MR. Q. HOPE JONES

He Gives a Free Lecture, but Takes Up a Collection.

A PUBLIC DUTY OVERLOOKED.

Why Teach the People of Africa How to Eat Pie and the Chinese How to Eat Ice Cream and Deny a Stovepipe Hat to the Red Man?

By M. QUAD.
[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

LADIES and Gentlemen—It is needless for me to observe that this large and intelligent audience does me proud. It was advertised that this lecture would be free, and you found the doors wide open to you. I feel it a sort of duty, however, to take up a collection. Any money so contributed will be evenly divided. One-half will go toward erecting a tombstone over the grave of the father-in-law of Christopher Columbus, as soon as the same can be located, and the other half will be economically expended in paying my personal expenses from town to town. As I pass the hat I will call your attention to the fact that if Columbus hadn't been backed by his father-in-law he could never have set out on his voyage, and that the said father-in-law has never had a fair show in history. As I count up the proceeds of the collection, which amounts to $178, I wish to return thanks on behalf of Columbus and all his relations.

"My subject is the American Indian, and the duty of the American white man toward him. I hope to make your duty plain to you, as I turn the light of my stereopticon on the canvas, and you behold the picture of the savage at home. Instead of sowing or reaping he is engaged in a war dance. Instead of broadening his mind he is clinging to old time traditions. As he dances he yells for scalps and hollers for gore.

"Who is to blame for this state of affairs? All of us. Had we followed the finger of duty thirty years ago the red man of today would have been wearing plug hats and high collars, and his thirst for gore would have been washed away in mock turtle soup and ice cream. We see this savage engaged in a war dance, when he might just as well be employed in compiling a family almanac or running a cider mill.

"We lay aside the picture of the war dance and substitute another. My heart aches every time I exhibit it. You see the picture of a squaw standing in front of a wigwam. Years ago she was called Blue Bell and the young men of her tribe raved over her willow form and fawn like glide. Had the hand of the white race been extended to her then she would have been ornamenting a drawing room. Instead of wearing an army blanket she would have draped and posed for a goddess before some great painter.

"No helping hand was extended and the Blue Bell with the willow form was left to mature into a sawed off squaw, who smokes a pipe. I ask the red headed man on the end seat, third row, how he would like to be an Indian buck in old clothes, with nothing to do but lick his squaw in the morning, kick his dogs in the afternoon, and cuss his papposes around after dark? I ask the woman with the frozen expression over there by the post how she would like to be a squaw in a wigwam. We have taught the people of Africa how to eat mince pie and we have taught the folks of China how to devour ice cream, but we have turned our backs on the Indians under our feet and had no concern in their welfare. I feel, to speak plainly on this matter, I feel to say to the fat man with the bald head and contented look that he has been derelict in his duty and ought to be ashamed of himself.

"My dear friends, I think I can detect looks of sympathy on the faces before me. I think I can see mental resolutions to do your duty in future. My feelings in the matter almost oblige me to announce that another collection will be taken up as a fitting close to the meeting, but prudence bids me not to overdo a good thing. In order to prevent a stampede, in which numbers of you might be killed or injured, the collection will be dispensed with, but as you depart for your homes think the matter over seriously and earnestly. Extend your hand and it won't take ten years before the Indian will eat with a fork, pull wires at a ward caucus and promote trusts and syndicates for the benefit of mankind."

Increase the Mileage of Your Tires

You Have the Advantage of This Opportunity Before You

We have recently installed a vulcanizing plant of the most modern and efficient design and are fully prepared to handle all classes of repairs on all makes and sizes of tires. We fully guarantee every job.

WE SPECIALIZE ON RETREADING

The returns of mileage makes this class of repairs most desirable from every point of view

BEFORE RETREADING

This tire is badly in need of a new tread and would probably not last through 500 more miles. This is the way the average worn tread looks when we get it for repairs.

AFTER RETREADING

This is the same tire retreaded, the way it looks when we get through with it. It is now in condition for 3000 or 4000 more miles.

ALL ARGUMENTS END WITH OUR GUARANTEE

Every repair that we turn out is absolutely guaranteed. If one of our sectional reinforcements, rim cuts, side blowouts give out before the rest of the tire is worn out, it is replaced gratis. Retreads are guaranteed for 2000 miles.

Yours for better tire service,

LITTLE FALLS TIRE REPAIR COMPANY
R. J. BRICK, Prop.

This cut shows a small section of a long side wall blow out and torn bead. In actual practice this whole repair would of course be cured at one time. This illustration is simply meant to show how repairs of this kind can be made on the Haywood side wall vulcanizer.
