MINNESOTA LEADS IN RYE YIELD

In the number of acres devoted to the rye crop, Minnesota ranks third in the United States, says A. C. Arny, assistant agronomist, department of agriculture, University of Minnesota. According to the 1913 reports of the department of agriculture, at Washington, Wisconsin raised 425,000 acres, Michigan 375,000 and Minnesota 300,000 acres. The average yield to the acre was as follows: Minnesota 19 bushels, Wisconsin 17.5 bushels and Michigan 14.3 bushels. The average yield to the acre for the United States in 1913 was 16.2 bushels. Minnesota No. 2 rye, a selection from a Swedish rye has given excellent results in all of the rye-producing states. In the period 1900-1909 inclusive, Minnesota No. 2 rye averaged on University farm 39.38 bushels an acre. The average yield an acre for the state for the same period was 15.7 bushels. A very fine crop of Minnesota No. 2 rye was raised on University farm this year. Of this a small supply of seed is for sale. The seed is cleaned and graded. Those who are looking for good seed rye for fall planting will do well to avail themselves of this supply.

LIGHT WORK FOR PLAGUE VICTIMS

The Minnesota Public Health association is developing a committee on tuberculosis whose special function, it is planned, will be to organize the whole state to provide employment for tuberculous patients whose disease is arrested. These patients are no longer infectious. They may work among others with perfect safety to those others. But, in very many cases they should not work so hard as normal people may; especially they should not work at certain forms of employment; sometimes they should not work at all. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says that this condition in Minnesota is by no means an exceptional one, and that 50 per cent of the benefit of the sanatorium is lost without direct and intimate attention to it.

WHAT MADE HIS FEET SORE The proverbial hardness of a negro's head is a favorite subject of jest. In this relation, an Atlanta man tells this story. One afternoon a negro boy about fifteen years old was proceeding with some difficulty along a road leading into the city. His feet were bound up in immense rolls of cloth. His hair, especially that of the top of the head, seemed to be a bit "mussed up." "What's the matter?" asked a friend. "Mah foots is sore," explained the boy. "Pap, he done hit me on the haid wif his ax, an' I was standin' on some ole iron."—October Lippincott's.

THE ROUSTABOUT BENEFITS BY GOOD JUDGE'S ACCIDENT.

IT does beat all how word of "Right-Cut" the Real Tobacco Chew gets around so fast. A man hears of it—tries it—likes it better than the old kind—and straight-way is eager to get his friends started on the chew that satisfies. Sappy, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut". One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Minutes Mean Dollars IN TREATING ANIMALS

Doublets you know the danger of delayed treatment of colic and other diseases. You also realize that wrongly applied remedies are often worse than no treatment at all. In other words, not to diagnose a disease accurately may prove fatal. Every owner should be able to recognize an ailment and give correct treatment at the first symptoms. Prompt action is the great secret of treating horses. Minutes mean dollars. Of course proper treatment is always necessary. That is just how Humphrey's 600 page Veterinary Manual will prove so valuable to you. It is by Dr. Humphrey, M. D., V. M., and teaches how to diagnose and give proper treatment. This book will save you hundreds of dollars and keep you from getting anything. It will be sent absolutely free on request to any owner in order to introduce Humphrey's Veterinary Manual. Remember, it is absolutely free. You do not have to order any remedies to secure the book. Address: Humphrey's Homeopathic Medical Company, 124 William Street, New York City. This is a splendid opportunity to obtain a veterinary treatise that you should have in your library. As a reference work you will find it invaluable. To have it in the time of need will be worth many dollars, whereas it will cost you but a post card by writing for it now.

THOMAS J. SHARKEY

Progressive Candidate for Congress, Sixth District, Minnesota

Here's what the press said of him in 1897:

(From one who knows) Out at the Northern Pacific station in this city, is my ideal of a station agent, one in whom I am well pleased. A more accommodating, agreeable, active, progressive fellow you won't run across in seventeen states. Never saw one who was willing to do so much for all, rich or poor, high or low, as he. It don't matter whether a person is a patron of his road or not, it's all the same, he'll go a mile and back to perform a favor. He's pure stuff and his name is Thomas J. Sharkey. Hope to never see the back of my neck if Anoka isn't to be congratulated in having him here, and the N. P. is fortunate in having so good a representative.—Anoka Union, Sept. 1, 1897.

Hurray for Sharkey. I see he is a candidate for senator from the 53d district, and here's hoping he will win out. Thomas J. Sharkey of the city of Staples, was station agent at Anoka for many years, and he helped to make this city the splendid potato market that it is, being instrumental in having several ware houses erected here. He held the office of alderman of the third ward and was an advocate of good streets, and anything which would benefit the city. He was prominent in saving the city about $1,000 per year on the water and light contract, besides a good many hundreds on the city hall contract. Mr. Sharkey is a worker and should be elected senator, the voters in his district would have a member, who would always be doing something for them.—Anoka Union, Sept. 5, 1906.

