General Gorgas speaks in favor of the midday dinner. He was considering health and mortality problems in the Panama canal zone. A heavy meal at midday generally goes with a long rest, and the rest is not the least of the benefits. Where the workday begins at 6 or 7 o'clock and lasts till evening a long midday rest spell is fairly earned and is also good economy.

Sporting experts say that tennis, once derided as "an old maid's game," has become second only to baseball. Public park courts and club courts in many sections of the country are inadequate to fill the demands made upon them notwithstanding the numerous private courts. Among the elements of its popularity are cheapness and the fact that the game is open to all ages.

RUSSIANS FORCE HINDENBURG BACK ON NORTHERN LINE

RETIREMENT FROM LAKES BELIEVED TO INDICATE ABANDONMENT OF ATTACKS ON DVINSK.

FRANCE IS NOT CONCERNED WITH PEACE TALKS—BRIAND

New Premier Makes First Speech in Chamber of Deputies—Says Republic Will Accept Peace Only When Won By Enemy's Decisive Defeat.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The war office has announced that Field Marshal von Hindenburg had been forced to withdraw his lines between Swenton and Ilsen lakes, on the northern end of the Russian front.

The retirement of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's forces from the line running between lakes Swenton and Ilsen apparently means that the German commander is abandoning his attack from the west and southwest on the Russian stronghold of Dvinsk, which town he has been making a determined effort to capture in the operations of the last few weeks.

The city of Uzice, in northwestern Serbia, has been captured by the Germans. This announcement was made by the war office. Uzice, capital of the Serbian province of that name, is 53 miles southwest of Kragujevatz. It is a railroad terminus, control of which places the Germans in possession of still a larger part of the Serbian railroad system.

Says Peace Must Be Won. Paris, Nov. 4.—Peace suggestions were waved aside by Aristide Briand, new premier of France, in the chamber of deputies.

It was his first speech to the lawmakers since assuming the cabinet leadership. Briefly and pungently he told them that the only peace the French will accept is a peace won by the enemy's decisive defeat.

"You do not expect a long declaration," he began, rising to outline his ministry's policy. "We are at war. We must act; not talk. Every government effort is being strained in the direction of action. Every force of the nation has been grouped with a view to war. Every lack of discipline will receive a reprimand.

"The nation, parliament, the administration, are entitled to drive the enemy out of the French territory he has invaded.

Not Concerned With Peace Talk. "France is not concerned with talk of peace. Premeditated aggression forced war upon her. She will not stop fighting until the enemy is vanquished and lasting peace is guaranteed.

"We are in full accord with England concerning the conduct of the war. "Serbia will receive all necessary aid."

Briand's address was received by the chamber with tremendous enthusiasm.

"Germany's Balkan campaign attests her failure in the other theaters of war," said the premier. "It was undertaken solely because her offensives on both the French and Russian fronts had been completely broken. We are determined to go through to the end."

EXACT LOSS OF LIFE UNKNOWN

Number of Bodies Recovered From Wrecked Steamer Santa Clara Stands at Eight.

Kitchener Invited to Enlist. London, Nov. 4.—Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, the secretary of war, early this week received one of Lord Derby's invitations to men of military age to join the army. This was disclosed by Lord Derby, who, while addressing a meeting of middle aged recruits, said nobody should be surprised if they received an invitation as one actually had been sent to the minister of war.

Keg of Dye Springs $1,550. London, Nov. 4.—The tremendous increase in the price of dyes, due to the war, was indicated when a keg of methylene blue was offered at a sale of lost property at the Midland railway. The keg, weighing 150 pounds and worth $60 before the war, was eagerly bid on and fetched $1,550.

May Jeopardize Root Boom. New York, Nov. 4.—Whether or not New York's overwhelming defeat of the new constitution will jeopardize Elihu Root's presidential aspirations and prospects is a question on which politicians disagree. In some quarters the 300,000 majority against the reform constitution of which Root is the father is taken as a decisive setback to the former senator's ambitions. There are others, however, who look upon the matter in more optimistic light and see only victory and increased strength for Mr. Root.

ALLIES POURING INTO SERBIA

AUSTRO-GERMANS MAKE PROGRESS IN MARCH.

Bulgarians Are Forced to Give Way Before Superior Forces—Germans Win Trenches.

London, Nov. 4.—There has been hard fighting in the Serbian, Russian, and Austro-Italian theaters, and at least one attack of note in the Champagne region of France.

In Serbia the Austrians and Germans continue to make progress everywhere, but the Bulgarians have had to give way before superior forces in the Nisava valley.

Besides the Anglo-French troops, including British cavalry, who already are in southern Serbia, British and French transports are arriving daily at Saloniki and troops from them are being sent up the country immediately to attempt to check the Bulgarian march from Voles toward Monastir, while other transports, according to a Sofia dispatch have landed troops at Kavala, a Greek port on the Aegean sea near the Bulgarian border.

In the region of Massiges, in Champagne, the Germans penetrated some of the advanced French trenches in an attack which was preceded by a heavy bombardment.

Paris says, however, that elsewhere than the advanced trenches the Germans were repulsed, suffering material losses.

The Italians are still bombarding heavily the Gorizia region of the Austro-Italian front and at several points have made infantry attacks.

