Thomas Delaney Cobb

The death of Mr. T. D. Cobb, which occurred at his home here in the hush of the early Sunday evening hours, after an illness of only about a day, of heart trouble, from which he had suffered many years, touches many hearts outside his own household. The life that goes out in love is the life that is full and rich and continually expanding in usefulness and power. Such a life had Mr. Cobb lived. Simplicity marked his manner and speech and his influence was for the uplifting of those with whom he came in contact.

Had he lived until September he would have passed his seventy-third milestone, yet one would not have ever called him old, for he was wide awake, interested in current affairs and cast about him an atmosphere of cheer, sympathy and fellowship.

Mr. Cobb was twice married. His first wife was Miss Addie Johnston, and of this union the following children survive: C. H. Cobb, of Union City; Mrs. S. G. Neville, Mrs. R. F. Scott, Mrs. J. E. Hierson—a worthy son and splendid daughter of a noble father.

His second wife was Miss Lizzie Rhea, and of his marriage there were two daughters, Molly Rhea; just budding into beautiful girlhood and one who died in infancy.

Mr. Cobb was so closely identified with the Methodist church that it seems almost as if his place cannot be filled. He was a Christian. For many years he was chairman of the Board of Stewards, directing, guiding, counseling, helping, and for his funeral the pall bearers were chosen from the present board, all of whom loved Mr. Cobb and whom he loved.

The honorary pall bearers were the ex-sheriffs of the county, of which the deceased was the oldest. Senator W. R. Miller, Messrs. R. W. Wood, W. B. Campbell, Andrew Crockett, Joe Crockett, J. R. Pennington and J. T. Coughlan, the present sheriff.

The funeral services took place at the Methodist church Monday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. J. W. Irion, speaking beautifully and impressively, using as his theme Paul's words, "To die is to gain."

The body now rests in Maplewood cemetery, beneath a wreath of lovely flowers, having been laid away with Masonic honors.

Produce Infertile Eggs

Hens running without a male bird will produce infertile eggs. Hens without a male will produce just as many eggs as though a male were present.

Fertile eggs when exposed to high summer temperatures will undergo chick development just as they would when placed in an incubator or under a hen.

Fertile eggs showing chick development are spoiled for food and are a total loss.

Infertile eggs will not undergo chick development.

Infertile eggs, therefore, keep better than fertile eggs, especially during hot weather.

A loss of $15,000,000 or more each year is directly due to fertile eggs.

Infertile eggs are more profitable because the losses are less.

Infertile eggs are superior to fertile eggs for every purpose except to produce chicks.

Sell, kill, or confine the male birds and produce infertile eggs as soon as the breeding season is over.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a result there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILD TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be as rosy and healthy. Pleasant to take. 50c per bottle.

Garden Notes

We planted our trial patch of Red Ripper Irish potatoes this week, and hope to be able to tell something of what they will do.

In the past ten days we have planted in our garden California brown eye peas, more corn for roasting ears, snap beans, tomatoes, collards, fall cabbage, late potatoes, watermelons and canteloupes. With the succession there is little chance of being without vegetables a day thru the summer.

The Falcon has been asked several times how one can plant spring grown Triumph potatoes with a prospect of getting a stand. First, the potatoes must be matured when dug, the vines almost dead. Then when dug, the small potatoes cut in halves and planted immediately, is our best method. But remember that no potato will come up when planted thus unless it is mature when dug. Another, and next best we have tried, is to dig, spread in the shade for two weeks, then cover with old sacks wheat or oat straw, keep moistened for two weeks, when sprouts should be showing on many of the eyes. Other methods have been tried, but these are our best methods as found by trial. We are planting this week by the first named method and with present moisture hope to get a stand.

This has been a good week for transplanting celery and The Falcon has sold many plants. They can be transplanted any time for a month, if there is sufficient moisture that long.

Ruta Bagas are far better winter eating than the ordinary turnip, but they take a longer growing season. Our land is ready now and will be planted in rows 18 inches apart by the time this is read. With favorable seasons, they can be grown to weigh four or five pounds, when planted early enough. Ordinary turnips are not planted here generally until August or September, but the Ruta Bagas must be planted in June or July to get them large enough to be worth while.

