police consulted mediums and clairvoyants. Such a measure is much to the disgrace of the city, yet it shows that the officers have hearts and would do anything reasonable or senseless to help restore the missing child. When a home is disrupted so suddenly and so unexpectedly, it is time for every sympathetic heart to show its kindness. It does not matter what the nature of the home into which the sorrow has come, the vacant chair, the unused toys, the stilled voice, the curtains lowered to keep out the light, all tell their tale of distress and suffering. Every soul knowing the worth of prayer should unite his petition to those of others that the missing child might be restored to its parents, and that their domestic joy may be made complete on account of the restoration. Far be it from anyone to harrow the feelings of the mourning family, and yet at such a time a manufacturer of liquor may be more open to conviction of what is wrong and right than at any other time. We fancy that we can hear the voice of a childless mother repeating the same words, "God alone knows what these long, long days have been to us, and how we beg for our child." Where is the child? Not kidnapped, but gone to his long home because of the output of the breweries of Louisville, perhaps the one belonging to this same man mourning for a stolen or murdered child. In nearly a hundred thousand homes in the United States the inmates may repeat the same words, "God alone knows what these long, long days have been to us, and how we beg for our child, our brother, our father, our husband." Strong drink is the great life destroyer. It respects neither age nor youth. It has regard neither for riches nor poverty. It seeks only the satisfaction of blasting the hopes of life, of ruining character, of depriving of money that coffers might be filled. I do not believe that this fearful incident in Louisville, Ky., is the judgement of God upon the manufacturer of intoxicating liquor. God would not send a judgement upon a home which would involve the fate of an innocent child. The God we worship does not mete out punishment in that way. Little Alma Kellner has disappeared, not because of God's righteous judgement, but because of man's unrighteous acts. The wickedness of man always stands opposed to the goodness of God. But it is the conditions in the Louisville home and their similarity to conditions in a hundred thousand homes in the United States that causes me to draw this comparison, and the further fact that the business in which Mr. Kellner is engaged helps to render other homes as sad, and as sorrowful, and apparently as Godforsaken as his own seems to be when the circle is broken and the hearts are paralyzed with poignant grief. Now would be the most opportune time to reform and to show an appreciation of other people's sympathy by discontinuing a business which causes so many homes to cry out, "God alone knows what these long, long days have been to us, and how we beg for our child."

Now for a cat story. When ye writer left Montevallo for Dunlap, Sequatchie Co., Tenn., Sept. 21, 1909, he carried his big cat, "Mouser", with him on the train, via Bridgeport, Ala., and kept him in Dunlap until Dec. 6 a few days before I moved from there, Dec. 10, to Tracy City. Yesterday, on returning home from my shoe shop, I found "Mouser" at my home here, and I was truly glad to see him. He has travelled across Cumberland mountain and came to my home where he had never been before in his life. It is remarkable.

A Wild Blizzard Raging
brings danger, suffering—often death—to thousands, who take colds, coughs and grippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed-up" nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-gripping cough. When Grip attacks, as you value your life, don't delay getting cures. Dr. King's New Discovery. "One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Dunn, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being 'hid up' three weeks with Grip." For sore lungs, hemorrhages, coughs, colds, whooping cough, bronchitis, Asthma, its supreme. 50c, $1.00. Guaranteed by Whitwell Drug Co., Whitwell.

Residence Burned.
DUNLAP, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Dunlap had a small fire early this morning. A house occupied by Heyton Smith was totally destroyed, together with all the household furniture and $50 in money. Mrs. Smith and child had a narrow escape, as the house was about ready to fall in when they came out. The house was owned by Dr. S. T. Smith. No insurance.

You'll feel better after taking DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the safe, sure, pleasant, gentle liver pills. If you would be sure of good results insist on DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve, the original. It is good for big cuts or little ones, small scratches or bruises or big ones, but it is especially good for piles. Sold by Whitwell Drug Co.

Last week was a great week for rabbits, the country boys turning themselves loose during the cold weather and killing thousands of them, which they brought to Morristown and sold at 8 cents a-piece. Sam Williams bought 700 from one wagon.—Morristown Gazette.

Hot Onions and Pneumonia.

Hot onions, according to a French physician, are said to be a sure cure for pneumonia. The remedy is as follows: Take six or ten onions, according to size and chop fine; put in a large pan over a fire, then add the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to make a thick paste. In the mean time stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer for five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs, and apply to chest as hot as patient can bear. In about ten minutes apply another, and thus continue by reheating the poultices, and in a few minutes the patient will be out of danger. This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too often fatal malady. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient. —Woburn, Mass., Journal.

