WILL TOUR THE COLONIES

Crown Prince William Overcomes Obstacles Placed in His Way by His Father.

Crown Prince William's trip through the German colonies, which he desired to make this year, but to which the emperor refused to consent, may be made in 1915. According to a usually well informed source the consent of the emperor has been gained, and all that now remains to be done is to induce the reichstag to appropriate $45,000 for expenses. This, however, is likely to prove a serious obstacle. When the subject was mooted during the last session of the parliament it encountered so much opposition that the emperor's decision to refuse to permit the crown prince to make the trip was in part ascribed to the attitude of the reichstag. Other reasons for the emperor's refusal are understood to have been his wish that the crown prince should first do some real work with the general staff, and his conviction that proper precautions to protect the personal welfare of the future ruler had not been taken. The latter objection, it is reported, has been removed, and the other will have been removed by next spring.

PRINCE ADALBERT WEDS?

Prince Adalbert, Emperor William's sailor son, has not been seen in public for some time, nor has he attended recent family gatherings. His absence from Kiel during regatta week was much commented on in view of his naval rank and court society is exercised over his romance. He has been staying at Carlsbad as the Duke of Hohenstein and it is asserted that his retirement is due to his love affair. He became engaged two years ago to a Hungarian count's daughter, but the match was broken off in its incipient stage by the emperor. Ever since then the prince has been nursing his grief, frequently approaching a crisis when Adalbert learned that a morganatic marriage had been sanctioned in the case of his brother Oscar. It is even suggested that, determined not to be dictated to any longer, Adalbert went through a secret marriage ceremony at Budapest a short time ago.

MASCULINE GERMANY ANGRY.

Masculine Germany is in the throes of righteous indignation over what is characterized as the "increasing sickly sentimentality" of German courts and juries with girls and young women who apply the "unwritten law" with revolver. The most recent outburst of indignation at the failure of courts and juries to stand up for the ancient "rights" of man toward woman has been occasioned by the acquittal of Brunhilde Wilden, seventeen and pretty, at Elberfeld. Fraulein Wilden shot and killed her lover, Dr. Nolten, candidate for judgeship, because he threatened to "tell on her" and make impossible her marriage to Dr. Nettelbeck, another candidate for honors in jurisprudence, who had been introduced to the girl by Nolten.

PLANS CHILDREN'S BUREAU.

Taking its cue from the United States the Hungarian government plans to establish a national children's bureau. The purpose is to concentrate the present activities of the state, the municipalities and public societies into a central department, which will in effect be a ministry of child welfare. A bill on the subject introduced in parliament has met with generous support and is expected to be adopted shortly. One clause provides for the special care and training of any children in whom unusual talent in science or art may be discovered.

SOME GERMAN STATISTICS.

Germany's growing population is illustrated by a greater statistical chart at the Stuttgart hygienic exhibition. This chart shows that in Germany: One child is born every sixteen seconds; two sets of twins are born every hour; one person dies every twenty-eight seconds; thirty-five infants die every hour; one victim of tuberculosis dies every four and a half minutes; one victim of infectious tumors dies every ten minutes; three fatal accidents occur every hour; one suicide occurs each hour. The net result is that Germany's population increases by 100 every hour.

BERLIN BARS SKYSCRAPERS.

With something resembling a sigh of relief over an escape from an impending calamity the newspapers of Berlin report that, after all, there will be no invasion of Berlin by the American skyscraper style of architecture. It was planned to erect a building opposite the Friedrichstrasse Bahnhof, which with a superimposed tower would have attained the dizzy height of ten stories. The police, however, caused the owners of the property to understand that nothing so monumental could be sanctioned.

KEEP AWAY FROM MAN.

The German has a perfect mania for forming and joining new social organizations. The latest effort in this line is reported from Strasburg, in West Prussia, where a number of women have organized an association which they have christened Los vom Mann (away from man). There is possibly some significance in the fact that most of the members are elderly unmarried ladies. It was but recently that the organization of an "association to combat the forming of associations" was reported.

PRINCE REAL ATHLETE.

The pride of the German athletic world at the moment is Prince Frederick Carl of Prussia, a cousin of the kaiser and a nephew of the Duchess of Connaught. He has just won the "Modern Pentalon" organized by the German Olympic game committee for officers of the army. The event consisted of competitions in pistol shooting, fencing, swimming, riding and cross-country running. Prince Frederick Carl, who is twenty-one years old, captured each event handsomely, eliminating 180 rivals.

KAISER A MIGHTY NIMROD.

The kaiser's right to be considered Germany's leading hunter has been established by statistics showing that in his lifetime he has bagged 73,308 pieces of game. More than 18,000 were rabbits, 44,000 pheasants, 3,000 deer and 140 foxes. This record is extraordinary, considering the fact that the kaiser shoots with his left hand alone. The crown prince presumably will be unable to make such a name for himself as a hunter, because he is a notoriously poor shot.

