Miss Kate Pleasants has returned to her home on Rail Road Avenue after an extended visit to friends in Memphis, Tennessee.

Mr. Brown Jones Smith:—"I notice that the Moscow correspondent states that there are no widows or old maids in Moscow; that the Moscow women and men all marry, and marry each other. I notice, also, that the Macon correspondent states that the Macon women positively refuse to marry the Macon men. Would you suggest for the better hymeneal conditions in Macon that half of the Moscow girls be moved to Macon and half of the Macon girls be moved to Moscow? "Mrs. B. J. S.:—"Heavens, no. The Macon girls might instill their regrettable virus into the hearts and dispositions of the Moscow girls in both towns, and instead of bettering condition we might have two towns like Macon. Nothing in this world ought to disturb the Rooseveltian, Biblical, delectable, amorous conditions of Moscow, in which she is the peer of the world."
