

Indestructible Glass Caskets:

A Modern Invention Which Outrivals all the Art of Ancient Egypt in the Preservation of the Dead

Practically Indestructible

A casket cast of solid glass is as near indestructible and everlasting as it is possible for the mind of man to devise. Granite hills disintegrate and crumble away under the erosion of time because they are but particles of sand pressed together during the rock forming ages of earth. Glass is composed of particles of sand fused into a molten mass, which will not rust or corrode and is not affected by moisture or dampness. It is truly eternal.

Absolutely Sanitary

The mechanical construction of these glass caskets is such that when closed they are hermetically sealed—becoming perfectly air tight and waterproof, the contents are, therefore, preserved in an absolute sanitary condition—sealed more perfectly than if locked in the "Rock of Ages."

AN INVENTION THAT WILL REVOLUTIONIZE THE CASKET BUSINESS

The De Camp Glass Casket is destined to supplant all other forms of burial containers. It is constructed of two solid moulded pieces of glass, with reinforced glass ribs on the inside, completely encircling both the upper and lower sections. The lid of the casket is hinged by means of metallic bands, which are placed outside and around both sections of the casket, underlaid with felt, thus preventing the metal from coming in contact with the glass and eliminating the boring of holes in the glass. The two sections are constructed with a tongue and groove joint, which is filled with a sealing compound, so that when the lid is placed in its final resting place the two sections are united in a continuous whole, forming a solid glass vault. The De Camp Glass Burial Casket is covered by U. S. Patent No. 1,123,857, granted to J. W. De Camp, of Blackwell, Oklahoma, dated January 5, 1915, and subsequent patents. The De Camp Glass Casket Company has complied with the laws of the State of Tennessee, under the provisions of Chapter 31, Public Acts of the First Extra Session 1913 regulating investment companies.

Do You Want To Share Our Profits?

A sufficient amount of stock will be sold to meet the actual requirements in constructing and equipping the factory ready for operation and leave on hand a sufficient working capital in order to discount all bills. The stock will be sold for one-half cash, balance three and six months.

Here Is Your Opportunity to Make Money—People With Money to Invest Will Do Well to Investigate Our Proposition at Once. The Company expects profits of approximately $10 per casket, therefore, the dividends on each share of stock based on the population and death rate in the states under our control, and our ability to sell 30 per cent. of the caskets needed, will equal 75 to 100 per cent. on the entire capital stock of the Company.

In our honest opinion this estimate is far too low, as we firmly believe that when these glass caskets are put before the public fully 75 per cent. of all caskets used will be the DE CAMP GLASS CASKET. We have EXCLUSIVE rights to manufacture and sell De Camp Glass Caskets in Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

WAVE OF PROSPERITY.

Not within the memory, perhaps, of the present generation has there been such a wave of prosperity as is now sweeping over this fair land of ours.

This paper is not claiming that the democratic administration is altogether responsible for this healthy condition of our nation. Nor do we know that the present administration has anything at all to do with it. But if a former democratic administration was held responsible for a panic, then is it not fair and equitable to accord the present democratic administration with good times?

The daily press almost daily records the advance of wages of different classes of workingmen. Factories and mills and mines that have long laid idle are resuming operation and there is a general call for labor of all kinds a living wage scale. The operation of soup kitchen is only a memory. No more do we hear of the unemployed. Cattle and hogs and all farm products are bringing top-notch prices. Living expenses are within the bounds of reason.

The federal government is extending a helping hand to the farmer, who, in turn, is learning the methods of scientific farming—the scheme of producing more on less ground at less expense.

All this under a democratic administration, presided over by the greatest, the brainiest, the biggest president since Washington—WOODROW WILSON!

The effort to make an addition to the Dresden school building ought to have the hearty endorsement and liberal support of every citizen of this town. There are, perhaps, many here who will feel able to contribute only a dollar each and this ought to be accepted with the same spirit as the several $100 donations expected.