"I transplanted my lettuce and worked it well, but it did not head, can you tell me why?" This is what a townsman said to us a few days ago. The reason was that he waited to transplant until the weather was too hot for heading of lettuce. It is a cool weather plant and must be transplanted early enough to head in the cool weather of the spring, or you must wait until the cool of fall. Sown in July or August, the plants can be set out in September or early October and good heads made, if moisture is sufficient.

Explosives for Fourth Barred in State Order

It must be a safe and sane Fourth of July for Tennessee this year, according to Walter Bell, Fire Prevention Commissioner for this state. This is to prevent the usual heavy toll of life caused by guns, giant crackers and other explosives, and to prevent the usual heavy losses of property occasioned by these explosives, either in storage or from fire resulting from their explosion.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters started this movement for the safe and sane Fourth, and seeks to prevent the ban being lifted on explosives in the various states. The rules governing the sale and storage of explosives in this state will be strictly adhered to, according to Commissioner Bell, and he calls the attention of the public, and especially, handled of these articles to the rules governing the same.

"All over the country this movement is being taken up and all states will stick to the plan followed during the war. No pre-war policy will be tolerated, and in this way we will prevent loss of both life and property."

Mr. Bell urges that the fourth be observed in the true American spirit, but that the use of anything that will endanger either property or life be forbidden in all sections.

County Quarterly Court Next Tuesday

The County Court of Fayette county will convene here in regular quarterly session next Tuesday, July 1, that being the regular meeting day of the court.

Among important matters to be considered and settled by the court is the tax rate for 1919. The present county and state rate is $1.95 on each $100, for following funds: State tax .56; County, general .30; highway .20; school .40; special bridge tax .30; high school .10; special note fund .15. The last legislature added a five cent rural school tax, so that for 1919 the state rate will be .55, making $2.00 the rate if all the above funds receive the same as last year. With the increased cost of every item of the county's expenses there is question whether these same rates will suffice to meet the county's needs for the year. The Falcon has not discussed the matter of the tax rate with the Chairman of the court who is the county's financial agent, and hence no authoritative statement as to what may be done.

Clerk Crawford has not yet made up his docket and it was not possible to obtain an insight into other matters coming before the court.

Cut This Out and Take It With You

A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion. adv

Constitutional Convention

To the Chairman and Members of the County Courts of the Respective Counties of Tennessee and Others.

Whereas, under the provisions of Chapter 133, Acts 1919, an election is to be held on Thursday, September 4, 1919, to determine the question as to whether a Constitutional Convention shall be held; and

Whereas, some action should be taken to secure an organization to advise the voters of the importance of this election;

Therefore the members of the Committee on Constitutional Amendments of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Sixty-First General Assembly, request the County Courts of Tennessee, at their meetings on Monday, July 7, 1919, to each select three delegates to a State meeting to be held at Nashville on Thursday, July 10, 1919, to create a state-wide organization for the purpose of securing a Constitutional Convention.

A like request is made to the Tennessee Bar Association and local associations, to the trades and labor councils and unions, and to the manufacturers', bankers', and commercial associations. The object of this called meeting is not only to secure a state-wide representation for an organization, but to arouse the people, without regard to parties or section, to the great need of a new and modern Constitution for the State of Tennessee.

One Year Ago Today

In memory of Ernest Moore, died June 28, 1918.

One year has past, us apart, But the wound has never healed; The pain has never left my heart Since your lips in death were sealed.

Rest in peace, dear Ernest, Your memory shall never fade, A loving heart will always linger Around the grave where you were laid.

This we t to be remembered And a pleasant thing we find, That though you may be absent You still are kept in mind.

We think of you in silence, No eyes can see us weep, But many a tear is shed, When others are asleep.

A heart broken father, mother, sisters and brothers.

County School Closes.

The Fayette County High School closed last Friday night when one graduate received her diploma. A series of circumstances in previous years cut out a number of pupils from receiving their diplomas this year who had made their plans to finish, and the circumstances were in no way to the discredit of said pupils. By a mistaken belief of an advantage in finishing sooner they had studied six weeks in the summer and had been allowed to pass a year's work on the six weeks of studies. But the state high school law fixes the number of hours that must be spent on each course each week for 36 weeks, and hence these pupils lost their promotion granted them on the six weeks of study and will have to follow the school law in the matter, and although they had some studies in the senior year's work, they have not had the required number of weeks of study in these subjects. Hereafter no promotions are being allowed except on full time as the rules require, and parents will confer a favor on school authorities by not insisting on their children "making a grade" in vacation.

