Minneapolis Journal: Lind's record in the office of governor will be another strong campaign argument. He is the shrewdest politician in public life in the state. The republicans are continually crying out about his "mistakes," when they know if they tell the truth, if they know anything, that from the point of view of the people, he is giving as satisfactory an administration as the state has had for years. What is the use of denying this fact. The people know it and republicans who protest too much that it is not true will do so at some sacrifice of reputation for sagacity and judgment. The people will not be fooled and an attempt to magnify for political effect the unwisdom of certain of the governor's acts will be abortive and may recoil with tremendous force. His attitude on the gross earnings bill is of itself a tower of strength. He has acted from the first day of his term carefully, intelligently, sanely, his eyes on the future, his ears catching every sound coming up from the common walks of life. He has made no mistakes thus far up on which a campaign can be hinged, and the republicans who are shouting loudest against him know this best. A campaign based upon his "mistakes," and with nothing of importance to stand with it, will reflect him, possibly by 40,000 majority. His attitude before the state board of equalization is another source of strength. It is more than sufficient to cover his alleged shortcomings as with a mantle. His administration of the state dairy and food department is another thing makes him head and shoulders above his republican predecessors, and through this office he comes into contact with the common people in the strongest republican localities of the state. The sooner the republican leaders quit talking about Lind's "mistakes," and get down to business, the better it will be for the party.

Big Game in Rail Prairie.

Sportsmen are getting quite numerous, also quite handy. Recently two cows were found dead side by side, with bullet wounds through the heart. One belonged to Peter and the other to Fred Swanson of Rail Prairie. It is thought to be boys' work but they were good marksmen. If there is a law for sportsmen to carry a license it should be kept in force and boys should be stopped from carrying guns.—Communicated.

Grey Eagle Cor. Long Prairie Argus: A. Tanner of Little Falls is having an addition 18x24 built to his elevator here. He intends to use the new part for a store room to hold flour and feed, which will be shipped here in car lots and sold wholesale to dealers in this place.

Misled by the administration Twin City press, several country papers, including the Preston Times, Tracy Times, Austin Transcript and others, comment that Governor Lind "ignored" the presence of the president. This is entirely false, as the governor distinctly referred to the "presence of the president" as here to "join in the welcome to the Thirtieth." Welcome was the purpose of all. And the trouble with the goppites is that they wanted a political boom made of the occasion instead of a mere welcome. The only impropriety of the whole affair was committed by President McKinley who made his welcome the stump speech for which the partisan management furnished the opportunity. That's the plain English of it all. Every goppite knows it.—G. C.

Sir Henry Irving devoted part of his summer holidays to writing an article, which he has given to The Ladies Home Journal. It is called "Shakespeare in Small Communities," and tells how the study, reading aloud and acting of Shakespeare's works may be followed in communities away from the larger centres.

A newly appointed policeman in Winona arrested a sleep walker a few nights since, who had wandered away from home in his night clothes. "Surely you are not going to lock me up," said the sleep walker. "I can't be held responsible for the condition you found me in, I am a somnambulist." "It don't make any difference what church you are a member of," said the officer. "You can't walk the streets of Winona in your shirt tail if you belong to all the churches in town."—Ex.

One of the members of the 13th regiment band lives at Plamview. Last week's Record contained an interview with him, in the course of which he was asked: "Do you think it a wise policy to retain the island?" His reply was:

"No, I don't think it is. One American soldier is worth more to the United States than the whole of the Philippine islands, and to send them over there is to meet death not alone by bullets, but by disease. Out of our regiment only 72—mostly high salaried officers—re-enlisted and accepted Uncle Sam's offer of $500."

The month of meteors is November and the approaching display is expected to be unusual. All this is set forth in "The November Meteors," by Professor C. A. Young, of Princeton, in the current "New Lippincott."

The Minneapolis Journal says

"The Burlington buffet library car is one of the most convenient ever put on wheels. Besides all the periodicals and literature provided, there are duplicate whist boards for the amusement of the traveler. Goodness only knows what is 'limited' in the way of beauty, comfort and luxury and the Burlington Limited."

