SOME FACTS ABOUT EGGS.
Hatching Chickens by the Million in Egypt for American Stockmen.

The Egyptians are, however, far in advance of us in the science of raising chickens, and the incubating establishments of the country hatch out eggs by the million every year. At a hatching establishment near the Pyramids the farmers trade fresh eggs for young chickens and the rate is two eggs per chick. Another artificial egg hatchery turns 500,000 out little chickens every season and the oven crop of chickens in Egypt amounts, according to figures furnished me by the Consul-General, to more than twenty millions of chickens a year.

We have about two hundred million dollars worth of money in the fowl industry in the United States, an amount so large that all the money of Jay Gould could not equal it, and still we have to import more than sixteen million dozens of eggs every year. If America would adopt the Egyptian hatching system we could sell eggs instead of buying them and our farmers might buy little chickens to raise at a price of 20 cents a dozen. More than twenty millions of little chickens are sold each year in this way in Egypt and there is a regular business in chickens just old enough to walk.

The incubators are rude, one-story buildings, made of unburned bricks, so arranged that the eggs are laid upon cut straw in racks in rooms, around the ovens, which are kept fired up during the hatching season. The outside walls are very thick and are built so that they retain heat, and the only thermometer used is the blood of the hen or man who attends to the fires. By long practice these men learn just how hot the ovens ought to be kept, and they replenish the fires as the weather demands. A small amount of fuel is needed, and the temperature of the ovens is about that of 88 degrees above zero. The fire is built up for eight or ten days before the eggs are put in to be hatched, and the heat is kept up, and after this time it does not go out during the season, which is from March until May. The eggs are turned four times a day while hatching. The whole outfit of an establishment which hatches over two hundred thousand chickens a year does not, I am told, cost more than $20 and one man runs the whole machine, keeping the fires, buying and turning the eggs and selling the chickens. There are in this incubatory twelve compartments, each 70 feet long, 60 feet wide and 16 feet high, and each of these compartments will hold 7,500 eggs at a time, or 90,000 eggs in all. It produced last year more than two hundred and thirty thousand chickens and did the work of more than twenty thousand hens—Cairo (Egypt) Letter.

Charles XII. and the Bomb.
As Charles XII. of Sweden is dictating a letter to his secretary during the siege of Stralsund, a bomb fell through the roof into the next room in the house where they were sitting. The terrified secretary let the pen drop from his hand.
"What is the matter?" quoth the king.
"The bomb, sire!" cried the secretary.
"Ah! never mind the bomb; it will go off presently."
And it did.

Spenser's Ill Luck.
Spenser finished his famous poem of the "Faerie Queen" he carried it to the great patron of the poets of that day. The manuscript being sent up to the earl, he read a few pages, and then ordered his servant to give the writer twenty pounds. Reading on, he cried in rapture, "Carry that man another twenty pounds." Proceeding farther, he exclaimed, "Give him twenty pounds more." But finally, rolling the MS. up in a friendly manner, he cried: "Here, take him back his poem. I am too poor to buy it of him."
It was for this reason that Spenser never wrote anything else so good as the "Faerie Queen."

Anecdote of Goldsmith and Johnson.
"Boswell," quoth Johnson one day, over a chop and mug of ale, "could never write a complete dictionary."
"And why not?" queried Goldsmith.
"Because he'd be sure to leave out his 's,'" returned the great philosopher, with a merry burst of laughter.
Sir Walter Raleigh's Repartee.
"And what, my dear Sir Walter," queried Elizabeth of her courtier—"what didst thou think of thy sovereign's speech in Parliament the other day?"
"A grand oration, please your highness," replied Sir Walter. "So fine was it that neither Shakespeare nor myself could say who wrote it for thee."
Johnson's Remark About Shakespeare.
"Have you seen Ben, that Shakespeare's Hamlet is said to have been written by Bacon?" asked Raleigh.
"Hi! ha!" laughed Johnson. "But Will of Stratford's shrewd."
"Shrewd?"
"Ay, shrewd. He started this himself, to reverse his play."—John Kendrick Bangs in Harper's Magazine.

A Pair of Oracles.
Not all the time of the beautiful oracles was passed in contentions; once having placed themselves on what they considered their proper footing in the family they had leisure for other things. No more entertaining birds ever lived in the room; full of intelligent curiosity as they were, and industriously studying out the idiotic riddles of human surroundings in ways peculiarly their own, they pried into and under everything,—opened the match-safe and threw out the contents, tore the paper off the wall in great patches, pecked the backs of books, and probed every hole and crack with their sharp beaks. They ate very daintily, and, as mentioned above, were exceedingly fond of dried currants. For this little treat the male soon learned to tease, alighting on the desk, looking wistfully at the little china box whence he knew they came, wiping his bill, and in language plain enough to a bird-student, asking for some. He even went so far, when I did not at the time take the hint, as to address me in low, coaxing talk of very sweet and varied tones. Still I was deaf, and he came within a foot of me, uttering the half-singing talk, and later burst into song as his supreme effort at pleasing or propitiating the dispenser of dainties. I need not say that he had his bill all for that.—Atlantic.

What She Liked.
"What do you like best?" said Mr. Dilly Dent to his girl, as they stood together at the soda counter. "Oh, I like ginger ale," she answered, "and champagne." Any thing that—that—"She didn't finish, but she blushed, and Dilly popped that night.—Puck.

How He Explained It.
Judge: "You must be mistaken about having to chop twenty-five hours a day for your employer. There are but twenty-four hours in a day." Colored witness: "Yes, boss, I understand that; but he always puts me to work an hour before day in the morning."—Omaha World.

Martyrs to Headache
Seek relief in vain, until they begin to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Then they regret the years of suffering they might have escaped had they tried this remedy earlier. The trouble was constitutional not local; and, until Ayer's Sarsaparilla did its effective work as an Alterative and Blood Purifier, they were compelled to suffer.
The wife of Samuel Page, 21 Austin st., Lowell, Mass., was, for a long time, subject to severe headaches, the result of stomach and liver disorders. A perfect cure has been effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Frank Roberts, 77 Washington st., Boston, says that he formerly had terrible headaches, and until he took Ayer's Sarsaparilla, never found any medicine that would give "Permanent Relief."
"Every Spring, for years," writes Lydia W. Weston, 205 Fifteenth st., Brooklyn, N. Y., "I have had intolerable headaches. I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla last March, and have not had a headache since that time."
"I suffered from headache, indigestion, and debility, and was hardly able to drag myself about the house," writes Mrs. M. Lewis, of A. st., Lowell, Mass. "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has worked a marvelous change in my case. I now feel strong and well as ever."
Jonas Garman, Esq., of Lytka, Pa., writes: "For years I have suffered dreadfully every Spring from headache, caused by impurity of the blood, and business. It seemed for days and weeks that my head would split open. Nothing relieved me till I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has cured me completely."
When Mrs. Generva Balanger, of 26 Bridge st., Springfield, Mass., began to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, she had suffered for some years from a serious affection of the kidneys. Every Spring, also, she was afflicted with headaches, loss of appetite, and indigestion. A friend persuaded her to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which benefited her wonderfully. Her health is now perfect. Martyrs to headache should try