The exercises began on Sunday night June 15, when Dr. Waters of the Southwestern Baptist University at Jackson preached the commencement sermon at the Methodist church. It was followed next by a declamation contest on Thursday night between the members of the Wilson and the Pershing Literary Societies of the school, in which the Wilson Society was represented by William Durbin, Wyatt Wilkinson Jr., and Mamie Wilkinson, and the Pershing Society by Sam Shaw Jr., Dickson Robinson and Imogene Ozier. Joe Bowers of the latter society called the house to order and Miss B. Winfrey of the Wilson Society introduced the several speakers. A gold medal was awarded Miss Imogene Ozier as being the best speaker, the judges being Rev. Yates Moore, Rev. O. W. Wardlaw of Oakland, and H. M. Rhea. The medal was given by the Parent-Teacher Association, and was presented in behalf of that organization by County Superintendent W. T. Loggins. He also announced on behalf of the same association that next year they will offer a scholarship medal to be competed for by all students in the high school and to be awarded the pupil getting the best scholarship for the year.

The pupils in this contest acquitted themselves splendidly and most creditably, showing careful and painstaking training and a fine efficiency for children of their ages.

Friday night Miss Ruby Dunn of the ninth district read her class essay and Dean T. E. Loggins of the West Tennessee Normal delivered the class address, and the County Superintendent delivered the diplomas. Music was furnished by members of Miss Margaret Wetzler's music class.

While beset with numerous ups and downs, the year's work at the High School has been a very successful one. More pupils from over the county have been in attendance than in several years, and good progress has been made by the school. And in the arrangement and conduct of the classes and grades the strict letter of the state regulations have been followed, which, it is believed, will in a few years result in a better efficiency in the training of the graduates of the school.

Order of Publication

E. V. Hall as Guardian and next of kin of N. B. Hall vs. Louise E. Hall. In the Circuit Court of Fayette County, Tennessee.

In this cause appearing from the petition wherein it is shown that the defendant, Louise E. Hall is a non-resident of the state of Tennessee and is a resident of the state of Florida, it is therefore ordered that she be hereby notified and required to appear in and before the Circuit Court of Fayette County, Tennessee, at a term thereof to be held at the courthouse in the town of Somerville, Tennessee, on the fourth Monday in July, 1919, and make defense to a petition filed in said court against her by E. V. Hall as guardian and next of kin of N. B. Hall, otherwise the said petition will be taken for confessed as to her and set for hearing ex parte. It is further ordered that this notice be published for four consecutive weeks in The Fayette Falcon, a newspaper published in Somerville, Tennessee.

This 24th day of June, 1919. S. A. WETZLER, Clerk. H. P. HOBSON, Solicitor.

Ladies Auxiliary Entertains

Despite the rain drops, the Ladies Auxiliary had their meeting at the home of Mrs. Will Rhea Monday, June 23, at 4 p. m.

Quite an assembly of the members and their friends were present in honor of the "Birthday Band" who entertained in most interesting way. Mrs. Burton presided during the devotional and business program, after which Messdames Hardy, Reames, A. L. Rhea, Montgomery and J. S. Matthews were the hostesses for the afternoon. We are sure that they must have read the "Onward" and found that laughter was a good tonic, for the social gossip game surely served its mission in this wise and surely each one present enjoyed a refreshing night's sleep.

Miss Wetzler and her pupils, Mary Mayo and Madeline Shaw, were specially invited to repeat their recital number a most catchy song, each doing credit to their teacher and gave much pleasure to all.

The Sentence Story seemed to be interesting to the two bachelor maids present, as they found themselves almost capturing an imaginary bachelor. The memory test and picture game were thoroughly enjoyed. A very appetizing ice course was served. Mrs. Will Rhea then had the finishing touch of a kiddie picture of the party. We wended our way homeward with a thought of admiration and many good wishes for the hostesses.

FROM CHERRY-BLOSSOM LAND

The Japanese Give Good Example

It is a proverb of Cherry Blossom Land that beauty of face and figure depend on womanly health.

What is it that makes our American women often pale, sallow-faced, with dark circles under the eyes, and very often old at forty-five when they should be in their prime?

