Anton Schwerzler was also arrested for keeping a disorderly house and was fined $5 and costs or $7.50 in all. From the manner, in which the fellows acted after sentence had been passed, it was evident that the fines were not half heavy enough.

Committed Suicide.

Mrs. Dastel, wife of a brick and stone mason living in the north end of town, committed suicide last Friday by taking poison. Shortly before twelve o'clock, she took a table-spoonful of "rough on rats." Thinking that she had not taken enough to end her life, a few minutes later she took another dose equally large. In the two there must have been nearly three hundred grains of arsenic. When it is considered that only two grains of this killing stuff constitute a fatal dose, the strength of what she had taken can be imagined. When her husband came home for dinner, she told him what she had done. Dr. Strickler was at once summoned and in company with Dr. Lacey, he arrived at the place at half past twelve o'clock. An attempt was made to give the woman antidotes, but she positively refused to swallow anything that would be apt to prolong life. After two futile attempts, however, to force her to take what the physicians placed in her mouth, they finally succeeded in compelling her to swallow a dose of something that caused vomiting. But it was all to no purpose. The poison was present in too large quantities, and within an hour she showed signs of collapse. At five o'clock she died. To the doctors she was free enough to explain the cause of her rash and awful act, and from that account it appears that for a long time there had been trouble between her and her husband and every little difference of opinion started a quarrel. That very morning there had been something of this nature, and when she told her husband at noon of what she had done she gave as her reason that she did not wish to trouble him longer. She was a woman of about thirty-five years of age and leaves four small children.

Should Not be Tolerated.

There are a certain lot of young fellows in this town who seem to take particular glory in indulging in rows. The Review has thus far said nothing of this gang and its periodical scraps, thinking that the officers of the law would save us the trouble of giving to the outside public the particulars of disgraceful fights, but it seems that, until public protest is made against this rowdism, the usual order and quiet of the city will not be maintained. For twice now within as many weeks fights have occurred in which a dozen or more have taken part, and in the last one, which occurred late Sunday night, one man came very near being killed. It is not necessary for us to give names here. We do not know them all, and the men are not of the kind anyhow to care whether their names appear in print or not. One thing however we do desire to state, and that is, that if the police, who know of these scraps, do not interfere and have every man arrested who engages in them, they will hear of their neglect in language not the most pleasing. Heavy fines or several weeks in the cooler will soon make these fellows let up on their rowdism. New Ulm, usually so quiet and orderly, cannot afford to allow a gang like this to go unpunished. Let the police therefore do their duty, and we will not hear of further disturbance.

THE BROWN COUNTY FAIR.

Some Good Exhibits and a Large Attendance on both Days.

People Attend from all over the County and from Neighboring Towns.

The fair this year was a financial success, if nothing more. Fine weather throughout added largely to the gate receipts and the management will be able to prepare for next year's show with a surplus of considerable proportions. Of the fair itself and the exhibits, it is only in frankness that we say that it was not what it should have been. After looking it all over, viewing the various displays and noting the entire absence of much that has appeared in former exhibits, one would be justified in thinking that New Ulm and Brown County ought to make a better showing. There was lots of room that was not taken, and next year we look for an improvement. In the large hall as usual were stored the exhibits of vegetables, grains and fruits. The specimens of grain were not very numerous, but the fruit display was exceptionally fine, Ernst Meyer, of Golden Gate, having fourteen distinct varieties of apples. An exhibit of various kinds of pumpkins and squash, arranged so as to have the appearance of Bill Merriam or some other renowned excellence, was also very good, and attracted considerable attention. It was prepared by Otto Schell.

The other hall was reserved for the merchants. The displays were not as extensive as last year, but those who did exhibit showed taste and pains in the arrangement of their goods, and are deserving of credit for their efforts to help along the Fair. Among the principle ones were Fred Behnke's display of bottled beer, Brust & Graff's exhibit of dry-goods, A. J. Eckstein's show of plush cases, albums and the like as well as of pianos and organs, Miss Haxel's case of hair work, Roos' display of drugs, and exhibits of clothing from J. F. Neumann, organs from O. M. Olson, stoves and machines from C. H. Hornburg, and boots and shoes from E. Wicherski, all of which were very well gotten up and received many fine compliments. In the mechanical line, the ship and furniture by Henry Koehler, the willow chair and baskets by G. Eisenbeck, and the plumbers' work by Richter & Son showed unusual skill and were worthy of commendatory mention. The large amount of fancy work was also deserving of special note together with the exhibit from the schools, which like that of last year, to many appeared to be the most interesting in the hall. It embraced the work of scholars from four to ten years of age and certainly gave credit to both them and their teachers.

In the art gallery there was much that caught the eye of the visitors. Scattered about the room and over the walls were displays of photographs from Anton Gag and J. F. Crowell and paintings and sketches by various parties. Among them were the productions of Anton Gag, including his paintings of scenes around Redwood Falls, sketches and paintings of Alexander Schwendinger, portrait paintings by Seiter & Fischer and others by Miss Doehne, Mrs. Mowery, Mrs. Schrader of Essig, C. Uellar and Bertha Heers, aged only ten years. All were exhibitions of skill with the brush and were viewed with interest by everybody who entered the room.

The stock show was not up to even the average. What there was of it was first class, but it was altogether too small, and we again repeat, what has often been said before, that it is a shame that our farmers don't take enough interest in their cattle and horses to show and advertise them at the county fair.

J. Klossner went to Dakota on Monday on business.

Jos. Koehler, of St. Paul, is spending a few days with his parents.

Wm. Burghard of Golden Gate was a caller at the Review office on Saturday.

The passenger from the east was delayed several hours Saturday night. The cause was a collision between two freight trains near Madison, Wis. The two engines crashed into each other and one of the trains caught fire, eleven cars of merchandise being burned before the flames could be extinguished.

Andrew J. Eckstein had on exhibition at his store during the week and also at the Fair, an Ivers & Pond piano, which was the finest ever brought to New Ulm. It is of French Walnut finish and received the admiration of all who saw it. In tone too it came pretty near being excellence itself.

The Pioneer Press publishes what it terms the "pauper census" of Minnesota, including the number of persons dependent upon the public for support. The total of such persons in the state is 5,040 of whom 3,919 receive relief without board, 598 are in poor houses and 528 receive medical aid only.

The fact that a contract has been closed at Greeley for 110,000 bushels of potatoes to be shipped to Chicago is very significant. It seems almost like romance to believe that Colorado farmers are raising food for eastern people to eat. Yet such is the case this year. Potato raising therefore in Minnesota should be a paying crop.