Some months ago, looking a little to the future, the Enterprise told you that the time was coming when there would be vast amount of automobile travel from the lakes to the north of us to the gulf on the south; that this travel would take the most direct route, following as closely as possible the I. C. railroad; that it was not improbable that much of this travel would come, if not directly through, within a few miles of Dresden. And this being true, this paper urged concert of action in making Dresden so attractive that many of these tourists would be attracted here by reason of the little town's beauty. There has been some small degree of effort to improve the looks of the town, but not enough. There are some hedges in this town that need to be trimmed and shaped; some front yards need beautifying; homes need painting; our streets are in a miserable state of repair; the telephone and light poles ought to be painted to a height of ten feet from the ground; a whole carload of lime could be effectually used on the outbuildings and fences and trees, etc. All this should be done with the idea in mind of attracting attention to Dresden, the town beautiful. Only last week a gigantic good roads meeting was held at Jackson, at which committees were appointed, looking to a link of the proposed Davis highway from the lakes to the gulf, which it is proposed to extend through this county, and even if Dresden should not be directly upon this great highway, which is to be traveled annually by thousands of tourists, we might, at least, attract some of these tourists here by the beauty of our town. Every citizen, white or black, of Dresden can aid in this matter.

Woodrow Wilson is the president of all the people of the United States. The United States is now and has for some time been facing a great crisis. As president of these United States, Mr. Wilson and as such will have the hearty support of every true, loyal American, whether democrat, republican or what not, in this crisis. The puny, narrow, little effort upon the part of top-waters to belittle the president of the United States in such times is nothing short of disloyalty to the American flag.

Senatorial Primary To be Held Aug. 3.

At a meeting of the senatorial committee of the Twenty-eighth senatorial district of Tennessee, held at Dresden, June 24, 1916, it was resolved:

1st. That a democratic primary election be called to be held in all the voting precincts of Lake, Obion and Weakley counties on the first Thursday in August, 1916, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for senator for the district.

2nd. All white democrats of said three counties composing said senatorial district, without regard to past factional differences, who will pledge their support to the nominee of said primary, and who under the law will be eligible to vote in the regular November (1916) election, shall be entitled to vote in said primary election.

3rd. No poll tax receipt or registration certificate will be required of the voter in said primary, but no one will be allowed to vote in any district other than that of his place of residence.

4th. The polls shall be opened for said primary at 9 a. m. and closed at 4 p. m.

5th. In all counties where there is a contest nomination for direct representative, in which the county democratic chairman will supervise, control and appoint the judges, clerks and other officers of said primary election, the said appointees of the said county chairman will act in the same capacity for the senatorial candidates. In counties where there is no contest necessitating a primary for the nomination of county officers the senatorial committeeman of said county shall appoint the judges, clerks and officers from the democratic voters of the several districts of said county to hold said senatorial primary election. Said judges, clerks and officers to be selected with a view to giving to each candidate a fair and equitable representation in each and every precinct in the county.

6th. In all counties where there is a contest for direct representative, the senatorial candidates will bear their pro rata part of the election expenses with the contestants for the direct nomination, such as the publication of the primary call, poll lists, ballots and tally sheets, as also any other expense necessarily incident to the holding of said election. In order to provide for this contingency each candidate shall deposit with the chairman of the committee, on or before the 20th day of July, next, the sum of $15, and should only one candidate qualify by making such deposit by July 20, 1916, such candidate shall, by the chairman of the committee, be declared the nominee. If the county executive committee of any county, where there is a contest for direct representative, should agree that the same ballot, be used in said primary, it may contain the names of all the senatorial candidates, as well as those for direct representative and each voter may designate his choice for each office by making a cross mark either before or after the name of the candidate of his choice. Each senatorial candidate may provide for the distribution of tickets personally or through the county chairman or the senatorial committeeman of the county.

7th. No compensation will be allowed any judges, clerks or other officers for holding said election, and said judges and clerks shall certify under their signatures the exact vote of each senatorial candidate received at his voting precinct, and forward the same to the chairman of the senatorial committee at Dresden not later than August 10, 1916, where, on August 15, said senatorial committee will meet to canvass the vote and declare the result of said primary; and the candidate receiving the largest number of votes will be declared the nominee.—E. E. Tansil, Chairman.
