PORT TOBACCO: Friday Morning, August 28, 1885.

The New York committee on the Grant monument have formally voted that the money to be raised must be $1,000,000.

Thomas J. Cluervius, convicted of killing his cousin, Miss Madison, is said to have improved in flesh and strength during his imprisonment, and to preserve a cheerful demeanor.

The following is the official statement posted on the Chicago Board of Trade on Tuesday, showing the amount of grain in sight in this country and Canada, and the amount in store at Chicago on Saturday, August 22.

The American Bar Association now in annual session at Saratoga is considering the subject of the law's delay. In the days of ancient Greece the sun of the day on which a case was commenced was not allowed to set until that case had been decided.

The Register of the Treasury has issued the following order: "To avoid the troubles and delays in the transfer of United States bonds by the successors or legal representatives of holders, nominally or really in a fiduciary capacity, this office will hereafter require as a condition precedent to the issue to any trustee, executor, administrator, guardian, &c., that the beneficiary or particular trust represented shall be named in the application and in the assignment of the bonds for the purposes proposed."

The St. Mary's Enterprise, states that several capitalists from Philadelphia were in St. Mary's county during the past week, inspecting the condition of the Southern Maryland Railroad, which will be sold in a few days. They also viewed Point Lookout property, which is advertised for sale by the sheriff.

The signal service at St. Paul, Minn., has advised reporting a killing frost over the greater portion of the Northwest Territory, extending southward to the northern portion of Minnesota.

The storm which has been central on the Georgia coast struck Charleston, S. C., on Tuesday in the form of a cyclone and inflicted damage that is estimated at a million dollars. One-fourth of the houses in the city were unroofed, and churches and public buildings, wharves and shipping suffered greatly.

A Washington dispatch to the Boston Post, says that Gen. Benj. F. Butler has lately written that if President Cleveland kept on as he had begun he would prove the biggest and best President that had occupied the White House in recent years.

The growth of cremation in the United States has been general. The New York Cremation Society was organized in New York city in 1851, as also was the United States Cremation Company, (limited). By this company was laid the cornerstone of the Mount Olivet Crematory, in November of last year.

Gen. Frederick T. Dent, brother-in-law of Gen. Grant, is quoted as saying that he knew it to be Gen. Grant's wish that his father should be buried at the Soldiers' Home in Washington, adding: "I am satisfied that the entire family would have liked him to lie there; but who was there to guarantee that Mrs. Grant could rest beside him? Congress alone has jurisdiction over the ground there and at Arlington. No officer of the government could grant the permission as to Mrs. Grant. Had Congress been in session, no doubt a joint resolution covering the authority for her burial would have been at once passed, and then the General would have been taken where he rightfully belongs, and where the whole country thinks he ought to rest. But Congress was not in session, and nothing could be guaranteed in the matter. The city of New York stepped forward and gave the tract of ground in Riverside Park for the remains of the General and Mrs. Grant forever, and she has the dead."

The Administration Endorsed.

After the customary wail of dissatisfaction on the part of discontented individuals within the party, for the most part office-seekers, it is most gratifying to observe that the administration is being cordially endorsed by the democratic party in its series of State conventions.

This augurs well for the future success of the party and gives every promise that the great success of last fall will be followed up all along the line in the campaign which is now beginning. It is thus made apparent that Mr. Cleveland's administration is not likely to deserve the censure of being "an administration without a party."

Nothing has, however, occurred to throw the slightest suspicion upon his thorough Democracy, and the unanimity with which he is sustained in his policy by the representative Democratic statesmen who compose his cabinet ought to be satisfactory assurance that the cautious policy in its nature of official changes is not due to any lack of recognition of all the rights and merits of the Democratic party or an undue sympathy with that respectable element of political free lances known as the "mug wumps."

The President has already unequivocally announced his purpose of having every officer of an executive character, including the heads of all the different bureaus of the public service filled with Democrats, and that offensive Republican partisan should be weeded out from all the subordinate clerical positions, and he has been proceeding with this policy steadily but decorously and with as much promptness as the circumstances with which his administration is surrounded will admit of.

To this class of officers of fixed terms the positions of Collector and Naval Officer at the Port of Baltimore belong. The terms of these officers will expire early in the year 1886, and there is not a doubt that their places will then be promptly filled with deserving Democrats. While there can be no doubt that the Senate would sustain the President in his clearly announced policy of compelling the future appointment of all the civil officers of the government from personal interference in political affairs, it might be questionable whether it would recognize such action in past administrations, when it was openly encouraged, as we feel sure of present reform; and so we justly sure that no judicious Democrat will find fault with the administration in its determination to allow these officers to hold on for the short remainder of their official terms.

It is very gratifying to find the administration so fully and freely endorsed by the Democracy of the country and every individual voter should deem it his duty to yield his private opinion in deference to the superior judgment of the President and his Cabinet. It is highly important that the party should present this fall an united and aggressive front in every county of the Union, and the private grievances of disappointed office seekers ought not to be heard to cool the enthusiasm which naturally follows so grand a consummation as the fraternal reunion of a great people after a quarter of a century of hostility and estrangement.

