LOVE FOUND A WAY

Minnesota Man Runs Away with an Iowa Girl.
Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 28.—If Merrill J. Elliott, now at Ramey, Morrison county Minn., wants to bring his bride back to the home of her parents he may do so. After spending several days in Sioux City looking for their daughter Zora, where she was supposed to be visiting, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Galland, of Salix, this county, have just learned that she came here not to visit friends but to elope with her sweetheart, Merrill J. Elliott.
Elliott and the girl were married by Justice Foster in St. Cloud, Minn., to which place they went direct from here. The run away was occasioned by the girl's parents. Elliott came to Salix a year ago from Gardner, Mass., to become telegraph operator for the Northwestern railroad here. He is 21 years of age. Miss Galland was the belle of the town and they soon were in love. The girl is just 17 and her parents said she was too young to have a sweetheart. Finally after many rebuffs, Elliott apparently gave up the fight and he would return to Massachusetts. A few days later the girl got permission to come to Sioux City to visit the family of A. J. Nash, a trunk manufacturer. She met Elliott there and the elopement followed.
Mr. and Mrs. Galland have determined to make the best of it and will invite the runaways to return to Salix.

Brother Cheeley contends in his last letter:
First—That the present deplorable conditions are due to mammon worship, or the pursuit of wealth; the high protective tariff, and the general indifference of the people.
Second—That Socialism holds out no hope because it wants the "whole cheese" in a lump and invades the sanctity of the home and the robs the farmer.
Well, now let's see.
The pursuit of wealth is a natural propensity. If this is the case, nature must be changed. But this is not the cause. The unrest of the people and the hardship they are burdened with are due to the fact that they are denied the opportunity to acquire wealth, and consequently suffer at the hands of those who possess the means to wealth, i. e. the machinery of production. I agree with him that the high protective tariff is a colossal fraud, and that the indifference of the people is a grievous calamity.
But Brother Cheeley rejects the gospel of discontent and the propaganda of the revolution that seeks to remedy the matter, and offers nothing on his own part. "It is not what you ain't but what you is," says the old negro philosopher, "dat makes you count in de world." If the present system is wrong, give us a better. To simply say this is bad and that is wrong, "butters no parsnips" at all.
As to the second proposition, that socialists want to get it all in one lump, he is entirely incorrect.
The socialist party demands, first, that the people own the government and govern direct (who is more entitled to govern), second, that all public utilities—railroads, telegraphs, telephones, highways and waterways of travel, mines, and the "capital" portion of the land—be made the property of all, operated by the people and the fruits of such operation be enjoyed by the people; that other utilities, not now considered public utilities, be made public as fast as they are all monopolized by gamblers and speculators. Does Brother Cheeley's philosophy offer a better solution than this?
As to the home, what constitutes a home? A loving father and mother, loving and intelligent children; good will, kindness, generosity; health, cleanliness; good clothing and good food; flowers, music, fresh air; virtue and morality.
Socialism guarantees this to every one willing to work a reasonable time each year. Are those that do not work entitled to any consideration? Socialism will still provide for those too old or infirm or those too young. Does Brother Cheeley offer anything like this?
There is such a thing as common sense. Would it disrupt the home for every man to get enough for his labor, to be able to better clothe, feed and educate his children. Would it invade the sanctity of the home for every fair girl to have a mirror or a piano? Would it be immoral and un-Christian like to make it possible for this fair, sweet girl to live a pleasant, honorable life rather than go to the dens of shame that disgrace every city in America?
Brother Cheeley is afraid that Socialism would bring immoral tendencies into the home. What he fears in this respect, is just what Capitalism is doing now. Brother Cheeley is honest, of course, but grievously mistaken. He confuses Socialism with Communism.
He thinks Socialism will make all wealth common. Not true. Only capital will be collective—private wealth will be all those things that are used individually and a man could, under Socialism, live in a log cabin, a mile from a neighbor, if he wanted to, and work bread and drink meal coffee (every one to his taste). On the other hand, he would be able to enjoy (which the workers don't now) all the advantages of hotel life. In the world, everyone would be able to live as he saw fit, for that is a private matter for him to regulate.
Do the people enjoy these privileges now under the capitalistic system.
No. We find men striking by tens of thousands for more food and clothing; we read of them freezing on the streets and roads for the want of houses; we read of them killing themselves because they can't find work; we hear of a woman in Chicago killing herself and child because she could no longer bear to hear it cry for bread; hundreds of fair-haired, blue-eyed, rosy-cheeked girls from Norway and Sweden were lured to houses of shame in New York and Philadelphia last year, the agents getting a certain sum for each girl secured. This is the way Capitalism invades the sanctity of home.
The farmer is robbed of his cotton in the South, his wheat and corn in the West; his home is taken by high interest mortgages and he becomes a tenant, then one more robber is added to the list in shape of rent, and finally he and his wife and his children are driven to the factories and sweat shops.
Go to the houses of shame in any city. Interview the poor girls, and 75 per cent will tell you they once paddled barefooted in the brooks, picked berries and drove the cows, when father had a home and mother's heart was glad.
But the gamblers and speculators (under Capitalism, not Socialism) came with their interest, their profits and their rent and stole from father his home, from the girl her honor, and from the mother the greatest joy that ever filled a woman's heart. The joy that sees a child grow up to womanhood in purity and health and love-liness.
Capitalism must fall.

