

OUR PARIS LETTER.

THE DEATH OF BISHOP OF ORLEANS, ANOTHER STYLE OF FRENCH ENTERPRISE. THE PASSAGE OF THE ANTI-SOCIALIST BILL. TRIAL OF PARISIEN SOCIALISTS.

(From our regular correspondent.)

PARIS, November 30th, 1878.

The death of Bishop Dupanloup removes from the Roman Catholic Church in France the ablest and most conspicuous ecclesiastic its later days have known. He died at Laine (Loiret), where he was staying with a friend. He had been suffering from pericarditis, but expired somewhat suddenly. Though Monsignor Dupanloup was best known as a preacher, yet he was the author of several educational and theological works. His literary acquirements were acknowledged by his admission into the French Academy, but all his zeal in the cause of religion did not obtain for him the honor of a Cardinal's hat. His opinions were too large and liberal to chime in exactly with those of the Roman Curia under Pio Nono; and he never heartily supported "Ultramontanism," though he loyally accepted the decrees of the Vatican Council as binding on his conscience. Had his life been prolonged, however, it is quite possible that this honor might have been bestowed on him by Pope Leo. His last publication was a protest against the Voltaire centenary. Since the war of 1870 he had a seat in the Legislature, and was the soul of the opposition to the Republic. Monsignor Dupanloup even among the non-religious portion of the French nation in his diocese was much respected on account of his noble and generous nature.

France is just now plunged in a lottery fever. The grand raffle originally devised for the purpose of raising money to bring workmen and peasants gratis to the Paris Exhibition has swollen into a monster nuisance, and is being used as a vehicle for the most unblushing electoral corruption. Nothing can be more discreditable to the French Government than their conduct in this affair. At first only a million tickets were to be issued, at one franc a piece; and out of the $200,000 raised one-half was to be devoted to the charitable purpose above indicated, while the remainder was to be spent in the purchase of prizes consisting entirely of art objects. Even limited to these proportions the lottery was objectionable; for it would have been simpler if the Government had asked the Chambers for a grant in aid of its excursion projects unless, indeed, the yet more desirable plan had been followed of allowing these excursions to be managed by private charity. The first issue of a million tickets was, however, soon disposed of thanks to the brisk tooting of all officials connected with the finance department—tax collectors, tobacco-pistis, &c. Then a second million was put forth, and then a third. By this time, functionaries of all degrees, from prefects to postmen and gardeners, were in full cry pushing the sale of the lottery tickets; and demands poured in to such an extent that a fourth, fifth, and sixth million were speedily decreed and sold off. Now it has been decided to emit eight millions; but the Commissioners will probably not stop till they have sold their tenth million, even if they desist then. There is no reason why they should not go on issuing a million tickets a week for several weeks longer; for the gambling epidemic with which they have smitten the country is raging with an intensity which will not soon spend itself. At every new issue $100,000 is already set apart for the purchase of prizes, so that $600,000 has already been applied to this purpose. But this is not all; for thousands of tradespeople, anxious to advertise themselves, have made voluntary offerings of their wares, inasmuch that every holder of a ticket will have about one chance out of twenty of drawing something. Stimulated by this prospect and by the magnitude of some of the prizes offered, men and women of all degrees—and children too, for that matter—are staking all the francs they can spare on the chance of turning up a fortune. Little urchins in communal schools are clubbing their sous, not only with the approval but with the encouragement of their teachers, who dread to balk the juvenile enthusiasm lest they should be accused of being hostile to a grand Republican charity. Many village schoolmasters have themselves been made agents for the sale of tickets. Everywhere these vexatiously enticing slips of paper are thrust before people's eyes; and all over France there is a talk only of M. Krautz's "gros lots" of $20,000 and $25,000, which are to be paid in jewelry or cash, as the winners may prefer.

The news of the passage of the Anti-Socialist Bill in the German Parliament on Saturday by 221 votes against 149 has just reached me. Both sections of the Conservative party and the National Liberals recorded their votes without exception in favor of the bill, and they were joined by the Loewe group and some Liberals belonging to no special party. Prince Bismark then read a message from the Emperor authorizing him to close the Reichstag. The Prince expressed his satisfaction at the passing of the bill, and said that the Federal Governments were determined, with the means provided by his measure, to make a sincere effort to cure the prevalent disease. They could scarcely succeed in accomplishing this in the space of two years and a half, but the Government hoped for further concessions from the Reichstag after the discussions which have now taken place. After giving three cheers for the Emperor the House adjourned. The Anti-Socialistic Law—which, it is stated, was confirmed by the Federal Council by an almost unanimous vote the Government of the Principality of Reuss being the only dissentient—was signed by the crown Prince at Potsdam on Monday, published in the Official Gazette on Tuesday, and immediately put into force.

The trial of thirty-eight persons charged with holding an unauthorized meeting, viz., the attempted Socialistic Congress of the 3d of September—commenced on Tuesday. One of them is a medical student, another a pamphleteer, and there are women, the remainder being artisans. Twenty-two of them decline the aid of counsel, maintaining that no law contrary to the right of public meeting is entitled to respect. The ringleader was twitted by the Judge with having started a Socialistic paper in Paris with money from Berlin. This he at first strove to deny, but on being threatened with the production of letters showing the dispatch of money by German Socialist Committees, he rejoined, "After all, what matters it? Foreign capital is appealed to every day." Quite so "retorted the Judge," when it is a question of useful and above-board enterprises; but to undermine the institutions of their country people do not go and seek money in Germany." Another defendant, Massard, admitted relations with the American Socialist Committee, and the Judge reminded him that letters had been found on him from all parts of the world, including Persia. A Disastrous Undertaking.

From the Burlington Hawkeye.

It took three men, two boys and a brindle dog an hour and a half to drive a sandy pig a distance of two blocks, down to the ferry boat yesterday afternoon. When the weary drive was ended, the dog was bit in three places, the boy had sprained his ankle, broken two windows by throwing stones at the pig, one of the men was tired to death, and the other two were drunk, and the pig was two miles back from the river, going west, and sarcastically asking people if they could tell where the Burlington ferry crossed the Mississippi.

LIVER IS KING.

The Liver is the imperial organ of the whole human system, as it controls the life, health and happiness of man. When it is disturbed in its proper action, all kinds of ailments are its natural result. The digestion of food, the movement of the heart and blood, the action of the brain and nervous system, are all immediately connected with the workings of the Liver. It has been successfully proved that Greens August Flower is unequalled in curing all persons afflicted with Dyspepsia or Liver Complaint, and all the numerous symptoms that result from an unhealthy condition to the Liver and Stomach.
