ORE HANDLING PLANT TO BE OPENED SOON

New and Extensive Improvements of Napier Iron Company Ready For Test.

Within a week or ten days the ore handling plant about completed at Et-na, Tenn., at a cost approximating $150,000 will be given its initial test and another industry owned and operated by local capitalists interested in the Napier Iron Company will be adding greatly to the commercial importance of not only Nashville, but Tennessee as well.

Constructed in the center of over two thousand acres of land under which an excellent vein of iron ore is deposited, the plant will have a capacity of mining, washing, concentrating and in other ways preparing five thousand tons of iron ore per day, which will be shipped to one of several furnaces located in the south.

The officers of the controlling company are now considering the advisability and feasibility of transporting the ore to their own furnaces located at Napier, Tenn., and this may be done. The machinery and buildings have been in the course of construction for about eight months and the plant as an entirety is considered one of the finest in the south. Two hundred men will be given employment, both in mining and cleaning the ore which will be sent elsewhere for smelting. The officers of the Napier Iron Company, all of Nashville, are: W. R. Cole, president; William H. Lindsey and J. H. Fall, vice presidents, and R. M. Davis, secretary and treasurer. —Nashville Tennessean.

SMALLPOX AT JASPER

Precautions Being Taken to Prevent Spread of Disease.

A smallpox case is reported from Jasper, and citizens as usual are greatly excited. The case is Miss Sallie Darr, daughter of Rev. J. A. Darr, and the young lady is supposed to have caught the disease while on a visit in Bridgeport. When she was taken sick, which was first reported Monday, all precautions for the spread of the disease were taken by isolation of those who had been in contact with the case or who were in danger of infection.

There is reported to have been a great number of cases of small pox in Bridgeport this year. Some say there have been 35 afflicted with the scourge in that place this winter alone, while others claim the number is much greater. It is understood the Bridgeport people pay little attention to the disease, and contemptuously call it chickenpox, and some even go about their business while affected. Tennessee authorities, however, are not allowing any such laxity as that, and at Jasper isolation is the rule for the single case reported and all suspects.

Doesn't Agree With "Uncle Tom"

Mr. Editor:
I read the Sequachee News and enjoy it very much, but I can't say I like to hear "Uncle Tom" censuring everybody. First he comes against the business man who has money and to cap the climax, next he wages war on the poor old farmer who is at home minding his own business, making an honest living by the sweat of his brow for his family. I imagine I see "Uncle Tom" seated on the doorstep of a rented cabin with six or seven old hounds, that you could at a glance count every bone in their old carcasses, yelping for some of the old farmer's crumbs. Surely "Uncle Tom" has never taken the second thought or he couldn't heap coals of fire on the old farmer's head, the man who feeds the universe, feeding you and your old hounds, too. Now, if you have no words of encouragement for the old farmer and can't lend him a helping hand, please let him be quiet. I am only a small boy, but quite old enough to know right from wrong. Had you not spent so much of your valuable (?) time staffing a girl's bosom with pure white snow, you might have had a nice farm and plenty of money, too. We stand or fall on our own merits, "Uncle Tom." ERA CONDRA, Sequachee, Tenn., March 7, 1910.

Hymen at Dunlap.

DUNLAP, Tenn., March 4.—There have been several weddings in this vicinity lately, and the News should have been informed of them before this.

Miss Leila Waters and Chas Ballard were married Sunday, Feb 27, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Leyman, Squire Roberts officiating.

An Efficient Mistress.

Mrs. A., who had a shiftless colored maid, was hurrying through her morning's work in order to go out with a friend in the afternoon. As she flew about from room to room she heard the colored woman chuckling to herself as if very much enjoying something. Impatiently she said:

"What in the world is it that amuses you so, Isabel?"

"Well, Mis' Bessie, when I heard you gallopin' aroun' up stairs I jes' t'ought if you'd been de Lawd it wouldn't a' took you no six days to make de hebbens an' de yearth!"—S. A. Rice in Woman's Home Companion for March.

