The Salvation Army in Minneapolis now has a rival in its peculiar religious demonstrations and customs. The new organization is the Gospel Army, and indulges in street parades, band music, uniforms, etc., and considers itself a little more refined than the salvation army.

Two hundred saloon keepers in Minneapolis have taken out licenses at the $1000 rate, and it is not expected that the number will be much increased. It has resulted in greatly increasing the income of the city. The authorities are having trouble in the closing the blind pigs and unlicensed places, but with the very severe penalties of the high license law these places will soon be closed.

New York, July 26.—A Long Branch special to the World gives an account of an interview with George M. Pullman, who has just returned from England. He had been asked about Mr. Blaine's trip, and replied:

"Mr. Blaine is very well, and I think it is a mistake to ascribe his visit to England to political motives. I know that in my conversation with him there was no hint of anything of that kind, and personally, I am firmly of the belief that he has no such purpose in view. He is certainly interested in every feature of life there that has an American tinge. For instance, I remember that he was particularly interested in the amount of money that Americans spent abroad each year. He had been at the pains to ascertain the figures from the banking house there and while I won't vouch for the figures from recollection it seems to me that it was something like $75,000,000 a year."

Mr. Pullman proposes to introduce here the system now in vogue on one or two of the English railroad lines of storing electricity for the lighting of the cars from the friction of the car wheels. He has brought an expert over who will soon set to work on a series of experiments at the shops at Pullman, Ill.