WEIR VERSUS CHEELEY

Georgia Printer Comes Back at the Morrill Man.
Brother Cheeley contends in his last letter:
First—That the present deplorable conditions are due to mammon worship, or the pursuit of wealth; the high protective tariff, and the general indifference of the people.
Second—That Socialism holds out no hope because it wants the "whole cheese" in a lump and invades the sanctity of the home and the robs the farmer.
Well, now let's see.
The pursuit of wealth is a natural propensity. If this is the case, nature must be changed. But this is not the cause. The unrest of the people and the hardship they are burdened with are due to the fact that they are denied the opportunity to acquire wealth, and consequently suffer at the hands of those who possess the means to wealth, i. e. the machinery of production. I agree with him that the high protective tariff is a colossal fraud, and that the indifference of the people is a grievous calamity.
But Brother Cheeley rejects the gospel of discontent and the propaganda of the revolution that seeks to remedy the matter, and offers nothing on his own part. "It is not what you ain't but what you is," says the old negro philosopher, "dat makes you count in de world." If the present system is wrong, give us a better. To simply say this is bad and that is wrong, "butters no parsnips" at all.
As to the second proposition, that socialists want to get it all in one lump, he is entirely incorrect.
The socialist party demands, first, that the people own the government and govern direct (who is more entitled to govern), second, that all public utilities—railroads, telegraphs, telephones, highways and waterways of travel, mines, and the "capital" portion of the land—be made the property of all, operated by the people and the fruits of such operation be enjoyed by the people; that other utilities, not now considered public utilities, be made public as fast as they are all monopolized by gamblers and speculators. Does Brother Cheeley's philosophy offer a better solution than this?
As to the home, what constitutes a home? A loving father and mother, loving and intelligent children; good will, kindness, generosity; health, cleanliness; good clothing and good food; flowers, music, fresh air; virtue and morality.
Socialism guarantees this to every one willing to work a reasonable time each year. Are those that do not work entitled to any consideration? Socialism will still provide for those too old or infirm or those too young. Does Brother Cheeley offer anything like this?
There is such a thing as common sense. Would it disrupt the home for every man to get enough for his labor, to be able to better clothe, feed and educate his children. Would it invade the sanctity of the home for every fair girl to have a mirror or a piano? Would it be immoral and un-Christian like to make it possible for this fair, sweet girl to live a pleasant, honorable life rather than go to the dens of shame that disgrace every city in America?
Brother Cheeley is afraid that Socialism would bring immoral tendencies into the home. What he fears in this respect, is just what Capitalism is doing now. Brother Cheeley is honest, of course, but grievously mistaken. He confuses Socialism with Communism.
He thinks Socialism will make all wealth common. Not true. Only capital will be collective—private wealth will be all those things that are used individually and a man could, under Socialism, live in a log cabin, a mile from a neighbor, if he wanted to, and work bread and drink meal coffee (every one to his taste). On the other hand, he would be able to enjoy (which the workers don't now) all the advantages of hotel life. In the world, everyone would be able to live as he saw fit, for that is a private matter for him to regulate.
Do the people enjoy these privileges now under the capitalistic system.
No. We find men striking by tens of thousands for more food and clothing; we read of them freezing on the streets and roads for the want of houses; we read of them killing themselves because they can't find work; we hear of a woman in Chicago killing herself and child because she could no longer bear to hear it cry for bread; hundreds of fair-haired, blue-eyed, rosy-cheeked girls from Norway and Sweden were lured to houses of shame in New York and Philadelphia last year, the agents getting a certain sum for each girl secured. This is the way Capitalism invades the sanctity of home.
The farmer is robbed of his cotton in the South, his wheat and corn in the West; his home is taken by high interest mortgages and he becomes a tenant, then one more robber is added to the list in shape of rent, and finally he and his wife and his children are driven to the factories and sweat shops.
Go to the houses of shame in any city. Interview the poor girls, and 75 per cent will tell you they once paddled barefooted in the brooks, picked berries and drove the cows, when father had a home and mother's heart was glad.
But the gamblers and speculators (under Capitalism, not Socialism) came with their interest, their profits and their rent and stole from father his home, from the girl her honor, and from the mother the greatest joy that ever filled a woman's heart. The joy that sees a child grow up to womanhood in purity and health and love-liness.
Capitalism must fall.

MRS. STEWART'S ADDRESS
The court house assembly room was filled Sunday afternoon, the occasion of an address by Mrs. Myrtle Rose Stewart on "Capital and Labor." Mr. Stewart gave an interesting and instructive address, laying stress on the need of education on questions involving labor organizations. She advocated steadfast adherence to principle, fair treatment of employers, and justice to the workingmen. She thought the world was progressing, and in spite of misunderstanding and difficulties, the future was bright with promise.
A FOOTBALL SLAUGHTER.
The local school foot ball team defeated the Royalton team at the ball park Saturday afternoon, 44 to 0. The affair was very one sided. In the first half the locals scored three touchdowns and goal; in the second five touchdowns and goal three times.
Several of the Royaltons suffered in the melee, none seriously.
Thos. Darling was referee, Herb. Snow umpire, and DuBay and Fowler time keepers. Darling, DuBay and Prof. Ware had been doing good work training the locals. In the evening the visitors were entertained at a dance, and went home with the best of feeling toward their hosts.
