POTRY.
THE LAST MILESTONES.
BY "PEARL RIVERS."

Sixty years through shine and shadow—
Sixty years, my gentle wife,
You and I have walked together,
Down the rugged road of life.
From the hills of Spring we started,
And through all the Summer land,
And the faithful Autumn country,
We have journeyed hand in hand.

We have borne the heat and burden,
Taunting painfully and slow;
We have gathered in our harvest,
With rejoicing long ago.
Leaves the uplands for our children,
They are strong to sow and reap,
Through the quiet Winter lowlands,
Our level way we keep.

'Tis a dreary country, darling,
You and I are passing through;
But the road lies straight before us,
And the miles are short and few;
No more dangers to encounter—
No more hills to climb, true friend,
Nothing now but simple walking,
Till we reach our journey's end.

We have had our time of gladness,
'Twas a proud and happy day;
Ah! the prospect of our journey
When we felt that we could say,
Of the children God has given,
"Lovely men are our daughters—
Our sons are noble men!"

We have had our time of sorrow—
Our time of anxious fears,
When we could not see the milestones
Through the blindness of our tears.
In the sunny Summer country,
Far behind us, little May
And Willie, too, grew weary,
And we left them on the way.

Are you looking backward, mother,
That you stumble in the snow?
I am still your guide and staff dear,
Lean your weight upon me, so!
Our road is growing narrow,
And what is it, wife you say?
Yes! I know our eyes are dim, dear,
But we have not lost the way.

Cheer thee! cheer thee! faithful-hearted
Just a little way before,
Lies the great Eternal City,
Of the King that we adore.
I can see the shining spires—
Add the King, the King, my dear,
We have served him long and humbly;
He will bless us, do not fear.

Ah! the snow falls fast and heavy;
How you shiver with the cold,
Let me wrap your mantle closer,
And my arm around you fold.
We are weak, and faint, and weary,
And the sun low in the west;
We have reached the gates my darling,
Let us hurry here and rest.

Wimpy, Wogan & Co.
In as much as we published the correspondence between John A. Wimpy, of Georgia, and Wogan & Co., Counterfeiters of New York, we give place in our columns to the following defence of Mr. Wimpy, which we find published in the Dahloega, (Ga.) Mountain Signal, of January 14th, 1870.
That paper says: "The certificates attached below are entitled to full force and credit as some of them are from the very best citizens of the sixth (Ga.) Congressional District.

To the Public.
There having been published a correspondence between certain parties in New York City and myself, in the New York Tribune of the 18th ultimo, and afterwards copied into other newspapers of the State, from which it would appear, I was acting in concert with them in circulating spurious money. In justice to myself, I beg leave to say to the public, that I am the author of the letters, and the identical person represented in them; but the motive which prompted me to engage in this correspondence was just the reverse of that attributed to me. About the first of October last, several of the citizens of Dahloega received confidential circular letters from these parties, proposing to sell them counterfeit money, manufactured so perfectly as to defy detection, which caused much concern here. To protect the good people of my county, I took the responsibility, right or wrong, to ferret out and detect these parties in New York, and others in this section, who might be guilty of circulating spurious money in our midst. As to my intention in this matter, before I wrote the letters referred to, and soon thereafter, in a quiet and safe manner, I communicated to several good and responsible citizens of my town and other counties in my district, some of whom have been kind enough to furnish me with statements, hereto annexed, corroborating the same. I could furnish others and more statements of the same character if it were necessary to do so.

In order to place my self right before the public, I have this, with the accompanying statements, published.

Those who know me even in the absence of confidence in my integrity, will not do my understanding such gross injustice as to believe I would hazard my social and political standing by writing such letters and trusting them to the mail-bags and New York counterfeiters without ample evidence to establish my innocence.

JOHN A. WIMPY.
DAHLOEGA, Ga., Jan. 10th, 1870.

ORDINARY'S OFFICE, CUMMING, Ga.,
January 5th, 1870.

I, Wm. D. Bently, Ordinary of Forsyth county, Ga., having been called upon to make a statement under my official signature, of a conversation which took place between the Hon. John A. Wimpy, of Dahloega, Ga., and myself, relative to spurious money, which some New York companies were proposing to distribute through the country, who styled themselves Wogan & Co., and other firms of New York and other places. Several of our citizens having received an offer from said companies, I was at loss to know the real intention of the parties; consequently, I frequently asked the opinion of those I supposed could give me some information. I asked Mr. Wimpy his opinion, and, as well as I now remember, he remarked that, unless some steps were taken to prevent the circulation of this spurious currency, it would, no doubt, flood the country, and that he, Wimpy, had, at that time, entered into a correspondence with Wogan & Co., or some other company; I do not remember which, in order to ferret out and detect parties in this section, as well as parties in New York, who were engaged in that illegal traffic. This was about the last of October, or first of November, 1869. Given under my hand and seal of Ordinary's office of Forsyth county, Ga.

WM. D. BENTLY, Ord'y.