FIREMEN FIGHT BEES.

During the last few weeks Berlin has been invaded repeatedly by swarms of bees and dragon flies. The latter are harmless creatures, but the bees have made their presence felt on the exposed parts of many an unoffending citizen. Indeed so persistent were the little pests that the fire brigades have been called out on several occasions to clear them away.

SERVIAN CLUB RAIDED.

The police of Berlin arrested the president and members of the Servian Students' club and searched their room for evidence of a pan-Servian conspiracy which is alleged to involve Servians living in various towns of Germany. The students assert that their club is a social organization and has no political significance.

8,000 WEDDING GUESTS.

A wedding whose guests numbered over 8,000 persons and whose feasting continued for eight days was celebrated recently at Sadagora, Bukovina, one of those remote country districts of Austria-Hungary where mammoth wedding festivities on a scale utterly unknown in America or Western Europe are the rule.

ROYAL PAIR ENGAGED.

Official announcement has been made of the betrothal of Prince William of Hohenzollern, father-in-law of former King Manuel of Portugal, to Princess Adelgunde, eldest daughter of King Ludwig of Bavaria. Prince William, who is fifty years old, is a widower. Princess Adelgunde is forty-four.

DECOLLETTE FOR MEN.

Berlin's latest fad is one aimed at popularizing decollette for men. The pruders are shocked beyond expression and even the newspapers have come along with the pious wish that "gentlemen" like Berliners will not carry the fad to excess.

NEW HOME FOR ENGINEERS.

The Society of German Engineers has just built for itself a new home at a cost of nearly $500,000. It now has more than 25,000 members, and it is claimed that this is the largest organization of its class in the world.

WOMEN BEAT EDITOR.

The editor of the Stuttgart Schwabische Zeitung was given a severe beating by two Social Democratic women. An article in the newspaper in which he maligned women was the cause of the attack.

STORAGE RATES RAISED.

The North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American lines have decided to raise their rate for stowage passengers from Germany to the United States by $2.50, bringing it up to $37.50.

30,000 MEN LOCKED OUT.

Thirty thousand textile workers in the district of Forst, Prussia, were locked out by their employers as a result of a strike of 125 tailors.

WORMS SECOND TO CHOLERA

The Symptoms of Lung Worms Are Mistaken for Those of Cholera.

From an economic standpoint parasitic diseases are of grave importance to those who are interested in the welfare of the great live-stock industry. Serious losses occur yearly among our domestic animals, especially among sheep, hogs, and horses. Parasitic diseases have frequently gone unrecognized or have been diagnosed as some other malady, producing tissue changes of a similar nature. This is partly due to lack of observation and intelligent search for the real cause. Many of the most troublesome parasites that infest our domestic animals are so small that it requires very careful search to detect them. Parasites of swine, from an economic standpoint, are second in importance only to hog cholera. In certain localities the parasites have gained such a strong foothold that the hog raising industry has become seriously impaired.

Preventatives and treatments for some of the worst Minnesota parasites are suggested in Bulletin 51, recently prepared for free distribution, by Dr. W. L. Boyd, University Farm, St. Paul. It is entitled Some Internal Parasites of Domestic Animals and includes discussions of bots and pinworms of horses; lung worms of calves, sheep and hogs; the nodule disease of sheep; thorn-headed worms of hogs, and common round worms of hogs.

TUBERCULOSIS CENSUS OF THE CHURCHES TO BE TAKEN

A Tuberculosis Census of thousands of churches in various parts of the country will be taken in September, under the direction of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The census will be part of the preparation for the Fifth Annual Tuberculosis Day to be observed during the week of November 29th.

The ministers of several thousand churches will be asked to report on the number of deaths from tuberculosis in the last year, the number living cases in their parishes on September 1st, the number of deaths from all causes, and the number of members or communicants. These figures will be made the basis of an educational campaign, which will culminate in the Tuberculosis Day movement, for which occasion sermon and lecture outlines and other forms of tuberculosis literature will be distributed free to ministers. Last year nearly 75,000 churches, schools, and other bodies took part in the Tuberculosis Day observance. The movement had the endorsement of the leading church officials of every denomination. More than 1,200 anti-tuberculosis societies scattered all over this country will work to make Tuberculosis Day a success.

Plain Talk on Lumber Buying
While lumber is beyond question the cheapest form of construction, that does not necessarily mean that it should be applied haphazardly throughout a building without regard to cost or relative merits. Such use would be equal to pure extravagance in view of the many grades and kinds of lumber that are today offered. Price per thousand is certainly very misleading and for that reason we prefer to go into details with our customers and ascertain for just what use they intend the lumber we sell them. In rendering our customers this sort of service, we are frequently able to save them money and at the same time insure them better results and more lasting durability. Such service, we maintain, entitles us to your lumber business. Think it over. Then come in and get our ideas.