FASHION HINTS.

New Ideas in Various Departments of the Wardrobe.

The line of white in the front of mourning bonnets is permitted only to widows. In all other cases of mourning it is omitted.

The wearing of gloves by a hostess on her "at home" day is not countenanced.

DINNER BODICE.

by women of the best taste. It is a caprice of fashion which is necessarily but temporary.

Strong rice water is employed instead of starch for linen by some of the best French laundresses.

Kerosene is useful for other purposes than burning. Shoes which have become stiffened by dampness may be softened by being dressed with kerosene, and it will also serve to brighten pewter and tin and to clean iron articles.

The fashionable coiffure is as loose as possible. The hair is waved throughout and arranged in a bouffant style, the ends being drawn to the top of the head and coiled simply. A careless effect is, above all things, desirable, but the carelessness must not degenerate into untidiness.

A picture is given of a dinner bodice. It is tight fitting and is of ruby sash shirred all over. A corselet of rennaissance guipure covers a part of the bodice, and the larger portion of the sleeves and the entire collar are covered with guipure. The corsage is worn without a belt and is slightly pointed in front. A bow of ruby foulard is placed at the left side. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SKIRTS.

Different Methods of Hiding the Fastening.

The one absolute rule with regard to the closing of the skirt is that it shall be invisible. It may be at the middle of the back, at the middle of the front, at one or both sides or at the hip, but it must be adequately disguised. Whenever trimming follows the line of a seam the matter is simplified, as the decoration will conceal the fastening; also when the fastening occurs at each side of the tab lier it may be converted into a decoration in itself if the edges of the openings are stitched and lines of ornamental buttons are used. Where there can be no such arrangement, however, the only method is to press the edges of the opening very flat, underface them smoothly and employ invisible buttons which fasten by pressure, like certain kinds of glove buttons.

A narrow band of stiff muslin is now placed in the hem of the skirt. The skirt may be additionally sustained by gathering the silk trim, which is placed inside the hem, on a cord or even two cords, instead of on a silk thread. The picture shows a design for a bridesmaid's gown. It is of pink crepe de chine, the skirt being ornamented with groups of horizontal tucks. Around the foot are four narrow accordion plaited frills, edged with narrow lace. The bodice, which is closed at the side, has groups of horizontal tucks and a yoke of guipure over pink silk. The yoke is encircled by two circular ruffles of crepe de chine and a plaited frill bordered with lace. These are carried down the edge of the opening to the waist. The sleeves are tucked horizontally. The belt is of black velvet, and black velvet choux trim the bodice. The black velvet hat is trimmed with black plumes. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Oriental Criticism.

"I have just been reading the honorable works of one of your most famous female English poets," said the educated Japanese, "and I cannot understand her so exceeding popularity. I refer to the 'Mother Goose.' There is one of her poems of celebrity in which she acquaints us of 24 blackbirds that sang after they had been beforehand baked into a pie. The 'Mother Goose' I regard and consider as one of the greatest liars of the English speaking antiquity."—Chicago Tribune.

About Making A Harness

It is not very long ago since the English newspapers were filled with the accounts of the frightful disaster to a limited express train near London, which was wrecked. Poor material had been used in the construction of some parts of the train—and this is the inevitable end of everything made of poor material, whether it be an engine or a business. Business is made of the stock a manufacturer uses, if he uses poor stock he surely can't make a good harness. We don't know it all, but we know a heap about making a good harness. Our knowledge did not come to us so easy. It is the result of years of effort to produce something better than our competitors. There are so many harness makers nowadays trying to make a harness like the other fellow. We have not been contented to simply make a harness like the other fellow.

Our Efforts Have Always Been Directed To Produce Something Better for Less Money Than Our Competitors.

Remember we have a Big Line of Blankets and Robes which we will sell at Rock Bottom Prices. Give us a trial and we will convince you that we are selling cheap.