Alarming the Bride.

A clergyman, noticing the simple appearance of the couple he had just married, decided to give them a few words of advice. He explained to the young man his duties as a husband, and then told the young lady how she should conduct herself, winding up with the old injunction that she must look to her husband for everything, and forsaking her father and mother, follow him wherever he went.

The bride appeared very much troubled at this, and faltered out: "Must I follow him to every place he goes?"

"Yes," said the clergyman: "you must follow him everywhere until death doth you part." "Gracious!" cried the girl. "If I had known that before, I would never have married a postman."—Spare Moments.

UNCLE TOM'S LETTER.

I notice from the press that there is a lot of politicians more interested in giving John Barleycorn the right of way again in Tennessee than they are in devising ways and means to help the families who do not actually get enough to eat. Now, I know of some just in this kind of condition. I think and believe that politicians who have nothing better to offer the country than a saloon are very poor specimens of humanity, let alone a law maker or executor of the law. I think a governor that will say that the laws can't be enforced against the liquor traffic is about as sorry a specimen of humanity as could be found among the very slums of a city.

Tennessee is able to enforce any law on her statutes and the officers and judges and juries that won't enforce the law are certainly perjurers, and I would hate to knowingly vote for that kind of men. I do not intend to vote for any man that don't respect the law well enough to enforce it. In fact, I never was a teetotaler, but the liquor gang of law breakers need not claim my vote. I want to vote for men that have something more beneficial to offer than liquor. I always said if I drank and got drunk I preferred a sober man to attend to my business. I don't vote for drunken scoundrels or men who believe in such conduct, and this year I aim to be very cautious, for I consider we are having enough trouble and misery in our state because of the evils we could get along without.

Whiskey is outlawed and I, for one, will never vote for any man that proposes to remove the bonds, and Myers, from up the valley, will have to give a plain statement as to how he stands on the liquor question or he'll never represent this frotorial district.

Democracy and a nomination is not equivalent to gain election in this district now. Partisan politics is not as efficacious as formerly. Its the men and measure. Men have lost confidence in both the old parties of late years, and not without cause. Neither has done the people, especially the poorer classes, any good. The time has come and is now at hand when a change is going to be made, and no man need be sure he is going to win. I am aware that the lords of creation imagine they have crushed the working-man, and that there is no further danger of his resenting the invasion of their rights and privacies. No sensible laboring man ever expected a labor union to give them permanent relief. They know a labor union is only a temporary concern and used as such. Watch the elections this year and note the impetus and changes in politics. It will astonish the country. Already the leaders in both the old parties are much below par with the average man. Nobody, or at least the independent voter, does not care who is the nominee as formerly.

Good Cough Medicine for Children

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher, of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used any thing other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it always has given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or any other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by Whitwell Drug Co., Whitwell, Tenn.

Funeral services were conducted from the home of the deceased this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment made in the city cemetery.

Packers' "Blue Book."

That the cold storage houses are not totally depleted is shown by a refrigeration "blue book" privately circulated among commission men. According to the book there are 14,000,000 cattle carcasses; in addition to those other animals held in cold storage are 6,000,000 calves, 25,000,000 sheep and lambs and 50,000,000 hogs.

According to these figures from the official guide book circulated only among the cold storage men, there is in storage one animal for each adult in the United States, with enough whole animals left over to give two to each family. This meat is being held in 558 cold storage plants. In 78 fish freezing plants there are fish valued at $2,500,000. In other cold storage plants during any year now, according to the storage men's own statistics, the struggling wage-earner will find 1,800,000,000 eggs, 130,000,000 pounds of poultry and fruits valued at $50,000,000.

Then besides, there are millions of pounds of potatoes and onions; thousands of turtles and eels; cases of canned goods and milk and butter and cheese, valued in all at $100,000,000. The total value of meat and food-stuffs placed in cold storage during a year at present is, according to the figures of the storage concerns, close to $3,000,000,000.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by Whitwell Drug Co.
