

THE TIMES.

PORT TOBACCO, MD.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 11, 1870.

Owing to the stirring scenes and incidents of the three days preceding the election, of which this village was the theatre, we have been unable to issue more than a half sheet this week. We are sure our readers will excuse us.

We congratulate our readers upon the glorious result of Tuesday. Busy and crowded, as we are this week, we have neither time nor space to do more than to extend our heartfelt congratulations upon the happy issue of the struggle through which we have just passed. Our triumph is doubly gratifying to every Charles Countyman, inasmuch as it pays a well merited tribute to one of the noblest and most honored sons of our good county. All honor, we say, to William M. Merrick! Three cheers for our gallant standard bearer!!!

The election on Tuesday passed off quietly. No disturbance of any kind occurred at any of the voting precincts. The morning opened bright and clear, giving promise of a beautiful day, which was fully realized until the declining sun hid his splendor in the west. Early in the morning the notes of busy preparation for marshalling the adherents of the two parties were heard on all sides. Breakfasts were held by both parties in the various districts. Those of the Radicals were attended almost entirely by the colored element while but few of this class were to be found at the Democratic meetings. Shortly after 9 o'clock the Radicals were formed in line and marched in solid column to the polls. Parties whose Radical proclivities admitted of no suspicion, were stationed on either side of the line to prevent any of the weak or wavering from leaving the ranks, and the organization was kept intact until the last man had voted. No attempt was made as far as we can learn, to interfere with their arrangements, although until their last march had voted, no Democrat could get a chance to deposit his ballot. Many who were seen in the line were, undoubtedly, reluctant to remain there, but the party whip which was flourished over them effectually overcame their scruples and they faced the music, though on the part of some it was unquestionably done with bad grace. Thus, in a comparatively short time after the opening of the polls, almost the entire Radical vote had been cast. As the day progressed the Democrats who evidently were actuated by none of the motives for haste which governed the other party, gathered by degrees and by two o'clock it was manifest that the counting had commenced and that the party which had suffered the loss of the Democracy had really achieved a most signal triumph. The glorious news spread rapidly in every direction and early next morning couriers from every district had brought the tidings to Port Tobacco. Amid the general rejoicing, but one regret was felt and that was, that the deep damning disgrace of the good old county being carried by the Radicals by even such an insignificant majority. However, all felt that a glorious day's work had been done and a corresponding feeling of thankfulness animated every bosom. The vainglorious boasts of the Radical leaders had been brought to naught. Their predictions that they would get two white voters for every colored vote received by the Democrats, were laughed at when it became known that their white vote was not as large as that of Grant two years ago. On the contrary, the Democratic colored votes were largely in excess of one hundred, while they (the Radicals) had received less than a third of that number of the whites. This result speaks for itself and teaches a suggestive lesson which we commend to the careful study of those who discount aspirants after political honors. It proclaims the death knell of the Radical faction. It has lifted here its "horrid front" for the last time. Its dying notes have already reverberated along every hillside, plain and valley in our proud old county and the Radical faction will rise no more rampant to insult the intelligence and self-respect of a free honest people.

Demagogue Mass Meeting and Barbecue. Monday last was a gala day in Port Tobacco. The political cauldron was boiling, seething all that day. The shouts, the cheers, the martial music, the loud huzzahs, the thronged streets, all proclaimed the grand success of the Mass Meeting and Barbecue that day held under Democratic auspices. The next day's setting sun would close up the contest, and this was the last rally for the morrow's fight. The Radicals had held high carnival on the Saturday previous, their gathering was large and imposing, the fluent King spoke in flaming style and Mr. James A. Gary tried to entertain the crowd. Finding that the Democrats had issued a call for a Mass Meeting and Barbecue, on Monday, they directed their march to remain until that day, and themselves issued a call to the sable sons to come on Monday, bear their music and eat beef. This, of course, was a gay diversion and kept a large crowd from the Democratic entertainment. About 12 m., however, the Democratic band arrived from Washington and things were lively. The Radical procession had already marched several times through the streets of the town, but soon the Democratic lines, in bright force, were formed and made their grand parade. About one o'clock, the Hon.