Women suffer in girlhood from backache, spine-sache and headaches, followed by irregularities and as a result diseases of the womanly organs are more common than any one but a physician in active practice could suppose.

After long experience in the treatment of women's diseases, Dr. Pierce evolved a vegetable tonic and corrective which he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is a purely vegetable preparation, without a particle of alcohol contained in it.

When a woman complains of backache, dizziness or pain—when everything looks black before her eyes—a dragging feeling, or bearing-down, with nervousness, she should turn to this "temperance" herbal tonic. It can be obtained in almost every drug store in the land and the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper. Put up in tablets or liquid. Dr. Pierce, of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., will send a trial size of the tablets for ten cents.

Co operative Shipping of Lambs

The most satisfactory way to handle a co-operative shipment of lambs is to weigh and grade them before loading in the car. Lambs and sheep are more difficult to weigh than hogs and cattle. Any form of weighing impairs the wool, thus injuring the selling value. Marking with paint, other than on different points on the back and face, is certain to smudge even under ideal conditions, and particularly in rainy weather does paint smear badly, thus leading to considerable confusion in sorting individual lots.

Grading consistent with the market can be done as follows: lambs that are fat and in good flesh weighing 60 to 70 pounds should be graded as No. 1's. This is the ideal weight in the spring. Lambs that are fat and in good condition of flesh weighing 50 to 60 pounds should be graded as No. 2's, and anything below this weight as No. 3's. In cases where lambs have weight of the normal grade but are in poorer flesh, place them a grade below the normal grading, for example: a lamb that weighs 60 to 70 pounds but yet is thin, should be put in grade No. 2, and so on. If there is any doubt about the grade in which some lambs should fall, put them in a separate class and designate it, for example, class A, B, C, etc.

To All Poultry Breeders.

We are planning to have a car-load co-operative shipment of poultry from Somerville, Saturday, July 12th. We will have on the side tracks for loading that day a regular poultry coop car and will have present, buyers who will buy this car F. O. B. and pay the highest market price. Therefore you will receive pay for your chickens as soon as they are weighed in the car. We would suggest that you market all male birds that you do not wish to keep for breeders. Remember the male bird has no influence on egg production and he is an expensive luxury during the hot summer months. We would also suggest that you market all hens two years old or over, and all surplus frying size male birds.

Remember that by holding your poultry and shipping it with us on this day, you secure the very top of the market for it and you get your money the same day shipment is made.

We would suggest that you do not feed the birds on the morning that shipment is made, as the buyer might deduct for shrinkage. Then, too, he will leave plenty of feed in the car for them to feed on.

Everyone who will have poultry for this shipment should begin at once to list same with us. A card or letter, naming the number you will have to ship, and whether old hens, old roosters or fryers, is all that will be necessary, and it will be a material advantage to us who are making the plans. Do not forget to list your chickens with us. Tell your neighbors and friends to do the same.

Help us make this first co-operative poultry shipment in Fayette county a success.

Care Of Milk On The Farm

All utensils which come in contact with milk should be of smooth durable material which can be easily cleaned by rinsing with warm water, then thoroly washed in hot water containing some good washing powder, such as sal soda, and finally scalded with boiling water and inverted on a rack in a clean place away from flies and dust, but exposed to fresh air and sunshine where they are allowed to remain until required for use.

The milking should be done where the air is fresh and pure. For convenience the cows should be either stanchioned or tied to prevent their moving about while being milked. The cow's udder and flanks should be wiped with a damp cloth to remove any dust or loose hairs that might fall into the milk pail. Milkers should always milk with dry hands and practice cleanliness in every respect, as milk is very easily contaminated while warm.

Milk should be removed from the barn immediately after milking, strained into clean cans or vessels and placed in cold, running water with water surrounding the can as high as the milk inside the can. About an hour after the milk has been strained it should be thoroly stirred with a long handled dipper or spoon. This prevents the cream from forming a blanket over the surface of the milk, which does not allow the animal heat to pass off quickly.

If well water is used place the cans of milk in a deep box, a milk barrel is quite satisfactory for one can, then pump fresh water into the box or barrel. The water should be changed and the milk stirred two or three times before bottling. Place the can covers on top of the cans to prevent dirt from falling into the milk, but do not cover tight until the milk is thoroly cooled. Never mix warm milk with cold, if it can be avoided. If only one can is used for milk, it is always best to cool both milkings before pouring them together.
