GEN'L AGENT FOR
G. OBER & SON COMPANY,
MANUFACTURERS OF
STANDARD FERTILIZERS, AND DEALERS IN FERTILIZING MATERIALS.
OFFICE, 25 S. Gay Street, COLO. BLDG., MARINE BANK BUILDING, BALTIMORE.
Factory, Locust Point.

Before purchasing your Fertilizers for the coming season, it will be to your interest to give us a call. All the above brands are strictly reliable, besides we keep in stock all kinds of the best grade material from which we can make you any grade Fertilizer you may need. This House is an old established one, and every thing they sell, you are represented. As an evidence of the superiority of our goods, my sales have increased from 20 tons per annum, the first year to one thousand and eighty-five tons, this being my sales in Charles and St. Mary's counties the past year. I shall not be satisfied until I sell every crop acre in fact in Southern Maryland, as it is not only for my own interest I wish to do so. My greatest desire is to induce the planters of Southern Maryland to use strictly first class goods, and can only do so by dealing with a first class house. If you will buy your goods from the G. OBER & SON Company you will not regret it. Mr. W. J. Burch, at Brantford, of Mr. C. B. Lloyd, our Collector and Sales men, will be glad to receive your orders, and I will devote as much time as I can in the two counties the coming season in order to induce the farmers of Southern Maryland to buy the best Fertilizers offered to the people of our State in Union. All Maryland orders sent direct to the Company will receive prompt attention.
Yours very truly,
JOHN M. LLOYD.
S. B. What Mr. James F. Mattingly, a large and practical farmer of Charles County, St. Mary's county, says of our Tobacco Compound: He says that he can grow as large Tobacco from our fertilizer as he can from other's, but while there is as good as to quality, it weighs from 1 1/2 to 2 more than any other Fertilizer that he has used. I will here add that Mr. Mattingly is not only a very good and prosperous farmer but strictly reliable. Mr. Mattingly has used our goods for several years and says he will use no other but for Wheat and Tobacco.

Poetry.
SPRING IN COMING.
BY ELSIE DAVEN.
Hang the skates on the attic wall,
Alas for spring and summer and fall!
No more gilding with soft light
Over the runners keen and bright,
No more rick for winter joys
Of sturdy, rollicking, noisy boys
On the glittering, shining ice,
Their feet and skates and sleds and sleds,
With straight, bending down--ho, ho!
Up and away, boys, here we go!
Hide it away--the coasting sled--
In the garret over the shed.
You will find it almost dead
A sight to itself, as if it were
No more speeding over the snow
Down the steep in the glow below.
No more storming the snow-fort wall,
A breath of spring has leveled it all!

But hip, hurrah for the hat and ball,
Marble, tops and tennis and all
Bring your boat and rejoice to see
The tripping lake's blue waters free,
Along the banks and in the bay,
Notice the bubbling stream to bay,
Here and there water in the country wide--
Who waits upon the green hillside?
Spring and summer and autumn fled--
Days and weeks and months are by--
You will find it almost dead
A sight to itself, as if it were
No more speeding over the snow
Down the steep in the glow below.
No more storming the snow-fort wall,
A breath of spring has leveled it all!

Nellie's Noble Deeds.
BY ABRIE C. McKEEVER.
"Thimble Alley! Oh, what a dreadful place; but there's no one can mend my lace equal to Mrs. Smith. Little boy, does Mrs. Smith live here?"
"Yes, fifth story, first door to your right." Nellie, with wide-open eyes, looked at the lady with wide-open eyes.
"L. r., ain't she some?" he said to a near companion, all shiny-like and soft. Whoop! if mammy had some of her finery we'd have a holiday dinner well as Biddy O'Brien."
"Ho! ho! hit Tim," roared the other, "the idea of a dinner out of finery." "I meant to sell it, you know well. But in the meantime Nellie Strong had reached the fifth door and stood almost out of breath, gazing about the wretched hallway where poverty held its reign."
"How can they live so?" she thought. "What horrid odors, and there's a half dozen babies crying below. Poor little things!" then she knocked on the door before her.
"Come in! called a woman's voice. Nellie pulled the creaking door open and entered the bare chamber.
At its only window a woman sat mending some costly lace. In a corner on a cot reclined a pale young girl. There was no fire in the room, although the air was keen and frosty. "Good morning, Mrs. Smith. I called with some work; I want this lace mended particularly before the party, and so I sought you out myself."
"Yes, Miss Strong; be seated, pray. Nellie took the one vacant chair, and turned her bright eyes upon the pale young girl on the cot.
"Are you an invalid?" she inquired gently.
"Oh, yes; I have been one always. I never could walk, but I do not suffer much now. I don't mean to say that you have lain here all your life!" cried Nellie, and never saw anything but these bare walls?
"Almost all my life. It isn't so bad for me as you would think. The neighbors are kind, and mother brings me a flower now and then, and gives me a cot, reclined a pale young girl. There was no fire in the room, although the air was keen and frosty. "Good morning, Mrs. Smith. "Oh, yes; I have been one always. I never could walk, but I do not suffer much now. I don't mean to say that you have lain here all your life!" cried Nellie, and never saw anything but these bare walls?
"Almost all my life. It isn't so bad for me as you would think. The neighbors are kind, and mother brings me a flower now and then, and gives me a cot, reclined a pale young girl. There was no fire in the room, although the air was keen and frosty. "Good morning, Mrs. Smith. I called with some work; I want this lace mended particularly before the party, and so I sought you out myself."
"Yes, Miss Strong; be seated, pray. Nellie took the one vacant chair, and turned her bright eyes upon the pale young girl on the cot.
"Are you an invalid?" she inquired gently.
"Oh, yes; I have been one always. I never could walk, but I do not suffer much now. I don't mean to say that you have lain here all your life!" cried Nellie, and never saw anything but these bare walls?
