Card Club Entertained.

Artistic in every detail was the beautifully arranged party given by Miss Barbara Marugg for the Card Club on Thursday afternoon.

The house was prettily decorated with an artistic arrangement of garland flowers and potted plants. On the arrival of the guests delightful frappe was served.

The score cards were beautifully tinted out-of-door sketches. Mrs. Tidman, making the highest score for the afternoon, won the pin.

After the game refreshing ices, in which the tones of brown and white were emphasized, were served at the tables. The guests were: Misses Jeannette White, Viola Kelley, Barbara and Eda Marugg and Irma Hampton; Mesdames G. W. Tidman, Frank White, L. M. Hines, Ed Hampton, H. J. Bowers, A. H. Rouse of Fairmount College, and J. G. Abernathy.

Gunboat is Found Near Dover

Workmen for the Foster-Creighton & Gould Company of Nashville while dredging and excavating preparatory to sinking a coffer dam at the site of the lock and dam in the Cumberland near Dover have made an unusual discovery. A portion of an old gunboat which was sunk by batteries from Fort Donelson in 1862 was raised. The wreck had been located by divers, and while the fifty years in the waters of the Cumberland had decomposed and rotted the woodwork greatly, a number of small articles, such as kitchen utensils, crockery, etc., were found. It is supposed that the portion of the vessel raised was used as either the kitchen or mess hall, from the saucers, spoons, fragments of crockery, etc., lying in the mud which had encrusted the frame work.

A number of old citizens of that place have a distinct recollection of the sinking of this vessel which was one of the gunboat fleet which steamed up the Cumberland River in the winter of 1861-62 to effect the fall of Fort Donelson, which then was the only barrier between the Federals and the control of almost all the Mississippi and its tributaries.

Interesting Happenings Over Tennessee.

J. W. Anderson, who was struck by a Nashville-Franklin interurban car Monday of last week, died Saturday at an infirmary in Nashville. He never regained consciousness. He was 60 years old.

Suit for $5,000 damage has been brought against the Democrat Publishing Company of Nashville by Mrs. Anna B. Harris, who charges that "false and defamatory" statements were published about her recently.

Maintaining its lead as the most widespread of all diseases in that city, tuberculosis of the lungs resulted in the death of fifteen people in Nashville during the month of June, according to the report of the City Health Officer.

Fire which broke out at Tullahoma Thursday night destroyed within less than an hour the new home of Sam Woosley, the residence of W. M. Bearden and the residence of W. R. Marshall. The fire was first discovered in the Woosley residence.

Claiming that he fell asleep on top of a baggage car at Decatur, Ala., Horace Smith, colored, was awakened at Nashville Friday and fined $10 in police court. The arresting officer claims Smith was drunk and it was a miracle that he stayed on top of the car as long as he did.

At a meeting of the Executive Board of the Summer Conference held Friday night at Ovoca the movement to erect an administration building there and thereby make Ovoca the permanent meeting place of these Methodist young people took definite shape when $1,100 was raised among those present.

The decision of Atty-Gen. Chas. T. Cates, given to the state pension board, puts it up to Comptroller George P. Woolen as to whether or not the 1,000 old confederate soldiers and widows now applying for pensions will receive the pensions as their cases have been passed upon and approved by the pension board.

Winchester came near having a jail delivery Thursday afternoon. During the hot weather the Sheriff turns the prisoners out into the hallway. On returning he found about fifteen prisoners ready to make their escape. On using a wire they dug the brick from under the window. Removal of another layer of brick would have completed the job.

The state railroad commission has ordered the Cumberland Telephone company to cease charging a higher rate for exchanging messages with the Houston County Telephone company than the rates charged by complainant company. Both companies are charged to refrain from allowing free exchange service to their patrons in the future.

The 2-year-old son of J. C. Pidgeon of Memphis, was left alone in the second-story front room for just a moment Friday morning. The little fellow climbed to the window and some way pushed through the screen, which must have been left undone. The child fell to the ground and broke its neck. The parents in the next room became prostrated when learning of the accident.

Mrs. Grundy.

afternoon, Joe Abdalla, aged 10 years, a diminutive newsie, was drowned. The lad, accompanied by his two cousins, all about the same age, went to the river-bank at the foot of Church street, threw off their clothing and waded in. Joe walked straight out, until striking a hole over his head, sank with a piercing scream.

As the result of an injury during a joy ride here several weeks ago which rendered her an invalid for life, Miss Christine Rattelle, a chorus girl, has filed suit against C. V. and H. A. Rogers of Chattanooga for $30,000 for personal damages. The two men in question are the owners of the car in which the girl was riding with some companions at the time that the accident occurred. She will be crippled for life, as part of the hip bone was removed.

Thirty-five thousand pounds of stone crashed from the side cornice of the new building of the Baptist Publishing House at Nashville Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and before the horrified eyes of many pedestrians, crushed to death Dan Goodes, a negro workman who was standing directly under the falling mass. The negro was crushed to a pulp. Several workmen on the walls barely saved themselves from falling with the stone by grasping the parapet. The cause of the accident is a mystery.

De Forrest Algood Spencer, a student and athlete at University of Chattanooga, suffered almost a quart of blood to be drawn from his body Wednesday, that the life of Mrs. Sophia Musk, a victim of pernicious anaemia, might be saved. The operation took place at Erlanger hospital and was of a very delicate nature. The radical artery in the wrist of the young man's right arm was severed and joined to a vein in the upper arm of the sick woman by means of a canular. It was the first operation of its kind in that city.

Assisted by her daughter, Florence Farris, aged 15 years, Mrs. James Yates, wife of a farmer at Union City, drowned two of her stepchildren, Ligon Yates, aged 12, and Ida May Yates, aged 10, near their home in the vicinity of Troy last Wednesday afternoon, the crime being one of the most horrible ever perpetrated in that county. It was the purpose of the woman to drown her other stepchild, James Yates, aged 8, but while Mrs. Yates and her daughter were struggling with his brother, he succeeded in making his escape.

The first known death at the penitentiary at Nashville by electrocution occurred about 4 o'clock last Thursday morning, when Alfred Adams, colored, aged 24, sent up from Memphis for a year charged with petit larceny, tried to make his escape over wall. He had evidently climbed to the top of the wagon gate to reach the top of the wall. Coming in contact with one of the electric guard wires, the shock of 2,300 volts struck his body and hurled him violently back to the ground several feet from the wall, badly bruising his face and hands, breaking his leg and killing him instantly. He had only about five months longer to serve.
