Miss Minnie Hoffman returned last week from her summer visit in Minneapolis to accept of her school in Milford.

Horace Newhart has gone to Northfield to resume his studies at Carleton College. Robert Scherer left on Monday for the State University.

Mr. and Mrs. Burkhart and son arrived here yesterday from Chicago for a month's visit. Mr. Burkhart is a brother of Mrs. Chas. Wagner.

Marriage licenses granted this week to Chas. Benson and Ella Jackson, Louis Whalen and Mary Cutting and Michael McCormick and Agnes Cutting.

F. H. Barge has sold his interests in the St. Peter Tribune to A. Loehl. The new firm will be Fichtorn & Loehl. This makes four times that the paper has changed hands in five years.

The Springfield Advance comes to us in new and improved dress. The Advance, under the management of Mr. Wright, is getting better every week and is certainly deserving of success.

The Brown County Fair will open in a week from Friday. The farm exhibits promise to be large and varied and the numerous displays by the merchants will be unusually attractive. Don't fail to attend.

Just before leaving St. Peter for his future home at West Superior, Wm. Schimmel was called upon by his old-time friends and presented with a beautiful gold headed cane. M. Mullen of this place is mentioned among those who contributed to the token.

These took the train for the east on Monday, some to attend the Minneapolis exposition: Mrs. Spoerhase, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Behnke, Misses Clara Doehne and Emma Hummel, C. H. Ross, Frank Spoerhase, Max Burg, Robert Brandt and Otto Notehart.

The Sleepy Eye Herald has come out in favor of the Alliance. Mr. Hodges, its editor, appeared before the recent Alliance meeting, and said that while heretofore he had been a strong partisan, he had come to the conclusion to lend his support to neither of the old parties but endorse the Alliance instead.

On Saturday night we were again accommodated with electric light. Although it rained and the atmosphere was very damp, still the light seemed brighter than ever. The street lights were never so brilliant, and, if the system continues in its present condition throughout the test, there will be no apparent reason for not accepting the plant.

A dispatch from Washington in Monday's papers quotes Congressman Lind as follows: I am glad to be here at this time to continue the good fight made by Senator Davis for free binding twine. That amendment to the McKinley bill must be agreed to by the house, and the Minnesota delegation will fight for it persistently and successfully.

The members of the Republican senatorial committee for this district met at Sleepy Eye last week and decided to hold the senatorial convention at Redwood Falls on the 25th of this month. The basis of representation is one delegate for every 150 votes or major fraction thereof cast for Harrison for president in 1888. This gives Brown County nine delegates and Redwood County seven.

The twenty-fourth annual convention of the Minnesota Turners, held on Saturday, was very largely attended and business matters were satisfactorily transacted. The headquarters were changed from New Ulm to St. Paul, and Duluth was selected as the place for the next meeting. A picnic was held yesterday afternoon. It is likely that St. Paul will secure the next meeting of the Turner societies of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa.—St. Paul Dispatch of Monday.

The Farmers' Alliance of Blue Earth County held a convention last week and put up a county ticket. The Free Press says that the names of only three farmers are found on the ticket and that the convention was run exclusively by the Democrats. A. R. Pfau, a Mankato lawyer, received the nomination for the senate, Comstock, another lawyer, was named for judge of probate, Hughes, also a lawyer, was slated for attorney, Randall, a dry goods and hardware dealer, was nominated for auditor, and so on with all the others. The Democrats in their convention endorsed nearly the whole ticket and showed clearly that it was a democratic scheme pure and simple. Wonder how long it will take now before the Republican members will tumble.

The Democratic Caucus.

The Democrats of New Ulm, about thirty of them, held a caucus at Turner Hall on Thursday evening for the purpose of electing delegates to the county convention at Sleepy Eye. E. G. Pahl acted as chairman of the meeting and Gustav Fischer as secretary. The real business for which the caucus was called was disposed of at once, and the following gentlemen were chosen as delegates: M. Mullen, E. G. Pahl, Fred Pfaender, Albert Behnke, A. J. Eckstein, Francis Baasen, Albert Bogen, Theo. Mueller, R. Pfeiffer, L. Schmelz, W. T. Eckstein, Jos. Flor, Geo. Schmidt and Julius Krause.

As soon as these had been elected, C. W. H. Heidemann rose to his feet and said that he had a resolution to offer. With that he drew a scrap of manuscript from his pocket and read a resolution, which was to the effect that the delegates who were elected at that meeting should be instructed to use all honorable means to have the name of E. G. Pahl presented as a candidate for lieutenant governor on the state ticket.