French Troops Land at Kavala. London, Nov. 4.—The landing of French troops at Kavala on the Greek coast is reported in a Sofia telegram to Berlin. These forces will endeavor to connect with the other troops aligned against the Bulgarians from Krivolak to Strumitza to relieve the pressure there and by a possible flank attack threaten the rear of the Bulgarian forces.

With the exception of this reported landing of troops, the Balkan situation presents little besides a tangled conflict of rumors including one that Monastir already is in Bulgarian hands and that the Serbians are almost surrounded by the Austrians, Germans and Bulgarians and are hastily retreating to their last positions in the Albanian mountains. Berlin, Vienna and Sofia official reports, record no such developments.

Autoist Leaves Victim in Road. Minneapolis, Nov. 4.—An unidentified automobile driver struck John Kanoth, Milwaukee, at Central and Seventeenth avenues and then disappeared. Kanoth was taken to the City Hospital with bruises and injuries to his back.

"Skodas" To Bombard Nish. London, Nov. 4.—The Austro-German forces in Serbia are preparing for an active bombardment of Nish, the huge "Skodas," Austrian howitzers, of the type which leveled the forts of Przemysl for the bombardment.

"Before leaving Kragujevatz the Serbians blew up all buildings of military importance," writes the Berlin Tageblatt's correspondent at the front.

"The Serbians fought with unexampled bravery, defending their abandoned trenches to the last."

A Russian's Effort to Lose Himself

By EUNICE BLAKE

Peter Trolenco was a member of one of those circles that sprang up in Russia some forty years ago when nihilism was first heard of. They took their name from their underlying principle that nothing in government which existed should continue. The Latin word for "nothing" is nihil.

There was great secrecy in those circles, the members of one circle being completely ignorant of those in another. Peter understood that different circles worked in harmony through their chiefs, but beyond this he had no information whatever. And yet St. Petersburg (now Petrograd), where he lived, was full of nihilists.

Peter was young, and there was something captivating in all this mystery. But one night there came to him a terrible awakening. Lots were drawn to decide which one of the circle should assassinate the chief of police, and Peter drew the fatal paper, on which had been sketched a dagger.

All the romance attending the secret meetings, the disguises, the many ingenious plans of the propaganda of nihilism, shivered before this terrible deed which Peter was required to commit and from which there was no escape. He might flee to the ends of the earth, but would never know when some one, possibly his best friend, would strike him.

To add to his horror, he loved a young girl, to whom he was expecting to be married. Nina Dimitrieff was at the time preparing her trousseau, Peter feared that his misfortune, which, in any event, would break their betrothal, would kill her.

He spent a long while in making up his mind what to do and finally decided upon flight. He would leave Russia disguised and go to a land where he would be lost to the world. But what action should he take in reference to his betrothed? After weighing the matter, dreading the shock he would cause her by telling her what had happened, he decided to disappear from her as mysteriously as from others. He would confide only in his mother.

A few days after he had drawn the dagger he began a journey to the border. Disguised as a beggar, he traveled by night and begged by day in the towns through which he passed. What money he took with him, added to what he received from charity, enabled him to reach Genoa and take passage for America.

For five years the fugitive kept changing his residence, avoiding the large cities so far as possible, thinking to lose himself more effectively in the country. But whenever he came near a Russian he moved on. He dared not write to his mother for fear his letters would be intercepted, but before leaving Russia he had laid a plan for communicating with her at long intervals. Finally he received word from her that a friend of his in the circle to which he belonged had informed her, at the risk of his life, that an emissary had been sent to assassinate him.

One day Peter appeared in a small town in Missouri to receive a communication expected from his mother. What was his astonishment to see walking on the main street Nina Dimitrieff. The sight staggered him. Could it be possible that the girl he loved had been sent out to kill him? He banished the thought and ran toward her. Seeing him, she gave him a meaning glance and passed on.

Peter followed her and presently saw her drop a bit of paper. Picking it up, he read, "Meet me at 11 on the bridge." The town was on the bank of a small stream spanned by a single bridge. This fixed the place. At the hour appointed he went there. Nina soon appeared, and the two were clasped in an embrace.

Then Nina told her story. After his disappearance she had wormed the secret from his mother. But it was not till Mme. Trolenco had heard that an emissary had been dispatched to kill him that Nina decided to join him in his exile. The immediate reason for her coming was to warn him against this person who had been described to his mother. Nina knew the man who was to avenge the circle, but he did not know her. Indeed, she had seen him in the town that day.

What was to be done? Nina declared that she would remain with her lover, protect him so far as she might be able and die with him if she could not save him. The danger was imminent. Besides, if they left the town they would be followed. They talked together a long while, discussing various plans, and finally adopted one that bid fair to accomplish the desired result.

The stream flowing beneath them was a tributary to the Missouri river. Beyond the Missouri were the plains, then uncivilized. Arranging to meet at a point in Kansas, they separated. Peter descended the stream and reached the Missouri in the morning. There he found a boat tied to the shore. In the bow he placed a paper, on which he had written that, tired of being hunted for his life, he had decided to drown himself. Then taking off his outer clothing, which he left in the boat, he plunged into the river and after a hard struggle with its swift current succeeded in reaching the opposite shore.

The emissary who searched for his victim read an account of the supposed suicide and returned to Russia. Peter and Nina had succeeded in losing themselves to the world.