The War in Europe. From data furnished by an American correspondent at Versailles, it would appear that the military status of the French is far from hopeless, while the situation of the Prussians is not altogether a surety for the success of their demands. According to this exhibit Paris, in the first place, is impregnable, and is fully supplied with two months' provisions, while Gen. Trochu has 250,000 men fit for offensive service in the field. Then, outside of Paris, there are the armies of the Loire, 120,000 strong, under Palladin; of the west, 100,000 strong, under Keratry; of the Rhone, 110,000, under Michel; of central France, 90,000, under Triphan; of the north, 65,000, under Bourbaki; and of the Vosges, 45,000, making a total of 530,000 men, all well armed, and fully supplied with everything needful, to say nothing of the numerous bands of Franc-tireurs and sharpshooters operating in an independent fashion. On the other hand, the Prussians who are besieging Paris are charged with a daily sick list of about 300 to every 1,000 men; their recruiting power is believed to be at a halt, their last recruits being nearly all boys under nineteen years of age. In spite of these and other disadvantages, however, the Prussian armies continue to operate vigorously in the interior, but if the foregoing figures are not merely an idle boast, it will be simply wonderful if the French have not the better bargain before the last of December.

A statement of the details of the negotiations of M. Thiers, said to be made on good authority, represents that the chief points of discussion were the revivification of Paris, and the proposition for the people of Lorraine and Alsace to vote, both of which were persistently rejected by King William. M. Thiers is said to be of the opinion that the Prussians will not bombard Paris on account of the public sentiment against it, but will shell the forts and make attacks in force.

Storehouse and Goods Burned. The storehouse at Budd's Creek, just over the dividing line of Charles and St. Mary's county, together with a large stock of goods, was destroyed by fire on Monday night last. The house was owned by a Mr. Chinn, and the stock of goods by Mr. Daniel Payne. The loss of Mr. Payne is estimated at about $6,000. The building, we understand, was a new one, and is supposed to have been set on fire by some malicious person.

"A Wonder of Medical Science." May well be applied to Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. It is nearly half a century since this remarkable medicine was introduced to the public, and yet it has maintained an enviable reputation which it has well deserved. It is a powerful cathartic, and is used in the treatment of coughs, colds, whooping cough, sore throat, influenza, consumption, and all bronchial complaints, is to this day fully sustained.

The Tobacco Crop. The crop of tobacco grown in Kentucky in 1870, according to the best estimates, will amount to about 90,000 hds.; the crop in Illinois to about 15,000 hds.; the crop of Missouri to about 30,000 hds.; the crop of Tennessee to about 20,000 hds.—thus estimating the entire Western crop at 180,000 hds. It is believed Virginia and North Carolina's crop will amount to about 50,000 hds.

Phosphate of Lime in Medicine. A French author has recently written a work to impress upon physicians the importance of administering phosphate of lime in their practice. He professes to prove that this substance is, above all others, the natural supplement of the function of nutrition; that by its action the albuminous matter is made to take the form of cellular, and that it presides over the organization of the tissues; that is to say, it is pre-eminently the agent of nutrition. The lacto-phosphate of lime is also recommended very strongly, as an active agent in medicine; and in the distinctness of its action and the positiveness of its effects, it claims to be ranked with potash, iron, iodine and chloral as one of the most valuable contributions of chemistry to the healing art during the present century.

Baltimore Correspondence.

Baltimore, Nov. 8, 1870.

The questions which have been agitating the public mind to some extent are to-day being decided at the ballot-box, and in a few hours the fate of each eager aspirant for political honors will have been determined. The election, as far as we have been able to ascertain, is passing off in an almost Sabbath-like quietude. There is not the slightest indication, nor has there ever been, that there will be any case of military interposition to preserve order and insure fairness at the polls. There is, however, a body of U. S. troops quartered at Fort McHenry, in accordance with the provisions of the oilous enforcement act, under orders to move into the city at a moment's notice, should there be any disturbance. It is extremely gratifying that no pretext has thus far been afforded them to interfere. The vote, of course, will be an unusually large one, and this, exclusive of the negro vote, as both parties will bring out pretty nearly their entire strength. Sambo, proud of his newly invested right, was at the polls bright and early this morning, and ready to deposit his ballot long before the various voting precincts were open for that purpose. The great bulk of the negro vote was consequently taken in the forenoon, and those whose "saber wits" were averse to taking chances in the run of the raw material this morning have been afforded an opportunity of voting under more agreeable circumstances. Great indignation is felt here at the census returns made by the U. S. Government officials, by which it appears that Baltimore city has but 267,000 inhabitants, thus ranking the sixth city in the Union. By the returns made by census takers, appointed by the city authorities, several years ago, it is shown that Baltimore had then 352,000 inhabitants. How she has lost nearly one hundred thousand since then, whilst at the same time growing apparently with unprecedented rapidity is a mystery which we venture to say no man, not in sympathy with the party in power, can at all account for on any hypothesis of fair dealing.

