STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Brown Jss. In Probate Court. In the matter of the guardianship of John Mayer, August Mayer, Hermann Mayer and Albert Mayer, minors. On reading and filing the petition of August Westphahl, guardian of John Mayer, August Mayer, Hermann Mayer and Albert Mayer, the above named minors; It is ordered, pursuant to the prayer of said petition, that a time be fixed for examining and allowing his account, that said account be examined, and petition heard by the Judge of this Court on the 28th day of June, 1890, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the Probate office in said County. And it is further ordered, that public notice be given to all persons interested of the time and place of examining said account, by publishing a copy of this order in the New Ulm Review a weekly newspaper printed and published at the City of New Ulm in said County, at least once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing. Dated June 2nd, 1890. ERNST BRANDT, Judge of Probate.

What of the St. Louis?

At the present time it concerns New Ulm quite a little to know what will become of the Minneapolis & St. Louis road, which is now in the hands of a receiver, and here is what Thursday's Minneapolis Journal gives as the latest railroad gossip: A party of distinguished railroad officials and capitalists left Minneapolis this morning for Des Moines, via the Minneapolis & St. Louis road, having arrived from Duluth late last evening. President R. R. Cable, of the Rock Island road, was prominent among the visitors, and the big form of Marshall Field, the Chicago dry goods merchant, was conspicuous in the group. The gentlemen are all directly interested in the Rock Island or St. Louis Roads. The German bondholders were represented by J. H. Carpenter, of Berlin, and English capital was represented by Robert Benson, of London. Henry Seibert, trustee for St. Louis creditors, was one of the number. The party is making a tour of the St. Louis line, simply as interested bondholders and creditors, but it is reasonable to suppose that their investigations have a wider range than that.

The relations of the St. Louis and the Rock Island roads have always been very close, and he fact that the time is not far distant when it is expected that the St. Louis road will be sold at foreclosure sale, gives support to the theory that the Rock Island stockholders are looking at the property with a view to investment. The sale may occur in the fall, or it may be delayed until next spring, and circumstances might even arise that would still further postpone it, but they are not regarded as anything more than possibilities. That the Rock Island is considering seriously the purchase of the St. Louis road was printed in The Journal last fall, but denied at that time. The presence of so many of the prominent stockholders of the road in Minneapolis warrants the suspicion that it is more than a mere pleasure tour that called them together.

Solicitor Clarke, of the St. Louis, was frank to say this morning that the Rock Island was the expected purchaser of the road. The St. Louis officials expected that if the foreclosure sale should occur by spring the Rock Island would be the purchaser. He did not believe the "Soo" or Canadian Pacific interests seriously had an eye on the St. Louis, for he could not see where the road would be of special benefit to them. They perhaps entertained a different opinion however.

It has been suggested that the St. Louis was contemplating a reorganization, but this is no more definite than it has been for over a year. The St. Louis people have felt since the road went into the hands of a receiver that if a reorganization could be effected it would be a desirable thing, but there is no present prospect that such a move will be made. The road is doing better than at the time of the appointment of the receiver, the net revenue for the last three months of 1889 being $85,000, out of which interest is to be paid to the amount of about $40,000.

Receiver Truesdale went south with the Rock Island officials this morning. He disclaimed any knowledge of special significance attaching to the visit of the Rock Island officials at this time or of the purpose of their visit to Duluth. There was a report in circulation that a Duluth connection was under discussion in case the St. Louis road should be bought by them, but there was no evidence to support this. A new line would not be built in such an event, but a close arrangement it is most likely would be made with the St. Paul & Duluth.

The New Ulm Review states that the 24th of July is a very appropriate time for the Republicans to hold their State Convention, as the farmers of the state have nothing to do at that season. For the benefit of Bro. Johnson we will state that this date was chosen to avoid if possible the influence of the farming element of the state. The people will be represented by bar-room loafers and cringing politicians that will be easily influenced by Merriam's barrel, if necessary, and the date selected was the most appropriate for this purpose.—ARLINGTON ENTERPRISE.

Such a state of affairs as the Enterprise predicts may come about, but if it does, the farmers and people will have no one to blame but themselves. They can sit down, if they only will, upon these "loafers and cringing politicians" in a most decided manner, and the early date selected for holding the convention is not going to prevent them from doing it. If the people don't speak out in meeting, it is their own fault.

Political Points.

The state convention will be held on the 24th of next month, the county convention next Tuesday. On the latter to some extent depends the former, as it rests with the county gathering to send a delegation to St. Paul that will have a voice, to the extent of the five votes, in the selection of a state ticket. This delegation should represent the true sentiments of the majority of republican voters of Brown County. There should be no attempt to pack the convention. Politicians should not be allowed to run things to suit themselves, and the caucus representations should all have their full say in the doings of the meeting. If this done, if everything is permitted to take its own course, free from the schemes of intriguing manipulators, the good effect for harmony and general satisfaction will be all that can be desired.