State of Georgia, Lumpkin County.
I, Alfred Harris, a Notary Public, and Ex-Officio Justice of the Peace in and for said county and State, do hereby certify that about the first of October, 1869, in the town of Dahloega, in said county, Hon. John A. Wimpy stated to me in a conversation, that he was then endeavoring to detect some parties in this section and New York, who were supposed to be engaged in the business of circulating spurious currency among our people. And afterwards, on or about the 15th of the same month, in the law office of said Wimpy, in the presence of Dr. M. H. VanDyke, who then expressed fears, that counterfeit money would be circulated here to a great extent, said, in reply to enquiries made by said M. H. VanDyke, in the most positive terms, that he understood the whole matter, and that he was after them and believed he would certainly catch them. Having known Mr. Wimpy for many years, as a citizen and lawyer in this county, I must say, in justice to him, that I do not and cannot believe that he entered into correspondence with Wogan & Co., or any impure motives.

Given under my hand and official signature, this 21st day of January, 1870.
ALFRED HARRIS,
Not. Pub. and Ex-Officio J. P., of Lumpkin Co. Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 22d, 1869.
COL. JOHN A. WIMPY, Dahloega, Ga.
Dear Sir:—Yours 21st inst. is received. In answer, can say: About the first of this month, in a conversation, you stated to me that you were then trying to detect some parties for counterfeiting.

Respectfully,
P. O'CONNOR.

DAHLOEGA, Ga., Jan. 8th, 1870.
HON. JOHN A. WIMPY:
Dear Sir:—In answer to your inquiry whether you at any time had a conversation with me in relation to those counterfeit swindlers, Wogan & Co., and others in New York, I beg leave to say that I do remember that some time in the month of October last, in your office, I handed you a circular letter, handed me by John A. Wooten, Coroner of our county, offering to sell counterfeit money, manufactured so perfectly as to defy detection, and asked you if some means could not be adopted to save this remote section from being imposed on by this spurious currency, you answered in an emphatic manner, that you were after them and would catch, or get them, at the same time Esquire Alfred Harris, of this town, was present transacting some court business with you. I do not remember to have had any further conversation, or to have heard you speak about it at any other time, or place, and I will add, that I do not, for one moment, believe that you entered into that affair with any other than good and honest motives.

Respectfully,
M. H. VANDYKE.

DAHLOEGA, Ga., Jan. 8th, 1870.
HON. JOHN A. WIMPY:
Dear Sir:—You ask me to say if any and what conversation you had at my store, in relation to the circular letters sent into this section of country, by Wogan & Co., and others, offering to sell spurious money, purporting to be so perfect as to defy detection by experts and bank or Government officers. I can only say that much feeling and anxiety, at that time, was expressed by many of our citizens, on that subject, you may have said to me at my store, that you intended to ferret them out and catch them, but of this, I have no distinct remembrance, as much was said about that time, in relation to the proffered counterfeiters, but this much I do say, with all confidence, that I believe the course you saw fit to take, in order to ferret out the swindlers, was done solely for the good of our people, and not with any dishonest motives. It would have been unwise to have had too many confidants.

Yours, Very Truly,
T. H. KILGO.

RIDING FOR LIFE.
A Tennesseean Followed Thirty Miles by Kansas Robbers.

We received a visit yesterday from Mr. George Headington, a gentleman from Tennessee, who has been in Southwest Kansas looking out land, and he gave us the particulars of a gallant exploit, in which he was pursued, and was nearly killed, by a party of robbers.

When within about thirty miles of this city, he stopped at a store on the road, kept by a man named Garrison, near Spring Hill, at which he bought some tobacco and a pipe. Not having sufficient change to pay for them, he had to expose some large bills which he had in a separate pocketbook, which he had not been in the habit of pulling out on all occasions.

Two men in the store at the time noticed his money—some seven or eight hundred dollars—and whispered one with another in a manner which excited the suspicion of Mr. Headington, and he immediately left the store, and rode on without stopping.

Mr. Headington did not ride far, and as he had much riding to do, he had a good opportunity to keep clear of danger. He had probably ridden four miles, when in looking back, he saw two men approaching. These men gained upon him, passed him and spoke to him, and Mr. Headington at once recognized them as the two men of the store. It was late, and he felt a little uneasy, but he galloped up, passed the men again and went on several miles to a house, where he put up for the night.

In an hour after he arrived where he should stop, but these same men "They also sought for lodgings and obtained them; and when the hour for retiring came, they were put in separate rooms. Twice during the night Headington heard them at his door, and each time he frightened them off by calling out to know who tried the door."

Headington lingered in the store, in order to let the men get as much sleep as possible. He had probably got within five or six miles of this city, when he came up again upon the same road, at a house on the roadside. The robbers were dismounted, and were drawing a bucket of water from a well. Mr. Headington saw that he was coming to timber very soon, and he believed that there the attack would be made. His horse was stout and fresh, and he determined to make a rush for it. Not halting for a moment at the house where the two men were, he rode rapidly, and when he reached the woods he put his horse into a gallop. Pretty soon, in going through a stretch of pines, he looked back, and there came on the two men again galloping steadily towards him, determined to catch him if possible.

For three or four miles this kind of a race was kept up, and Headington's horse was becoming to be blown and tired. In addition, the two men had gained on him perceptibly. Again they were coming on rapidly, and when he tried to spur his horse into a gallop, the poor beast would not go beyond a trot. They had probably gotten within one hundred yards of Headington, when from a lane leading into the road two farmers rode down on their horses to Kansas City. The robbers saw them, and held up, as without expelling any thing to them connected with the chase, and Mr. Headington joined their company, and at last breathed freely and safely, that of first time since the evening, and landed at home.
