

ALL STARS WERE TOO FAST FOR PINE RIVER

A rather uninteresting game of basketball was played at the high school gymnasium Saturday evening between the Little Falls All Stars and a team from Pine River in which the locals were the winners by a score of 43 to 12. Those who witnessed the game say it was the roughest and least interesting of any ever played here.

The game was very one sided and was a real walkaway for the local quint, who had hoped that the visitors knew something about the game. Swanson and R. Brannen each secured six field baskets, and Meyers secured one. Swanson also got three free throws. Bowman for Pine River secured three field baskets and one free throw.

Lineup and summary:

HIGH TRIMMED SAUK CENTRE 29 TO 24

Friday evening the local high school basketball quint copped its third victory of the season by defeating the fast Sauk Centre aggregation by a score of 29 to 24. The game was a fast one from start to finish but the Little Falls boys had the big end of things throughout.

Ovid Belanger, playing at guard for the locals, shot five field baskets and Meyers, the captain secured three. Meyers also made seven out of the ten free throws. Hanson, the Sauk Centre forward, made the best showing for the visitors, scoring three field baskets and ten free throws out of twenty-one.

ATTENDED SHORT COURSE

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hammerbeck returned from St. Paul, where they attended the farmers' short course, held at the university farm. Besides witnessing a number of demonstrations Mr. and Mrs. Hammerbeck enjoyed listening to talks by A. D. Wilson, superintendent of the university extension division, Dean Woods and others.

Mr. Hammerbeck's farm in South Little Falls town is used as a state demonstration farm and is under the supervision of R. L. Donovan of the extension division.

HAVE NO USE FOR LOCKS.

Since No One There Would Steal, Why Fasten the Doors?

A land of almost utopian simplicity is described by a writer in the London Field, who a few years ago started on foot from Innsbruck and went by way of Landeck to the Stelvio pass and back across the Tyrol to Weisshofen. One of the joys of a walking trip in the Tyrol, he says, lies in the friendship of these exceedingly simple, honorable and religious peasants.

They leave their agricultural implements lying all night in the field, covered with a heavy cloth, for the dew is as dishonest among these holy mountains as elsewhere. They have no locks on their barns. They lift a cross with a cry for prayers and the remembrance of God at every quarter of a mile. These crosses mark the spot where some poor soul has died during the wild storms of winter. How dreadful those tempests are can be judged from the fact that we found six such homely wooden monuments, not one more than ten years old, within half a mile.

At Longarone, which is over the Italian border, we discovered that our chamber, the best in the inn, had its lock screwed on topsy turvy, so that it could not be fastened. Out in the hallway I bellowed for Maria. She came, all surprise. "But the honorable herr cannot have another bedroom with a better lock, for that's the only lock in the hotel, the only one in the village." The landlord bought it because the foreigners insisted, but he had never seen a lock before. If the honorable herr will wait until tomorrow, perhaps—ah, but every one in town knows the honorable travelers are here; every one knows that they go a long trip and must need much money, so no one could be wicked enough to attempt to deprive the honorable herr and his honorable frau of a thing they need so much.

BRAVERY IN BATTLE.

It is a Physical Condition and Depends Upon the Heart.

"Bravery," said the surgeon general, "is purely a matter of the heart. It's his heart that determines how a soldier will conduct himself in battle. The soldier has no more responsibility in the matter of his height or his complexion.

"In battle the heart beats, as a rule, diminish. They diminish 12 degrees. A good, strong, solid man has a heart running seventy-two to the minute. In battle it falls to sixty. That is not bad. It leaves the man pretty near all his mental and physical powers intact. So he makes a good soldier.

"But there are many sluggish hearted men. They seem strong enough stalwart enough, but their hearts run at the best of times only sixty or a minutes. Subtract twelve in battle. Result, forty-eight. And pallor and weakness follow—pallor and weakness I might say, of mind no less than of body. It is not surprising if this soldier runs away.

"There's another class, a class increasing in these stressful modern times—namely, the nervous class. The heart of the nervous class in time of danger is the worst of all. It goes speeding up, up, up—it actually reaches 120 beats. Its owner can then do nothing. He can't fight, he can't advance, he can't retreat. He sinks down on the ground. He shakes and covers. A pitiable spectacle. But he can't help it any more than he could help an attack of scarlet fever.

"Honor the good soldier," ended the surgeon general, "but pity the poor one, for it's his heart, it's not himself that is to blame."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mermaid For Breakfast.

A stranger meal than any ever partaken by Frank Buckland or the most hardened and cosmopolitan traveler is described by Juan Francisco de St. Antonio in his account of his travels and adventures in the Philippine Islands, published at Manila in 1738. In this curious little work the author tells us that he once breakfasted off a mermaid, and he further gravely describes its flavor as being like fresh fat pork.

An Awkward Situation.

"Unless I get help," declared the detective, "this revolving door is going to lose me a prisoner."

"How so?"

"There's a fellow I want in that office. But this revolving door has got me blocked. He'll start out if I start in."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Impossible.

"There's no use talking, it's impossible to suit that theatrical manager."

"Impossible, my boy. Nothing in this world is impossible."

"Yes, there is. He wants me to write a tragedy with a happy ending."—Detroit Free Press.

Natural Result.

"Mayme blushed when she found I was trying to read her face."

"Well, people usually do blush when their faces are getting read."—Baltimore American.

Literally.

"Booze always creeps upstairs nights in his stocking feet."

"Afraid of his wife eh?"

"Scared out of his boots."—Boston Transcript.

The Foolish One.

"I think he is foolish to start bnying a dictionary on his salary."

"He's not half so foolish as the woman."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

KIDNAPPERS SENTENCED—SULLIVAN GETS REPRIEVE

W. J. Sullivan, Peter L. Newman and George C. Payne of Crosby, who were convicted of kidnaping Theodore Sjogren, a miner, during a strike at Crosby in the spring of 1913, were sentenced Saturday by Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court. Newman and Payne received indeterminate terms of hard labor at the Stillwater penitentiary and Sullivan was sentenced to the St. Cloud reformatory - or an indeterminate term. The court exercised its own discretion in sentencing Sullivan as he was under age.

Sullivan made an appeal to the state board of pardons for a reprieve of sentence the first of this week and was granted the same. Attorneys M. E. Ryan and M. D. Clark of Brainerd and C. D. O'Brien of St. Paul appeared before the board on Sullivan's behalf. The suspension of sentence leaves Sullivan a free man until April, when the pardon board has its next sitting. A petition has been circulated in Crow Wing and Morrison counties, asking for the pardon of all three men.

STEWART LIVING AND WORKING

The rumor that John Stewart of Willdum, Can., formerly of this city, was killed in the European war, has no foundation. A friend in this city is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Stewart stating that her husband is working at Willdum.

The report was circulated here several weeks ago that Mr. Stewart enlisted with the Canadian army, following the call for volunteers, and that he was sent to the front, where he was killed in battle.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Williams left Tuesday for Pasadena, Cal., where they will spend the winter. Miss Norma Williams went to Lake City for an extended visit.

 WHICH ARE YOU SAVING—MONEY OR COURTESY?

YOU know how tobacco chewers used to apologize for their tobacco when a friend wanted a chew. Now they are glad to tell their friends about "Right-Cut" because they know it's the Real Tobacco Chew.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.