The Review has no particular reason to advise the men, who shall compose this convention, as to what they shall do, other than that which arises from a desire to have a safe and sound administration. That is what we are having now, and it is for this reason, combined with a dislike for continual changes, that has all along directed this paper in its support of the present incumbents of office. To be sure, it might be possible to select another ticket that would run as well, and would give us as good an administration, and, if the convention concludes to do this, the Review is not of the kind that will not abide by its decision. However, in retaining the old ticket, from top down, governor, secretary, auditor, and the rest, with a Norwegian for lieutenant governor, we are sure that no mistake will have been made, while at the same time it will be the easiest way of arranging a ticket that will stave off dissension.

And now what are the Alliance people going to do? That question is asked often and frequently. It is impossible to answer it definitely, but one thing is certain,—they are not asleep. The state central committee are still undecided as to whether they shall put up a state ticket, but up in the Fifth district, they have already made up their minds to nominate a man for Congress, and have passed resolutions advising a full and thorough state campaign. The same thing will probably be done in the Second and Third Districts, although no open action has as yet been commenced, and perhaps the other districts may follow the example. If they do, a warm campaign may be looked for everywhere. Whether the delegation in congress will be changed by such a move, or, if changed, whether it will be bettered, is another matter altogether. For our part we do not believe that it will. Minnesota has as good and useful a representation, and as influential a one as it is apt to get in several years to come, if changes are effected.

Among the Democrats, political matters are about as quiet as they very well could be. No one has positively been settled on yet as the standard bearer, but Durant will most likely be the choice. Ames has his aspirations, but they are not apt to carry him further than to the door of the convention room.

The Le Sueur Sentinel asks what grievous sin the democrats have committed that they should be afflicted with a request from Doc Ames for the democratic nomination for governor. Simple enough. They were fools enough to nominate him once and give him a chance to show his strength and now that he has proved himself able to make a strong run, we do not see that anybody but the Democrats themselves are to blame if he feels like asking for like favors again.

Mrs. J. T. Swain died in Le Sueur county last week, aged 101 years. She was a second cousin of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and was acquainted with Washington and other famous men of his time.

Wallace & Co's Circus.

Of the circus which is to appear in New Ulm on the 26th, the Syracuse, N. Y., Courier says: Wallace & Co's great railroad show exhibited in this city yesterday to one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences that ever greeted anything of that character in the previous history of the city. To say that this renowned company gave satisfaction, would not begin to express the sentiments of the thousands who had the pleasure of attending the performances. They have with them an army of actors, every one of whom is a star in his or her particular line of work. Besides this, scores of new features, common to this combination alone, are carried in addition to the regular programme of every other well equipped and prominent company. Everything advertised, and more too, contrary to popular belief, was carried out with a completeness of detail that left no room for the most chronic "kicker" to murmur against. The menagerie, the street parade and above all the magnificent balloon ascension alone, were well worth the price of admission. One thing which proved a most pleasing surprise to our people was the total absence of all kinds of so called "fake" games, which are a detestable feature of so many travelling circuses of this kind.

The Detroit Free Press also has this to say of the great show: The circus Saturday was practically all that was advertised, and gave general satisfaction. It was the largest show that ever came to Detroit, and it had good features; its tent was new, its horses very fine, the costumes clean, and everything first class. The ascent in the balloon alone was worth the cost. Before dropping, the aeronaut had gone up until he looked like a doll, and his descent, as well as that of the balloon, was watched with intense interest. An immense crowd attended, the afternoon performance being witnessed by over 4,000 spectators. We have only heard good words spoken of the show.

Last week the Minnesota editors visited Washington and had a gala time. They called on the president, but were so elated with the recent favors shown to Newson, that they forgot all the little scores, that they were going to work off, and went away pretty well pleased. As for the president, he received them well. He patted the little ones on the head, as he would have the baby McKee, and to each editor and his friends and relatives he gave a cordial shake. They also saw Blaine and Windom and the other big guns. Banned, feasted, shown the sights, and written up by the papers, they were in fact lords of the town during their stay. It was indeed a big time for them, and when they get back home, and commence to write up for their Minnesota readers long articles on the things they saw and the impression everything left with them, the boys will no doubt feel that they really are a wonderful force for good or evil, and will write with twice their former vigor. The administration will receive great puffs, and so full will the editors be with thankfulness, that there will not be another city like Washington in the land. Washburn, who chaperoned the party,—and in a right good way he did it,—will be remembered for his thoughtful treatment of the moulders of opinion, and many of the little things that were laid up against him in the hearts of certain editors, will be kept down and not allowed to find their way to print. On the whole the trip will be beneficial in its effects in more ways than one, and the boys can be glad that they took it in.

Senator Davis thinks that the pension bill as agreed to by both houses will add between $41,000,000 and $42,000,000 to the annual cost of pensions.

The State Farmers' Alliance have decided to put up a full state ticket and have fixed upon July 16th as the date for convention. Will some democratic paper please now to talk about how early conventions cheat the farmer out of an attendance.