To which we add a paragraph printed elsewhere in the Journal, which reads as follows:

In another column of this paper we print, for the benefit of the public, an article entitled "Hot Onions and Pneumonia." One would naturally infer from a perusal of it that the remedy is a new discovery by the French physicians, but such is not the fact. Pneumonia is only another name for old time "lung fever," for which hot onion poultices were a remedy which seldom failed to conquer the disease. The loss of a lung fever patient under the hot onion treatment was a rare thing. Occasionally, in very stubborn cases, the Doctor felt obliged to resort to a blister of Spanish Flies, but not often. The hot onion poultice of those former times was prepared exactly as set forth in the article we print in this week's Journal. There is a physician, with a large medical practice, not 1,000 miles from Woburn, whose only remedy for pneumonia is hot onion poultices and he very seldom fails to head off the disease and restore his patient to health.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three year old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day, October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used." For sale by Whitwell Drug Co.

Opened Subscription School.

Miss Eliza Martin opened a private subscription school at the schoolhouse Monday, with twenty-nine children in attendance. Her rate is one dollar per month, which is cheap enough. Send your children. It is about the only thing you can do for them—give them an education.

We would be glad to hear from Mr. Brown of Dunlap, again if the company hasn't given his job back to him again. I don't guess any of the other men at Dunlap will risk their job to write to the News, so I hope Mr. Brown will give us the news from Dunlap as we have heard so much about that place. We have been told that a man could get rich at Dunlap in a few months. I hope Mr. Brown will give us the news every week. I won't ask any of the other men to write for I guess the company would fire them out if they did. Mr. Brown, there is one question I would like to ask, do the company let their men read the News?

Would be glad to hear from Bush, Herrin, Benton, Rend City, and Mt. Olive, Ill.

Hoping to hear from all these places in the next week's paper, White Face.

Best for coughs and colds is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It moves the bowels freely yet gently and thereby drives the cold from the system. It stops the cough. Children like it—pleasant to take. Sold by Whitwell Drug Co.

Savings Department

In connection with our general and commercial banking department we have decided to open a new department which will be known as our Savings Department.

This department will be run entirely separate from the other departments of the bank and on the same principle as regular Savings Banks.

This gives us three departments:—
First—The General and Commercial Banking.

Second—Certificates of Deposit.

Third—Savings Department.

Deposits taken from one dollar up—it's not the amount but the start that counts.

Favors Jasper as a Location.

Editor News:
As our "Teddy" would say, I was delighted to learn that our Honorable County Court had voted to establish a County High School. This, I believe, will prove to be the best thing they have ever done for the people of our county. Now, when the County High School is established and running, our boys and girls, after they have passed a certain grade in the common school studies, can attend the County High School and acquire an education that will arm and fit them for the battles of life, without money and without price. This will give every poor boy and girl an equal chance with the boys and girls of their wealthy or well-to-do neighbors to obtain an education that will qualify any energetic young man or woman for the race that is before them. Then again, the High School will, I think, prove to be a great incentive to our boys and girls, with pride and ambition, to study hard and advance as rapidly as they can in the common school studies so that they will be able to pass as soon as possible the grade required by law that will admit them to enter the County High School.

Now, a word as to the proper place to locate the County High School, South Pittsburg, Jasper and Sequatchie, will, I suppose, all bid and work for the honor. I have no hard or unkind word to speak against South Pittsburg or Sequatchie. They are both good towns, bustling and progressive, but—well, the way I see things, and I try to use unprejudiced spectacles when looking at things that are supposed to be for the benefit of the public—Jasper is far and away the best town in the county in which to locate the County High School. Jasper is strictly a residential and educational town, and one of the cleanest and prettiest in the old "Volunteer State."

Her citizens, while not as bustling and aggressive, perhaps, in some respects, as they might be, are, as a rule, and almost as a whole, honest, courteous and moral. No "Musk Rat Club", no "blind tigers", no tongs; in a word, no corrupt influence that will poison the moral atmosphere, and lure and lead young boys and girls into paths of vice and shame, are permitted to root in Jasper. The location and physical make up of Jasper is par excellence. Lofty and picturesque mountains in the background, beautiful, gently rolling, sandy landscape, and the clearest, purest and best bright sparkling water that ever tickled the palate and trickled down the throat of thirsty man.

The above, Mr. Editor, are some of the reasons why I favor the County High School being located in Jasper. Jasper, I sincerely hope, will get a move on herself, and present to the Honorable Board of Commissioners the best proposition or bid, and prove to her honorable competitors in this friendly contest that she is no molly-coddle. If she will do this the County High School will be landed—located, if you please—where it should be, in the cleanest, healthiest and most beautiful town in old Marion—Jasper.

Yours very truly,
"Sifter."
