

EASY NOW TO SAW LOGS AND CUT DOWN TREES

Only one man, or even a boy, with the improved Ottawa Engine Log Saw can easily cut twenty-five to forty cords a day, and at a cost of less than 2c per cord. This machine, which outdoes all others, has a heavy, cross cut saw driven by a powerful especially designed 4-cycle gasoline engine. It's a fast money-maker for those using it, and does more than ten men could do, either cutting down trees, saving logs, or buzzing branches while you rest. When not sawing, the engine can be used for other work requiring power.

The entire machine is mounted on truck wheels to make it easy to move to the trees or logs, and from cut to cut on a log without stopping the engine. For moving on the road, the truck wheels are placed parallel with the skids and the rig hauled straight ahead. The wheels turn on a two-way spindle. You do not have to take them off, but can change direction of wheel travel by merely taking out a pin.

The Ottawa can be fitted for sawing down trees. It cuts level with surface of ground, thereby getting all the timber and leaving no stumps sticking up. An automatic friction clutch stops the saw in case of undue resistance. Two men can fall forty to fifty trees a day in ordinary timber. The whole outfit is compact, simple, durable against a lifetime of hard wear. It sells for a low price and is fully guaranteed for reliable operation in the hands of every one who has trees to cut down and logs to work up.

Full information and low factory price to you can be had simply by addressing the Ottawa Mfg. Company, 2724 Wood St., Ottawa, Kansas.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

MEINTS LOSES CASE FOR MOB DAMAGES

Luverne Man Brought $100,000 Suit—Will Appeal to Higher Court.

PROTECTION CLAIM HELD.

Defense Pleads That Mobbing Was to Protect Victim—"Bandits" Identified By Meints Do Tar and Feathering.

Mankato, Minn.—An amazing charge to the jury by United States district judge Wilbur F. Booth probably caused John Meints to lose his damage case here against 32 alleged mobbers. Meints was taken from his home near Luverne, Minn., on August 19, 1918, tarred and feathered, and then deported across the state line.

Judge Booth accepted the defendant's absurd plea that they intended to protect Meints, and also emphasized the claim that Meints went willingly although it was obvious that one man could not offer physical resistance and although Meints' son was injured and his wife mistreated in the affair.

The case will be appealed to a higher court. On the alleged errors in the charge and in decisions on testimony.

The mob violence against Meints was the culmination of an attempt to outlaw the Nonpartisan league in Rock county. Farmers were unlawfully ordered to sign statements renouncing the league and several who stood for their rights were deported across the Iowa line. Meints was not an active farmer and consequently not a league member, but he had antagonized the county ring by subscribing $50 to a farmer owned paper at the county seat.

Mob "Protection." A mob of about 100 traced Meints to his son's farm and seized him there. At the trial some of the participants alleged that they did this to protect Meints but the plaintiff proved that none of them had notified the lawful authorities of this mythical danger.

Before the mob "guarding" Meints reached the Dakota line, it was met by "bandits" who held up the party and took Meints away. He was tarred and feathered and beaten with a rope by the "bandits."

In his own testimony Meints identified five prominent citizens of Luverne as comprising the bandit party among them a local minister.

Politicians Active. During the following months many indications showed that politicians of the Twin Cities were actively concerned in protecting the illegal, brutal acts of the Rock county ring. No serious effect was made by the state to punish the guilty, and federal action was mysteriously delayed. The indications were further substantiated when Pierce Butler, notoriously the legal man Friday of the special interests of the Twin Cities, appeared as chief counsel for the alleged mobbers.

Butler, a past master at legal trickery and soft speaking, was allowed to make frequent "patriotic" speeches the object of which was to make mob violence appear as excess patriotism.

Testimony at the court showed that the Meints family came from Schleswig-Holstein, the Danish province taken from Denmark by Germany in 1866, that this was in large part the cause of the family's removal to this country, and that Meints had personally favored our declaration of war.

He had been a generous buyer of Liberty bonds and contributor to the Red Cross. The mobbers, therefore, had no other motive than the political one of maintaining machine rule in Minnesota.

The jury was out only two hours. The only question the 12 men had to decide under Judge Booth's instructions was the identity of the four men who had tarred and feathered Meints. Ihlan, Connell, Leas and Bedford denied participation in the outrage. It was their word against that of Meints—a "preponderance of evidence."

They offered alibis to prove they were somewhere else when the outrage on Meints was committed.

In addition, the wealthy defendants found two men—Nels Hawkins and Albert Olson—who testified under oath that they had seen Meints on the train to Sioux Falls the morning of August 20 and that Meints showed no evidence of having been tarred and feathered. The testimony of Hawkins and Olson was counted on to disprove the testimony of the Sioux Falls barber, who told of Meints' condition when Meints came into the barber shop immediately after stepping off the train.

COAL TRUST HOLDS UP THE NATION

North Dakota Takes Only Way Out—Kansas and Ohio Follow.

NORMAL OUTPUT RESULTS.

