MORE FOR WOMEN AT THIS YEAR'S FAIR

Managers of World's Greatest State Fair Recognize Women's Right to Instruction and Entertainment.

Women of Minnesota and the Northwest will find more comfort, more entertainment and more opportunities for gaining inspiring information at the Minnesota State Fair this year than ever before. The managers realize that the State Fair will never achieve the fullest measure of greatness until it more completely attracts and interests women and children. This year they are laying special stress on the departments of special interest to women. They are offering more money in prizes for women's work, have arranged for special educational exhibits, lectures, etc., and are planning on more adequate accommodations for the women and children at Rest Cottage. Besides the general displays and amusement offerings that attract and entertain visitors of both sexes, there are three departments or agencies especially designed and conducted for members of the fair sex. These are: First. The Art and Needle and Culinary departments, housed in the beautiful Woman's Building where, under the supervision of Asst. Supt. Clara E. Luther, over 5,000 articles of special interest to women will be exhibited, for which $2,458.00 in prizes are offered. Second. The Rest Cottage and Playgrounds, where women and children will be met and cared for, and where the Baby Health Contest will be held. This building and all activities connected with it, will be under the direction of the members of the Minnesota Farm Women's Press Assoc., supervised by Secretary J. C. Simpson. Third. The Woman's State Fair Committee is composed of Mrs. F. C. Corell, from Northern Minnesota, Mrs. Gilbert Guttererson, from Central Minnesota, and Miss Jessie Walkup, from Southern Minnesota. These women, acting under the supervision of Vice President E. J. Stilwell, will assist in all, and will direct special activities that will be of benefit to women. A program of their work is being worked out and will be announced later. Thus it will be seen that a complete organization for the promotion of women's interests will make the Minnesota State Fair of 1913 a memorable one.

While there are no large buildings being erected on the Minnesota State Fair grounds this year, there is an unusually large number of repairs and improvements being made that will insure better accommodations for the exhibitors and more comfort for the visitors. There are over 100 men on the State Fair pay rolls at the present time, and they are working in all parts of the 300-acre inclosure. In all there will be about $43,000 spent in these small but very important improvements.

"Wild Bill" Endicott, Farmer and Race Driver, Will Be At State Fair.

WEALTH AND BEAUTY IN GALA ATTIRE

Will Attend the Society Horse Show to Be Held During the Minnesota State Fair This Year.

This year's Night Horse Show, in the Coliseum on the State Fair grounds, will be a social event of unusual importance. It will be managed on the same plan as the famous society horse shows held at Madison Square Garden, New York, at Chicago and Kansas City. The Coliseum is being fitted up with opera chairs and will be elaborately decorated for the occasion. A number of noted horsemen from the East and South have already signified their intention of entering their champion horses, and there is an unusual interest among riding and driving horse owners in Minnesota and the Northwest. The society feature of the event will be especially emphasized and boxes have already been spoken for by many of the social leaders of Minneapolis, St. Paul and other Minnesota cities. The program each night will include concert numbers by two well known bands, unusual vaudeville acts, judging and awarding of prizes to a large number of high metaled, royally bred horses, and sensational performances by some of the country's brightest equine stars.

MEN WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE

Everybody knows that the world's greatest state fair is held annually on the Minnesota State Fair grounds at Hamline, Minn. There are many reasons why this is the greatest state fair in the world. One of them is the character of the officers and board of managers. It is a matter of general interest therefore, to know who are responsible for the success or failure of the 1913 exposition. A list of the officers and managers follows: President, J. J. Furlong, Austin; first vice president, E. J. Stilwell, Minneapolis; second vice president, E. S. Warner, St. Paul; secretary, J. C. Simpson, Hamline; asst. secretary, M. E. Harrison, Hamline; treasurer, A. H. Turrittin, Sauk Rapids. Board of managers: George Atchison, Mankato; W. W. Sivright, Hutchinson; Robert Crickmore, Owatonna; C. F. Craig, Duluth; F. W. Murphy, Wheaton; Thos. H. Canfield, Lake Park.

Choose Your Days At the State Fair.

Live stock importance has been officially recognized by the managers of the Minnesota State Fair, and Wednesday has been designated as "Live Stock Day" for the coming fair. The other special days are somewhat similar to those of other years, and are as follows: Monday, Sept. 1, Labor and Children's Day. Tuesday, Sept. 2, Minneapolis Day. Wednesday, Sept. 3, Live Stock Day. Thursday, Sept. 4, Pioneer and Soldiers' Day. Friday, Sept. 5, St. Paul Day. Saturday, Sept. 6, Automobile Day.

GREATEST RACING IN FAIR'S HISTORY

Rich Furses and Fast Track Attract the Country's Best to Hamline Meet.

The Minnesota State Fair offering of $27,500 in purses has attracted the largest and best list of entries ever made in the early closing events of a race meet in the Northwest. Owners from twenty-two states and provinces of the United States and Canada have named 194 horses in these events. With the entries in twelve late closing events yet to come, it is a safe prediction that nearly 400 of the country's best harness horses will battle for supremacy over the famous Hamline track in September. Last year's harness races at the Minnesota State Fair were conceded by all to be the best all around speed program ever given in this part of the country. The number and class of entries, the general interest of horsemen and all other conditions indicate that the 1913 program will surpass in every way that of 1912.

HOW TO CURE SEED CORN

The best seed corn (other things being equal) is that cured in the natural way. Several methods of curing large and small lots of seed ears have been in use at the Experiment Station, and for large amounts a thin layer upon the floor of a well-ventilated room is thought to be most efficient and practical. In small amounts (ten bushels or less) the slat racks or "trees" are best. The slat racks are made by nailing narrow (one inch) strips crosswise upon two upright boards. These boards are six inches or less, wide; thus when the slats are nailed on either side and opposite in pairs, an ear of corn will rest safely upon about six inches apart, thus allowing of only a limited number of ears being piled together. This is necessary to prevent molding or decay. In this manner ears may be stored with comparative safety. An occasional turning of the ears may be found necessary to insure perfect curing, but this is not much of a task. Another successful method of curing the seed ears is tying them in long strings with binding twine and suspending the strings from the ceiling. Seed ears of corn have also been safely cured by sticking the ears through the meshes of a strip of wire poultry netting which has been suspended from some convenient support. The "tree" is made of 2x4 or 4x4 pieces. Into these on all sides ten penny nails are driven. The nails should be placed about three inches apart and driven in slanting slightly toward the top end. The timber, thus "nailed," can be leaned against the wall or supported by braces against the wall or supported by braces at the bottom so as to stand alone. The seed ears are forced, butt end first, upon these nails. In this manner they remain, without contact and where they can receive perfect circulation of air. For the home supply of seed there is no better method to be recommended. —C. P. Bull, Asst. Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Paul.
