Near Mankato, recently, the trains on the Milwaukee road were stopped by caterpillars, millions of which crawled upon the track, and when the trains would run upon and grind them up the track became so slippery that the wheels of the cars simply flew around, and no progress could be made. It is understood that Turner Hall is to be furnished with waterworks connections. At a meeting of the Turnverein on Saturday evening, Capt. Burg, C. L. Aigen in the leading role, one of her best efforts. A fine performance, strongly supported by that whole-souled manager, Mr. Fred Huebner, in the double character of Levison and Carlyle. The entire company did well, as in the previous performances. Come again; you will not be forgotten.