Federal Injunction Does Not Dig Coal—Some Operators Try to Keep Mines Idle with Court Action Against Governor.

Bismark, N. D. Thanks to the prompt action of governor Frazier in providing state operation of mines, North Dakota has been able to produce coal. The danger of lignite shortage is over and local shortage of other soft coal may be supplied by the local product.

Wyoming is the only other state which can show normal production since the federal government issued its injunction. And its output is of little importance.

Kansas and Ohio have followed the lead of North Dakota in taking over mines and the governor of Iowa has taken some steps in the same direction.

Attempt of some North Dakota mine operators to keep their mines idle through use of the courts is not likely to succeed. In the mean time the federal government which finds that injunctions do not dig coal, is being forced rapidly towards nationalization of mines.

Already, the movement of freight has been held up, to an alarming extent. Many great industries are likely to have to close, throwing millions of employees out of work and further curtailing our general under-production. The life of the nation must soon become impossible unless the government takes over the mines and opens them for use or unless the operators speedily make offers satisfactory to the employees.

Few Miners Return.

Very few of the striking miners returned when their leaders called off the strike in response to the threat from the department of justice. The 400,000 on strike at first were joined by more from the non-union mines. This leaderless mass action of the plain workers is unassailable proof that they have just grievances which have been ignored by the government.

They have complained that while the government relieved the mine of all restraints in regard to price and output they have been kept at wages which now amount to starvation conditions and that the number of days' work per week has become smaller than before.

A War-Made Trust.

The general facts of the coal situation appear to show that powerful financial interests have been maneuvering for a shortage of coal to force up the price. Our supplies were short when the strike started and the workers had suffered from this hold-up during the summer and early fall. No attempt had been made to deny the shortage. It has been blamed on the railroads and other factors. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that the strike merely hastened the shortage which we would have had any way due to manipulations, for higher profits.

During the war the government brought all the soft coal mine owners and operators together in an all inclusive trust. It dealt with them as a unit. The advantages of this close-knit organization were obvious and the operators have been using it to promote the profits of peace.

The country is helpless before such a trust and must sooner or later follow the lead of Governor Frazier or consent to be bled to death.

The present action taken by North Dakota is regarded as temporary. The mines taken over will be returned to their owners when the immediate crisis appears to be at an end. But the present experience will undoubtedly hasten the state's long declared purpose of opening extensive mines on the public domain.

A Labor Party Victory.

Altona, Pa.—Labor has elected practically its entire ticket in the municipal elections just held in this city.

Feeling aroused over the misuse of public office to prevent peaceable meetings of workmen, throughout the state had much to do with the labor victory.

In a public statement mayor-elect Rhodes said:

"I accepted the endorsement of the labor men and subscribed to the platform as adopted by them. Insofar as it is possible I intend to support the principles therein set forth."

"Without funds, with a hastily-devised organization, and with no newspaper support, labor won a signal victory, and the fundamental liberties guaranteed by the Constitution will be recognized and respected in at least one Pennsylvania city."

The coroner's jury failed to fix responsibility for the recent tragedy there and brought in an open verdict because the evidence showed that participants in the Armistice day parade had rushed the boarding house and kicked open the door before the shots were fired from it.

HE WOULD BE THERE CLEARLY WITHOUT THE LAW

Inkeeper Evidently Had Implicit Faith in the Punctuality of His Coming Guest.

An old Englishman, James Scott by name, traveled about on business until he was nearly eighty years of age. He became celebrated for his punctuality and methodical habits. Upon one occasion a gentleman stopped at an inn much frequented by Mr. Scott and saw a fine fowl cooking.

"That looks very good," said the hungry guest. "You may serve that for my dinner."

"You cannot have that, sir," replied the landlord. "That is being cooked for Mr. Scott the traveler."

"I know Mr. Scott very well," said the gentleman. "Is he stopping here?"

"Oh, no, sir," answered the landlord. "But six months ago he ordered a fowl to be ready for him at precisely two o'clock today, and we are expecting him every minute."

Subtle Scheme. "I have often thought, Mrs. Welfare-worker, that it would be an admirable idea to get intoxicated, get arrested, and thus be able to write up what happens to these members of the world's unfortunates."

Wise Judge Quickly Pointed Out Why Musician Was Manifestly Guilty of Loafing.

A man was brought into court recently under the anti-loafing law. The judge looked at him for a moment and then asked:

"What is your occupation?"

"I am a musician, your honor," was the reply.

"In that case I'll have to find you guilty of loafing."

"But, your honor," protested the man, "I'm regularly employed by the church as an organist."

"That only confirms my opinion," said the judge. "The law requires every man to work, but your occupation requires you to play."

Fair Warning. "What party do you belong to?" asked Judge Soggersby of the new arrival in Chiglersville.

"I'm a Republican, sir," replied the stranger, "and proud of it."

"That's all right," said the judge. "I'm a peaceable man myself and don't believe in meddlin' with another person's political or religious beliefs, but this is a Democratic stronghold and there are a lot of other people about here who ain't so easy goin' in their habits and dispositions.
