RABIES FROM A DOG'S PAW.

Bite Not Necessary to Communicate the Disease, a Scientist Shows.

The popular notion that rabies only follows the bite of a mad animal or, by exception, the licking of a superficial wound is incorrect. P. Remlinger, a director of the Imperial Bacteriological Institute of Constantinople, has brought forward three observations, which show the possibility of a third method of contamination. A certain number of animals, particularly the dog and the cat, have the habit of licking their paws. But Roux and Nocard have shown that the saliva becomes virulent in a few days after the first appearance of the symptoms of rabies. When the rabid animal is confined in one place the saliva drips upon the ground and soils his paws, which are also contaminated by licking with his tongue.

Wounds, therefore, made by scratching with the claws of a rabid animal are necessarily infected wounds. In scratching the human skin the animal lays bare a number of nerve filaments, upon which the virus is deposited. Persons who are scratched by animals thought to be mad should, therefore, submit themselves to appropriate treatment without loss of time.

Britons Growing More Sober.

There is solid evidence that Great Britain is drinking less alcohol. In the last six years the population of the United Kingdom has increased about 2,000,000, but the annual consumption of beer has decreased by nearly 2,500,000 barrels. The number of the inhabitants has become about 5 per cent larger, while the quantity of beer used has grown nearly 7 per cent less. In the same six years the annual decrease in the consumption of spirits has been about 18 per cent. This far-reaching change in the direction of temperance has been coincident with a noteworthy revival of British trade and industry. The lessening of the consumption of strong drink has been accompanied by a marked increase in national prosperity.

Another Difficulty.

"I suppose that when you discover the north pole you will regard your labors as completed?" "No," answered the Arctic explorer. "The hardest part will be yet to come. We'll have to find some way of getting home again."

Not His Side.

Chicanell, who had to leave on a journey before the end of a case begun against him by a neighbor, gave orders to his lawyer to let him know the result by telegraph. After several days he got the following telegram: "Right has triumphed." He at once telegraphed back: "Appeal immediately."

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

EVENTS OF A WEEK THROUGH-OUT THE STATE.

John S. Glennon, deputy warden at Stillwater prison, is dead of pernicious anemia. He was forty-six years old.

Edward Henry Judson, aged sixty-four, a pioneer resident of St. Paul and a veteran of the Civil war, is dead.

The Minnesota State Educational association held its forty-fourth annual convention in Minneapolis last week.

Dr. Charles Griswold, seventy-four years of age, for many years a practicing physician of North St. Paul, is dead.

Dr. Emanuel L. Hess, for eleven years rabbi of Mount Zion temple at St. Paul, died suddenly last week of heart trouble.

Dr. Cyrus K. Bartlett, a well known alienist and a physician who ranked high in the state, is dead at Minneapolis, aged seventy-seven.

Captain P. H. Ryan, a resident of St. Paul since 1853 and a veteran of the Civil war, is dead. He was seventy-eight years of age.

At a special election last week the village of Battle Lake voted $8,000 bonds to buy an acetylene lighting plant and waterworks system for the village.

Thomas Cochran, prominent in St. Paul business circles and well known as a public spirited citizen, orator and scholar, is dead after an illness of two months.

Chester Tracy, the two-year-old son of Edward Tracy of Minneapolis, fell into a tub of boiling water and was so severely scalded that he died a few hours later at the city hospital.

Despondent because of the death of his wife a year since and his own ill health Peder Medlo, a contractor, choked himself with a small piece of rope in the timber near Minneapolis.

Samuel G. Iverson, state auditor, last week distributed $4,405.50 in accumulated claims against the state for wolf bounties. The payments cover bounties on 561 full grown wolves and 198 cubs.

Six children were badly burned, two perhaps fatally, and a number of people were bruised and trampled on as the result of a mishap at a Christmas celebration at the United Brethren church at Le Sueur Center.

A prisoner convicted of larceny at Mankato escaped from the sheriff of Blue Earth county while being taken to Stillwater by jumping through a window of a railroad coach. The prisoner was handcuffed at the time of his escape.

George Hare is dead at Rochester as the result of an accident which happened to him on Dec. 11. On that day he was at work on a corn shredder when the sleeve of his coat became caught in the machinery, drawing his arm into the feeder.

Dr. L. W. Babcock of Wadena, a physician and a leading politician, died at St. Luke's hospital, St. Paul, of a complication of nervous diseases. He was sixty-six years of age and was speaker of the lower house of the legislature during the session of 1903.

