

The New Year.
A New Year's greeting: Happiness to all!
How sweet the words that fall upon the ear,
Each other in the Spring-time of the year!
The words of friends, and others still more dear,
Fall on the heart this morn'g on Summer's day,
And, freshening it, new blossoms appear.
Within affection's lower, we never knew
Until this loving greeting brought them into view.

Another new year comes to all this day,
And every season with emotion swells.
And on the face the smile that like a ray,
Of sunlight beams, or quietude, as
Of that rare peace which in the pure heart
And crowns its being with a bliss supreme.
Oh joy! how full thy life unfathomable wells!
How sweet the thought, how bright thy water's gleam!
How like heaven's living springs they to life's vision seem!

Another new year! While its moments fly,
Be it our aim to live such passing days
Upright and pure, thro' all our life,
And walking firmly in the way.
For strength from God let us unceasing pray,
That so, in all we're called to do, no fear
May rise to turn our throbbing hearts astray.
From that bright clime, whose splendors
shall appear,
When we have entered life's mending glad new year!

AMBUSHED - NEW YEAR'S MORNING.

WAITING TO GREET PAPA WITH "A HAPPY NEW YEAR"

The Dog's Christmas Wish.
My little master wants a drum,
And a watch for his very own;
But I am only a little dog,
And I'd like a turkey bone.

-M. F. Butts.

The Cat's Christmas Wish.

My little mistress wants a ring,
And a well-filled dolly house;
But I am only a little cat,
And I'd like a good fat mouse.

MICHAEL DAVITT'S BRIDE-ELECT.

When He First Met Miss Yore - Her Narrow Escape from Drowning.

Michael Davitt, the father of the Land League and champion of the Irish cause, will shortly marry Miss Mary A. Yore, of St. Joseph, Mich. Mr. Davitt's attention was first attracted to his bride-elect at a musical entertainment in St. Francis de Sales Church, at Oakland, Cal. Miss Yore was singing soprano, and he was struck with the fine quality of her voice, and sought her acquaintance. She is the daughter of John Yore, of St. Joseph, who is a prosperous but not wealthy country merchant. When little more than an infant she was adopted by her aunt, Mrs. James Canning, of Oakland, Cal., and has since lived with her, being regarded by Mr. and Mrs. Canning with as much affection as if she were their daughter in reality. Miss Yore was educated at the convent of the Sacred Heart, Oakland, and it was there Mr. Davitt first saw her. This was six years ago. The young lady is now the principal soprano singer in the choir of the Church of St. Francis de Sales, Oakland. It has been stated that she is an heiress in her own right. This is not so. Mrs. Canning is very wealthy, and it is probable that a large portion of her property went to her adopted daughter, Miss Yore, who has just passed her twentieth year, is a brunette, and of graceful figure. Her face is not strikingly handsome, but her charm of manner makes up for any lack of beauty of feature. She is a pleasing conversationalist. Her father is still living.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Yore to Mr. Davitt recalls the sad death of her mother in 1870, and the narrow escape of the bride-elect from a tragic death at the same time. Mrs. Yore and her daughter, then twelve years old, were on their way to the funeral of a relative, when the tongue of the wagon in which they were riding became detached from the harness, and the vehicle was dashed against the side rail of a bridge, which gave way, precipitating the party into the river twenty feet below. The accident was witnessed by persons on the bridge who hurried to the rescue. A leaky boat was launched, but soon filled with water. Finally Mrs. Yore was drawn ashore with her daughter clasped in her arms. She was dead, but the child had escaped unhurt.

Miss Yore was then adopted by a sister of her mother, and went with her new parents to California to live. A few years ago Miss Yore visited Ireland, and afterward made a tour of Europe.