Staples World, Feb. 20, 1913: Mr. Sharkey served on the Anoka council six years, was alderman here two years. He was also president of the Staples Commercial Club, and president of the Board of Education. He has always had the interests of this city at heart, and says: "It is a source of great satisfaction to the old timers here to realize, that from practically nothing, we now have a city of 3,000 people; that we have a first class electric light and heat distributing plant; also over two miles of water works and sewer system, besides two blocks paved. In addition, two good school houses, splendid churches, and any number of beautiful residences, to say nothing of our business blocks, opera house, hotels and two potato warehouses, all in about twenty years."

Staples Headlight, Oct. 1914: The following is a tribute to a home man, Mr. T. J. Sharkey, who is a candidate for congress from this district. The fact that he is a Staples resident, lives here, spends his money here, endorses and pushes for anything that will be a benefit to the city, and has always shown his faith by putting his money to work here in the way of purchasing or building substantial buildings, merits a large vote from men of the city.—(Editor)

Here is what he has to say himself, to the Voters: "To the Voters of the Sixth Congressional District: "Gentlemen: You will conclude from the above, that I not only know how to serve the people; but naturally take pleasure in doing so. "Two years ago as a candidate for railroad commissioner, I had the honor of leading the ticket, and advocated, among other things, more economy and higher efficiency in the matter of grain inspection. Also the revision of insurance and other rates so as to prevent unjust discrimination against our country districts; thereby enabling them to have advantages of their locations. "Last year, just to put them on their feet, I managed the Farmers Potato Warehouse here, and while we made no money, we established a good market, and the farmers really got the benefit. "This district is a veritable empire within itself, for we have ample timber for fuel, the best of agriculture and grazing lands, and an abundance of iron ore; consequently we can live without assistance from outside sources, and should congratulate ourselves, that we are not menaced by anything whatsoever. "We have men of experience and of ability; and many young men—in whom I am especially interested—for they are the hope of the world. We want them to have a broad viewpoint, and to lend a helping hand to make this not only a great industrial district, but one famous for its happy and prosperous farmers and working men. "I have been a resident of this district for 35 years, and if elected to congress will stand by President Wilson in all things—except the tariff for the next two years. I should be lacking in vision and patriotism were I to do less, for I believe him to be honest and conscientious, and sincerely hope all good citizens regardless of party will uphold him during the present crisis. "We in this country—more than ever before—hold in our hands the hope of the world, the fate of the coming years; and shame and disgrace will be ours, if in our eyes the light of high resolve is dimmed or if we trail in the dust the hopes of men. "If on this continent we build up another country of unjustly divided material prosperity, we will have done nothing; and we will do less if we set the greed of envy against the greed of arrogance, and thereby destroy the permanent well being of us all. "For the rich—in portions of the old world—it seemed easier each day to become richer; but it became harder than ever for their great body of men and women to earn a decent living, or lay up a dollar against sickness or old age. These were the conditions in many places, and also in Mexico where peonage prevailed, and of course there could be but one result—war. As an American I favor a tariff sufficiently high, to keep out foreign products that come into competition with our own, but without knocking everything, I would encourage our manufacturers every where, to go after their share of the trade of the world. This would give employment to labor and keep our money at home, which in itself is enough to make any country great. I also favor the upbuilding of our merchant marine, which if properly handled should increase the value of every farm, and bring about genuine equilibrium between agriculture, industry and commerce. "In future politicians—who have gone to extremes to hold office—will find it hard to get an audience for they have failed to make good and really do nothing; whereas if they would take advantage of present opportunities, or prove themselves capable of taking hold of statesmanlike measures, this country would blossom like a rose. "I would consider it the crowning glory of my life, to have the great honor and privilege of representing the people of this district in congress and believe me when I say that I will strive in all earnestness and sincerity to accomplish more in the next two years for the district and for the 'betterment of humanity' than has been done in the last ten. "These are progressive principles which sooner or later must prevail and if deemed worthy I would thank you for your hearty support, which 'like bread cast upon the waters' will return to you many fold, and the result will be the 'greatest good to the greatest number.' Shall look forward with confidence to the outcome in the Idea of November, and hereby personally guarantee to every man, and every woman too, a square deal. "Yours very truly,

"T. J. Sharkey, "Progressive Candidate for Congress, Sixth District, Minnesota."

"Professional men—such as they are—have governed long enough. Give us a 'booster,' known by all men to be the right stuff."