The Board of Bishops of the M. E. Church have been holding daily sessions in this city for several days past. The principal duty connected with their meetings is the arrangement for holding annual Conferences and the appointment of Presiding Bishops for the same. Archbishop Spalding is expected to arrive in this city on Tuesday next, when it is proposed by the various Catholic Societies to welcome him in a becoming manner.

The suit of Kibberly Bros. vs. Gen. Benj. F. Butler, brought to recover the rental of certain buildings at Fortress Monroe, while Gen. Butler was commandant of that post, has been discontinued by the plaintiffs. It is believed that the suit was continued from time to time. It has been a means of affording many of the Baltimoreans an opportunity of seeing the remarkable face of the "beast," which, it is needless to say, is a privilege never desired more than once.

The weather still continues beautiful, and the "fall sties" are displaying themselves in a manner which evinces a full appreciation of bright autumnal skies. WEGO.

A meeting of Confederate officers and soldiers was held in Richmond on Thursday night of last week, in the First Presbyterian Church. The edifice was crowded to overflowing. At 7 o'clock Gen. Bradley T. Johnson called the meeting to order, and upon his motion, Gen. Jubal A. Early was elected temporary Chairman. Gen. Early, on taking the chair, paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of him whom he described as "the greatest and noblest of men," then Mr. Jefferson Davis was called to preside over the meeting and made an address. Resolutions were passed in favor of an association to erect a monument at Richmond to the memory of Robert E. Lee, as an enduring testimonial of our love and respect and devotion to his fame. Generals John S. Preston, John B. Gordon and Henry A. Wise and William Henry Preston and Colonel Robert E. Withers and Charles Marshall delivered eloquent and appropriate speeches, and argued that Richmond is the proper place for the final interment of the remains of General Lee.

Central Iowa Railroad and Bonds. The rapidity with which railroads are built in the Western States is something that our eastern people are not accustomed to see. We have heard much, during the past year, of the prospects and progress of the Central Railroad of Iowa, whose route traverses the State from north to south, through the most thickly settled and largely productive sections of that rich State. The names of eminent capitalists of the east were associated with the enterprise, and it was announced that the road should be pushed through with all practicable speed, without depending for funds upon sales of the Company's securities. This promise has been made good. Twelve thousand tons of the very best iron was bought, paid for and shipped to the line; three thousand men and teams were put to work; the President of the road maintained upon the ground to see that nothing halted the construction; an abundant supply of the best rolling stock was contracted for, and during the summer and autumn months the rails have been advancing from point to point, and new stations have been opened in rapid succession, each one contributing its valuable quota to the business of the road. The grand result is becoming manifest. The road is now finished from Marshalltown, near the centre of the State, to the Minnesota line, and cars are now running regularly between St. Paul and Marshalltown, a distance of 237 miles. So much of the remaining distance from Marshalltown to the Missouri line is also done there are only wanting some thirty miles of track-laying to open the entire grand line between St. Paul and St. Louis. This will be done in a few weeks, and before the close of the year, the great work will be accomplished, and the direct line of 580 miles between these two great commercial cities of the West will be in full operation. Upon this line (now practically finished), whose connections must give it a large through traffic, and whose location will be to us a profitable local business, First Mortgage 7 per cent. Bonds to the small amount of $16,000,000 per mile are issued, which are sold at 90 and accrued interest. At this rate these bonds are much more profitable than Government bonds, and the Treasurer's advertisement in another column shows that financiers of unquestioned judgment pronounce them "thoroughly safe as well as profitable." All the circumstances confirm the soundness of this opinion.

