Useful Oil

Few industries have grown so rapidly as the manufacture of cottonseed oil. In 1887 there were only four cottonseed oil mills in the United States; in 1902 there were 618, and by 1920 the value of the oil and the by-products of it were estimated to be $125,000,000.

The increased consumption of cottonseed oil is due largely to the great variety of uses found for it. It enters into the manufacture of lard compounds, butterine and other substitutes for butter; is used in packing and preserving fish, in making salad oils, and in the manufacture of so-called "olive oil."

The crude oil is used in medicine, in the preparation of cosmetics, liniments and emulsions; as an illuminating oil in miners' lamps, for rough painting, and for tempering edged tools; and as soap stock, in which field of usefulness, after treatment with certain alkalis, it yields soap, washing powder and glycerin.

Too Much for Airplane

Efforts to make use of airplanes for the purpose of assisting in the efforts to seal high mountains have not been attended with any great success. In the Alps the varying conditions of the snow surface has been a serious detriment to making landings and "getaways."

More Dwelling Houses

There was a decided increase in the construction of dwelling houses in this country during the first ten months of 1921, according to information obtained by the civic development department of the National Chamber of Commerce.

BACK TO TENT-SKIRT DAYS?

Hoop Craze, It is Reliably Reported, Threatens to Engulf Woman-kind Once More.

The jazz skirt is doomed. Those who have refrained from drinking wood alcohol for fear of going blind during the brief skirt epidemic need have no such compunction in the future.

A French fashion journal says the hoop skirt will be all the rage within one year, writes Roy K. Moulton in the New York Mail.

The first hoop skirt was designed by Omar the Tentmaker, and the idea was later used by P. T. Barnum to house his congress of freaks and animals. So far as history goes Omar's design was first used as a skirt by the late lamented Queen Elizabeth.

When Queen Liz floated out of Windsor castle to take the air she resembled a full-rigged ship sailing before the wind, with everything working, including the foretop! spinnaker and jibs. She occupied so much territory that she had to speak in a loud tone of voice to be heard by her large circle of admirers.

There was a lull in the hoop skirt epidemic for some time, and hoop skirts broke out in this country along about the Civil war period. They didn't exactly cause the war, but they may cause one this time.

SANG AS GUEST, NOT ARTIST

Jean de Reszke Accepted Remuneration Only When He Appeared on the Stage.

Jean de Reszke is a great gentleman, not merely as one of an ancient, historical Polish family, but in his own dignity of character and of bearing. The famous tenor, now retired, is living at Nice.

He found himself naturally at home within social portals then inaccessible to the world of artists; he was an aristocrat among the most aristocratic. He insisted on this, not blantly, of course; he would not have been an aristocrat if he had; but in the important particular that he accepted remuneration only when he appeared on the stage; never as a guest of society.

A little anecdote of the time will illustrate how De Reszke insisted on this remaining a guest. A great financier invited him and his brother to one of his great banquets, and at the end, naturally, the artists were asked to sing. They did so. Then the host, who was generous itself—it was, in fact, the late Alfred de Rothschild—presented them two blank checks.

Herewith a dilemma; on the one hand two proud aristocrats asked to break their rule of accepting no fee for a performance in social life, on the other an act of seeming rudeness in refusing what was meant to be a compliment from a host.

They settled the matter by accepting the checks, and sending them back next day blank and torn.

SPRING HINTS FOR BRUSH LAND FARMERS

During the fall and winter there was probably more land brushed and close cut in northern Minnesota than ever before, according to M. J. Thompson, superintendent of the Northeast Experiment station and university land clearing expert.

"Unless the land is to be stumped," says Mr. Thompson, "clover, timothy, and blue grass must be sown between the stumps, in early April. Six pounds, half of it clover, preferably alsike, sufficient. Scattering on snow is wasteful, but get on the land as soon as possible after the snow leaves. If at all possible, stir what you can of the land between the stumps with an 'A' harrow, one section of a spring tooth, a disk, or if nothing better, a brush harrow. The labor is well repaid by the better seed bed secured. A lot of land can be covered in a day.

"Timothy and clover, April sown, should blossom in August. Let it ripen and reseed the remainder of the land. Pasture lightly, if at all, the first season. In April, after the snow is gone and before field work starts, is an excellent time to brush land. A decided advantage is that the ground is wet enough to prevent spread of fire and the brush is dry enough to burn. A careful farmer will clean up his old meadows and brush piles at this time."

A controlling interest in the bank was sold about 10 days ago by J. H. Guerin to J. J. Jankowitz. Heavy withdrawals occurred on a report that the bank was involved in the affairs of the Northern State bank, which was closed recently.

The Western State bank was capitalized at $25,000 and had a $4,000 surplus. The April call showed its deposits to be $445,604, with cash assets of $46,355, considerably above the amount required by law. The bank has been operating six years.

Dr. N. N. Cohen, a stockholder and former president, declared today that all persons interested were working to protect the depositors and it was hoped that the bank might be reopened.

W. W. Sivright, deputy state superintendent of banks, said that the office had been notified this morning that as the result of a "run," the bank had been closed.

"We understood that re-organization was in progress, but the bank officials have not kept us notified up to the minute," he said.

Sooner or later you will use a De Laval

De Laval first gave us the better way of separating cream and now the better way of milking.

The Better Way of Milking

Milking cows by hand is slow, costly and wasteful. It is a job which is universally disliked and each year it is becoming more difficult to secure good hand milkers. After five years of commercial use and after twenty years of study, experimenting and test, the De Laval Milker has proved itself "The Better Way of Milking."

It is the only milker which milks with absolute uniformity—the way cows like to be milked. It can't get tired; can't become cross or irritable; can't get out of adjustment. These are the reasons cows usually give more milk when a De Laval is used. It is "The Better Way of Milking" in every respect—faster, cheaper and cleaner. It is proving so on thousands of farms.