Minneapolis is to have a new passenger station to occupy the site of the present Union depot and considerable additional land. The work of tearing down the old building will be begun in the spring and when that is out of the way building operations will proceed.

State Treasurer Block, in his annual report, recommends that the low interest bearing securities of other states held by the state be disposed of in order to get funds with which to meet the increasing demand for loans from municipalities within the state.

C. L. Benedict will succeed himself as postmaster at Mankato, Minn. The recommendation for his reappointment has been filed by Representative McCleary. Mr. McCleary also recommended the reappointment of J. E. Haycroft as postmaster at Madelia and C. E. Fuller at St. James.

Fayette Tyler, a brakeman on the Northwestern railroad, was caught between two cars at Janesville and his breast was badly crushed. A special train hurried him to Rochester and he was operated on at St. Mary's hospital, but died on the operating table. His home was in Rochester.

The entire town of Ulen, which is located in the northeastern part of Clay county, has been almost entirely wiped out by fire. All of the business section was destroyed and only the hardest kind of work on the part of the volunteer fire department saved the residence portion from destruction.

Edward T. Young, attorney general of the state, has transmitted to the governor his annual report in which he recommends important changes in the laws, covering anti-trust laws, timber matters, the inheritance tax and public service corporations and recommends an appropriation for extra help in his office.

Fred Zimmerman of Owatonna, while intoxicated, shot through a window, hitting Mrs. H. O. Quam, mistaking her for his wife, who had fled to the Quam home for safety. He was about to commit suicide when he was knocked down by the infuriated husband of the wounded woman, who is in a precarious condition.

Henry Hughes of Itasca county has served notice on Secretary of State Hanson of his intention to appeal to the district court in Itasca county for a recount of the votes cast at the election last November on the proposition of creating Koochiching county out of Itasca. The state canvassing board's return shows that the proposition carried by a vote of 1,370 to 922.

SECOND ATTEMPT SUCCESSFUL.

Lawrence Leberg Lynched at Las Animas, Colo.

Las Animas, Colo., Dec. 28.—Lawrence Leberg was lynched here during the night for the murder of Henry Lavenmeyer by a mob of masked men. About forty men entered the jail shortly before 9 o'clock and easily overpowered the sheriff, under sheriff and two other officers and locked them securely in a room of the building.

The men then went to the cell occupied by Leberg, struck the shackles from his limbs and took him from the jail. A larger body of men and boys were waiting outside the walls and when the prisoner and his captors appeared they formed a procession and proceeded a short distance from the jail and hanged Leberg to a telegraph pole. The self-confessed murderer made no resistance and made no statement.

Before the mob reached the jail Leberg heard them coming. He arose from the cot, dressed himself coolly and awaited the coming of the avengers of Lavenmeyer's death. The leader of the mob made no effort to disguise himself and it is declared that the ringleaders are known to the jail officials.

A. J. CASSATT DEAD

PRESIDENT OF PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD A VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE.

Philadelphia, Dec. 29.—Alexander Johnston Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and one of the foremost railroad men and financiers in the country, died suddenly at his residence here. Mr. Cassatt, who was a little more than sixty-seven years of age, was stricken with heart disease shortly before 1 o'clock and died before assistance could be given him. His malady is known professionally as "the Stokes-Adams syndrome."

Though Mr. Cassatt's death was entirely unexpected he had been in ill health for nearly a year. His condition was aggravated by an attack of whooping cough, which he contracted from his grandchildren while at Bar Harbor in September. He never entirely recovered from the effects of the attack but was much improved by a rest and early in October began going regularly to his office. Shortly afterward he was again stricken, having contracted a heavy cold. During November he was sufficiently recovered from his illness to resume his visits to Broad street station and he continued attending to important matters until his birthday, Dec. 8. After celebrating the event with his family he never returned to his duties.

Protecting Outdoor Plants.

Empty flour barrels and boxes are often used for covering shrubs. If you have these materials, first bank up the shrub well with good, dry leaves, and, after placing the box or barrel, bank this also outside with manure to keep out the frost. If the barrel is in an exposed position anchor it with stakes and wires.

Old grain sacks are sometimes used, being put over the shrubs, tied in place, and then banked up with leaves or manure.

Eulalia and other ornamental grasses are often used in place of straw to wrap rose and other bushes if they are where the sun will strike them or in positions exposed to cold, bleak winds.