A Body and Mind Disease. Such is dyspepsia. The stomach and the brain are too intimately allied for the one to suffer independently of the other, so that dyspepsia and depression are inseparable. It may be added, too, that irritation of the stomach is almost invariably accompanied by irritation of the temper. The invigorating and tranquilizing operation of Hostetter's Bitters is most powerfully developed in cases of this kind. The effect of this agreeable tonic is comforting and encouraging. A mild glow pervades the system, the chronic uneasiness in the region of the stomach is lessened, and the nervous restlessness which characterizes the disease is abated. It is not succeeded by the return of the old symptoms with superadded force, as is always the case when unmedicated stimulants are given for the complaint. Each dose seems to impart a permanent accession of healthful invigoration. But this is not all. The aperient and antibilious properties of the preparation are scarcely secondary in importance to its tonic virtues. If there is an overflow of bile the secretion is soon brought within proper limits, and if the bileary organ is inert and torpid it is toned and regulated. The effect upon the discharging organs is equally salutary, and in cases of constipation the cathartic action is just sufficient to produce the desired result gradually and without pain. The Bitters also promote healthy evaporation from the surface which is particularly desirable at this season when sudden spells of raw, unpleasant weather, are apt to check the natural perspiration and produce congestion of the liver, coughs and colds. The best of all remedies against all diseases of the body, and this the great Vegetable Restorative essentially promotes.

OBITUARY. Died, on the 28th ultimo, of consumption, at the residence of her uncle, Mr. JOHN NEWBERRY, of Charles county, Miss JANE S. CARINGTON, daughter of Mr. SAMUEL CARINGTON, in the 32d year of age. Confirmed in 1863; a bright character; devoted to her church; and generous beyond others to the extent of her means, there were circumstances in the death of this young lady which are equally worthy of much of our grief. Her home was one of much affliction. She wished not to leave her loved ones behind; but she had the fortitude to do so, and would receive her father into the realms of the blessed. Then it was that, without a trace of sadness on her features, she related to him her dream about her own coffin: "I dreamed it was a beautiful coffin, lined with flowers, and angels stood beside it." And when soon after he came again, called to attend the last sad funeral rites, there indeed was her pretty coffin decked with flowers, while one little bouquet still more beautiful lay on her snow white bosom, which now rested from its quick and painful heaving. He could not indeed see heaven's lovely messengers (though they may have stood by all assemblies), but his eye was arrested by the sight of three angel figures embossed on each handle of the coffin. Two stood on either side leaning over, and as if peering into the open book of the Gospel which rested upon what seemed to be the breast of the third one who was on the middle of the handle, in the posture of flying, as if winging his flight to Heaven with the news that one more saint was on her way to the Paradise of the blessed dead. As an appropriate ending of this brief notice I copy the favorite words of the hymn she so much loved: "Jesus can make a dying bed Soft as the downy pillows are; While on his breast I lay my head, And breathe my life out sweetly there." J. T.

Died, October 29th, at the residence of her parents, VICTORIA R., third daughter of J. J. and V. R. HUGHES, in the 7th year of her age. Another of God's little children, pure and spotless as the snow-cloth which she placed upon her coffin, has gone to her happy home in heaven, where, joined by angel voices, she sings in endless praise of Him who made her. Alas, how sad that those who love and prize the most should be the first to lose! O, cold withering hand of death, how blighting is thy blow! This lovely child, rich in all rare endowments that can adorn the mind and grace the heart, of a disposition so gentle, so affectionate, and so confiding, won all hearts to love her, and gave the brightest promise of a happy, useful future. That "wisdom can be learned from the mouths of babes" was well verified by the subject of this brief tribute. The simple truths uttered by her infant lips evinced so plainly the charming beauty of her nature and the guileless innocence of her lovely life that it was indeed "the heart that magnified her life making a truth and beauty of its own." No matter how ardent the love, no matter how great the loss or how deep the grief, let us not question the inscrutable ways of Him, who gives and takes. It was His will that the awful trial it is for us to accept the mandate of His will and humbly bend beneath His chastening rod, for He alone can give the grace to bear the burden and heal the bleeding heart.
