NEWS IN MINNESOTA

EVENTS OF A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Robert A. Smith has been sworn in as mayor of St. Paul for the eighth time.

Mrs. Dorothy King, a resident of Stillwater for many years, is dead, aged seventy-six.

John Pavelka, aged eighty-six, killed himself at Chatfield with a shotgun while despondent over ill health.

Samford Swanson was instantly killed at St. Paul by an electric light wire that had been broken by the wind.

Thomas Sexton, a St. Paul fireman, while walking in his sleep fell through a trapdoor and received serious injuries.

An avalanche of ore crushed out the life of Louis Amato, an Italian, twenty-four years of age, in the Monroe mine near Chisholm.

William Brown of Chicago, one of the best known experts on horses in the country, dropped dead at South St. Paul during an auction sale of horses.

Fred G. Hunt, the brilliant dramatic critic of the Milwaukee Journal, who was formerly one of the best known newspaper writers in the Twin Cities, is dead.

The steamer Park Bluff, one of the boats owned by ex-Governor Van Sant, struck a bunch of hidden pilings in Lake St. Croix just below Stillwater and went to the bottom.

The bi-state convention of the German Methodist Epworth league and Sunday schools of Minnesota and North Dakota had a three days' session at New Ulm last week.

James C. Morrison, for forty-four years an employe of the Great Northern road, is dead at St. Paul, aged seventy. He was the oldest locomotive engineer in the Twin Cities.

The state has commenced suit against the Duluth and Northern Minnesota railroad and the Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin railroad to collect the 4 per cent gross earnings tax for 1905.

Despondent over a fear that a strong desire for liquor would cause him to backslide after his conversion Louis Larson, a young Swede living with his parents near Osakis, committed suicide by hanging.

The recount in the St. Paul majority contest has been completed and Mayor Smith's plurality of 1,501 was cut down sixty-eight. There were few incidents during the recount which attracted public attention.

Andrew Carnegie has pledged $30,000 toward the endowment fund of Macalester college at St. Paul provided the college will raise $120,000 from other sources. Of this amount $100,000 has already been raised.

Eighty-nine young people graduated from the Mankato normal school last week. Governor Johnson made the address and the diplomas were conferred by Ell Torrance of Minneapolis, a member of the state normal board.

W. H. Dunwoody and wife have presented their old home at 52 West Tenth street, Minneapolis, to the Women's Christian association of that city to be used as a boarding home for girls. The property is worth more than $100,000.

While his mother's attention was engaged in her household duties at Minneapolis Peter Haiset, an eighteen-month-old baby, secured possession of a bottle of carbolic acid and drank a quantity of the deadly fluid. He died almost instantly.

With a bullet wound in the right temple and a broken watch chain hanging from the vest the badly decomposed body of an unidentified man was found in Minnehaha creek within a few rods of its junction with the Mississippi river at Minneapolis.

Magnus Sampson, a switchman employed in the Northern Pacific yards at Duluth, was instantly killed by the blowing out of a cylinder head of a locomotive. He was riding on the footboard of the engine, which was in motion, when the accident happened.

Fearing that he was becoming blind John Roste, a wealthy farmer living near Burtrum, Morrison county, committed suicide by shooting. He was not instantly killed, but died a day later from the effects of his self-inflicted wounds. Roste was about forty years old.

George R. Exley, the St. Paul letter carrier who was indicted on a charge of larceny from the mails, pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge Lochren in the United States circuit court and was sentenced to fourteen months at hard labor in the state prison at Stillwater.

August Mueller, a sixteen-year-old lad from Spring Valley, was found almost dead from hunger in a box car in the Great Northern yards at Clearwater Junction, near Minneapolis. He was saved from starvation, but is now in the Minneapolis city hospital, his life imperiled by an attack of scarlet fever.

While trying to get at a bird's nest in a tall cottonwood tree the limb on which he was standing broke and threw Glen Smith of Preston thirty-eight feet to the ground, shattering his left hip so that he probably will be a cripple for life. The lad is thirteen years old and this is his third narrow escape from death.

P. Christianson of Olivia won the first scoring in the six-month educational buttermakers' contest of the state dairy and food department. His score was 98. William O. Olson of Hector was second with 97 1/2. W. Larson of Searies and M. P. Mortenson of Cokato were tied for third with 97 and Christ Hanson of Hanska comes next with 96 1/2.

WORK OF CONGRESS.