After reading it he went on in a pointed speech to say that, while he knew that the Democratic press and prominent Democratic leaders had brought out Pahl for the position of state treasurer as well as for congress, he knew also that the Republicans had honored two of New Ulm's citizens with nominations for those places and he could not see that anything could come of putting up a New Ulm man against them on the Democratic ticket but a bitter local fight, that would be void of desirable results. He had an idea too that the bringing out of Pahl for these offices originated with prominent St. Paul people who were political and personal enemies of the Republican candidates. If such was the case he denied the right of the party to drag himself or the democrats of New Ulm into sides in a fight that was started out of personal envy and spite. Neither did he think that Mr. Pahl would lead himself to such a scheme or that he had the desire or the time to accept of either office. He then showed wherein Mr. Pahl would be a suitable and strong candidate for lieutenant governor. The idea met with favor and when a vote was taken on the resolution it was passed without a dissenting vote. Mr. Pahl then arose, and, addressing those present as fellow Democrats, thanked them for their vote of confidence and told them that while he could have the nomination for the state treasurership for the asking, he would not accept of it under any consideration. He realized that such a step would not only place his own and the friends of Col. Bobleter in New Ulm in a peculiar position, but that it would also divide the German vote. Should he be given the nomination, however, for the second place on the ticket, he was confident that the German vote would be united for him as against Ives, the temperance man from St. Peter, and that the party would be in a better position to poll a full vote.

A brother of Miss Mary McCaughin spent a couple days of last week in our city.
Mrs. Henry Hoffmann and Mrs. Leonard Haeberle will visit in Minneapolis this week.
Miss Burrill, the new typewriter in the Eagle Mill office, arrived here from Minneapolis on Thursday.
Mrs. Henry Taylor and son, of Minneapolis, visited during the week with the family of G. A. Zimmerman.

The Proposed Railroad.

We are in receipt of the prospectus of the St. Paul, New Ulm and Southwestern Railway which has just been issued. It is a small pamphlet containing general information in regard to the survey of the road, of the traffic that it will naturally enjoy, and of the nature and lay of the country to be traversed. The latter is embodied in a report from the chief engineer, who made the survey, and contains a concise write-up of the extensive resources of the various towns through which the road will pass. Of New Ulm it says: "New Ulm is a beautiful city of some 4000 inhabitants, but with the hum, bustle and business of a city three times the size, owing to the large milling interests, the enterprise of its citizens and the unparalleled agricultural area of which it is the hub. Here are beds of clay, as fine as mother earth can produce, for the manufacture of bricks second to none, for tiling of first quality and finest pottery ware. These industries are all being started up in a small way, and it only requires capital and another line of railway to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and this city is assured of a population of fifty or seventy-five thousand with paying employment for every inhabitant. The opening of this route would bring New Ulm at least 25 miles nearer to the Twin Cities than by the present route via Kasota, and in consequence of the facility in reaching them, trade and travel will receive a new and healthy impetus and give encouragement to new enterprises of all kinds for which great inducements are held out." Of the traffic of the road in general the prospectus has the following: "The line forms a connecting link between the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, the 'Soo' Line, Duluth Roads and North Wisconsin Systems, centering at St. Paul, and the Union Pacific and Burlington systems with their Southwestern connections at Council Bluffs and Omaha. It will transport lumber from Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin to the prairie regions of Southwestern Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska, and bring back coal, wheat, flax, corn, and other farm products of those sections for the Minneapolis mills or for export to Duluth. With such cities as St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chaska, Carver, Mankato, St. Peter, New Ulm, Windom, Sioux City, Council Bluffs and Omaha on the line and with about fifty other local stations, all in a thickly settled country, the traffic cannot help but be immense, and the road will certainly pay from the first day of its operation." It then goes on to state that the line from Hopkins to New Ulm is expected to be finished by December 31st, 1891, and to Omaha by the end of 1892. A branch from a point in Sibley county is also to be built so as to connect with Mankato and St. Peter.

It is no longer "up with the times" for a young man to take his best girl out riding with a team of horses, especially if they are not going anywhere. A yoke of oxen is substituted for the horses but the style of the carriage does not change. The oxen are driven without reins and consequently the young man has two hands with which to "amuse" his lady. The craze has already struck Pipestone, judging from the turnout which went down Olive street Tuesday evening, and will no doubt fast become popular. We predict the day is not far distant when all our livery stables will be compelled to keep at least one yoke of oxen.—Pipestone Star.
