Football.

The Royalton school team went down to defeat Friday afternoon before the second team of this city, 15 to 0. It was a one-sided affair, the skill of the locals spoiling the heavy weight of the visitors. The Royalton boys have some material which should make good players, such as Jerry Murphy, Lakin and Buckout.

Barnes was umpire, Getchell referee and Bouck and Kelly timers. The visitors were entertained at a dance in the evening.

The request of the people at Topoka for a depot and agent, has been refused, there not being enough business to warrant the improvement.

Folsom's Music Store

FORGOT HE HELD A POLICY.

Burned-Out Merchant Overlooked a Risk of Four Thousand Dollars.

A Boston clothing house was destroyed by fire recently and in connection with the adjustment of the losses the representative of one of the insurance companies interested discovered that the insured had a policy for $4,000 which had been overlooked. Upon making representations to the firm the proprietor denied that he had any such policy, and it was only on the production of the books of the Queen, showing that the premium had been paid, that he was convinced that he was entitled to the sum involved. Even then he declared that the insurance concern had made a mistake, but if it insisted that he was entitled to it he would consent to take the money. The occurrence was so exceptional that special interest has been taken in the case, with the result that the firm's credit will probably be materially strengthened among insurance men.

FINED FOR CRUELTY TO FISH.

English Naturalist Punished for Lack of Care.

A few weeks ago an officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in England noticed as he was passing by a naturalist's house that some dead goldfish were floating in a globe which stood in one of the windows. Making inquiries, he discovered that the water in the globe had not been changed for several days.

Knowing that this was sufficient to cause death among the fish, he made a formal charge of cruelty against the naturalist. When the case was called in court he produced as a witness a professor of a museum of natural history, who testified that goldfish could not live under such conditions and that before dying they would suffer much agony. The judge was evidently impressed by this testimony, for he promptly fined the naturalist $10.

Could Not Forget Politics.

In dying suddenly after a stroke of vertigo Jacob Kuntzman, a district leader of the New York democracy, gave a strange example of "the ruling passion strong in death." Kuntzman was returning home after having bailed out a constituent accused of some petty offense when he was stricken. It seems that he had arranged a picnic for his political followers to take place Monday and the band hired for the occasion determined to give the leader a serenade. As the unconscious form of the dying politician was lowered into the ambulance the band began playing, believing him to be dead.

Charcoal Eph's Daily Thought.

"Wen yo' listen' t' de man holler in louds in the amen co'nah," said Charcoal Eph, in one of his ruminative moods, "but an entirely moody difficult to remember the name of the man who stole my spoon."

WIVES OF FAMOUS MEN.

Geniuses Not Very Successful in Choosing Helpmates.

Many great men had curious experiences with their wives. The poet Heine on the day after his marriage drew up a will, in which he bequeathed all he possessed to his wife on condition that she married again. He desired, he said, that at least one man should regret his death. Fielding, the novelist, married a serving maid. Sir Thomas More's wife scolded him on the eve of his execution. Milton had trouble with both of his wives, nor was his the monopoly of the martyrdom. Hazlitt's wife cared nothing for his ability. Her temper was intense, and the tragedy of the unsympathetic played itself to the bitter end. Coleridge left his wife and children without an apology or farewell and never would see them again. Moliere at the age of 40 married an actress, aged 17. She ran away from him. Shelley married an inkeeper's daughter. He soon deserted her and she committed suicide. Alexander the Great used his sword against women rather than for them, and one of his favorite pastimes was beating his wives with the flat of his steel blade.

HADN'T USED ANY HYSTERIA.

Nothing but Water-Colors, According to Talkative Nurse.

A certain lady of title recovered from a rather severe illness. An adept with the brush and a regular exhibitor of water colors in connection with the local art gallery, it was supposed she had overworked her-

When the doctor was called in an old nurse, who had been in the family many years, bored the medical man with her opinions as to the cause of the attack.

"It's them long hours an' hard work of the paintin' what's done it," she remarked directly she saw him. The doctor was preoccupied and scarcely heard the remark.

"Has her ladyship exhibited any traces of hysteria?" he suddenly demanded, turning to the talkative nurse.

"Oh, no, sir," was the unexpected reply, "they was water colors, all on em—real beauties, too!"

Donkey Partial to Panamas.

Samuel Wilkins of Pittsburg will return home without the $150 Panama hat which he wore when he came here ten days ago.

Mr. Wilkins threw his Panama hat on the sands and read a book. A beach-front donkey happened to be running loose. The animal espied the Panama hat on the sand, and believing that it was some kind of choice hay fit for a good meal, it very complacently started in, and was on the last morsel of the hat when Mr. Wilkins looked up and saw what was going on.

At first he felt like killing the donkey. Then he wanted to whip the owner. But he did neither. He recovered his composure, strolled up the walk, and bought a twenty-five cent straw tile.—Baltimore Sun.

Took Thorough Revenge.

A Russian who is now a porter in a hotel in Vladivostok served out a sentence of twenty years' imprisonment in Siberia for murdering the inhabitants of a whole village in order to avenge the insult that had been offered by the marriage of his fiancée to another man. According to his ideas and those of the class to which he was born he could hardly have acted otherwise without becoming an object of general contempt. His last statement at the court is sufficient to prove that he considered he had acted justly. The president having asked him if he had anything to say in his own defense, "It is a pity," he replied, "that two men should have survived!"

Edward Eggleston's Creed.

Edward Eggleston's creed was, "Never postpone your happiness for a day, but exact of life that it shall, if possible, pay you spot cash without running in debt to the future." The little preposition in this creed renders it somewhat difficult to follow, and then, too, there is more happiness in letting on what is to come. As that little boy said when asked why he looked so sorrowful, "Why, I haven't a single thing to let upon!" It is the "letting," the anticipation, wherein the chief part of the Eggleston "happiness" lies.

Matter Enough.

During a voyage, on the sudden stoppage of the machinery, the vessel having run aground, considerable alarm took place, especially among the female passengers.

"What is the matter? What is the matter? For heaven's sake, tell me the worst!" exclaimed one more anxious than the rest.

"After a short pause a horse voice from the deck replied: "Nothing, madam, nothing; only the bottom of the vessel and the top of the earth are stuck together."

He Was Spooney, Anyway.

The young man in the tram, observing that the handsome young lady on the opposite seat was looking at him very intently, and thinking that he might have impressed her favorably, changed his seat for one by her side and ventured to remark: "Haven't I seen you before somewhere?" "Well," she replied, "I'm not quite certain, but I think you are the man who stole our spoons!" He got out.