Gen. Frederick T. Dent, brother-in-law of Gen. Grant, is quoted as saying that he knew it to be Gen. Grant's wish that his father should be buried at the Soldiers' Home in Washington, adding: "I am satisfied that the entire family would have liked him to lie there; but who was there to guarantee that Mrs. Grant could rest beside him? The First Step of Tariff Reform.

In the second edition of his book on "The Distribution of Products," Mr. Edward Atkinson makes a study of the recent commercial statistics of the United States in order to ascertain what proportion of the people of this country are engaged in occupations that bring them in the competition with foreign workmen. Of the 17,400,000 persons enumerated in the census of 1880 as engaged in all employments, Mr. Atkinson finds but 2,400,000 in occupations affected by foreign commerce, the remaining 15,000,000 being engaged in work which can be carried on only within the limits of this country, and is, therefore, not subject to competition, be the tariff high or low.

It is thus made apparent that Mr. Cleveland's administration is not likely to deserve the censure of being "an administration without a party."

Nothing has, however, occurred to throw the slightest suspicion upon his thorough Democracy, and the unanimity with which he is sustained in his policy by the representative Democratic statesmen who compose his cabinet ought to be satisfactory assurance that the cautious policy in its nature of official changes is not due to any lack of recognition of all the rights and merits of the Democratic party or an undue sympathy with that respectable element of political free lances known as the "mug wumps."

It seems to be generally conceded that the two State officers, comptroller and clerk of the Court of Appeals, to be nominated by the State convention will be the present incumbents. The convention will be, therefore, devoid of interest, except, perhaps, in so far as the platform may treat matters of general policy. Among those matters none is at this time occupying more consideration than the present mode of filling public offices. It is thought the democratic platform will embody some expressions on the civil service law. Some of the party leaders have expressed themselves in favor of upholding this law with strong expressions, but at the same time claiming that the party in power and responsible for the government should administer the law and be true to their honor. The governing commission by two demerits to one republican, which would be a reversal of the present order of things. A leading democrat said recently in this connection that the law should be made more flexible, so that at all times the government could replace men in office by better men when better men are available. The resolutions, it is understood, will heartily endorse President Cleveland's administration, and probably there will be expressions favorable to Senator Grimes and Gov. Lloyd, who will both be before the Legislature for election.

Healthful Vigor for the Girls. Mrs. Livermore says, in one of her lectures on Girls, "I would give to girls equal intellectual and industrial training with boys. Yes, and give them equally good health too." When your girls are suffering from nervous debility, it is a sign that their blood is poor and thin, and that they need Brown's Iron Bitters. The only preparation of iron that can be taken safely. Mrs. Brown, Chemist at Louisville, Ky., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of rheumatism when everything else had failed."

PABULUM! PABULUM!! PABULUM!!!

PABULUM is now too favorably known to require comment or to need the publication of further testimonials. Those who have used it know how to appreciate it; those who have not will find that its liberal use will pay on present crops, besides being of future benefit to their lands. The superiority of Bone as a base for an active and permanent manure is certainly admitted by all who have given the subject of manures any attention. Phosphate obtained from Bone has a decidedly more favorable effect and action upon crops of all kinds, and upon all soils, than Phosphate obtained from the cheap mineral sources. It is also fully to expect to make a complete Guano of a high grade from any of the Phosphate, holding mineral substances as from the bones of animals. Various forms of animal sources is also far superior to that obtained from other fertilizers, and explain the uniformly satisfactory results that follow its use. Even on the Wheat crop of the past disastrous season, fair results were yielded, for such season, where it was used, when other fertilizers produced but meagre results. Five Hundred lbs of PABULUM per acre will yield better results than 400 lbs. of low grade goods, thus at its price, $34 per ton, which we assert positively is as low as any other high grade Guano can be manufactured and sold; it is cheaper and costs the farmer less than the low grade Guanos sold at low prices.

BAKER'S SPECIAL GUANO, A Guano for $25 per Ton.

This Guano is manufactured to supply a demand for low priced fertilizers, and is offered to the public after a thorough practical field-trial of its merits as a crop producer, with full confidence that it is composed of better and more effective constituents than are used in any Guano sold at the same price. It is far better than any of the articles made for farmers on their own formulas, and is much more reliable. In addition to the above mentioned articles, we offer

PURE GROUND BONE MEAL,

Guaranteed from RAW BONE, and free from the large percentage of moisture that is common to most Bone Dust that is otherwise pure. Moisture in Bone Dust is not readily observed, and it is a source of much loss to farmers.

Ammoniated Dissolved Bone Super-Phosphate,

DISSOLVED SOUTH CAROLINA PHOSPHATE, KAINIT, TANKING, NITRATE OF SODA, MURIATE OF POTASH, AND ALL KINDS OF FERTILIZER SUPPLIES needed to farmers who wish to use special mixtures
