The charming weather of Sunday afternoon smiled upon a group of thirty or forty young people, who were enjoying an outing at Hummel's Lake. Genuine pleasure attended the picnic, and the out-door sport and feasting was relished by those present, as only a jolly and sociable party of young folks can.

In the very centre of this growing and prosperous city, across one of its leading thoroughfares and in constant view of all strangers, there is a street gutter that is always filled with mud, thus making it unseemly to look upon and a standing advertisement of shiftlessness. Wonder if this ever occurred to the authorities.

The spectacle that some men make of themselves at public picnics is shameful. Instances have come to our notice within the past few days of which we do not know the particulars and do not care to know, but if the actors in such affairs could but behold themselves, they would have to possess little indeed of self respect, if they would not feel heartily ashamed.

On Jacob Brust's farm this week, the writer saw the first self-feeding threshing machine ever used in this neck of the woods. The machine is so constructed as to do away with the necessity of feeders and band-cutters and also lessens the strain on the engine. As a life and limb saver also, it is an invaluable invention. The machine is owned by F. Engelbert, Julius Jeske, Wm. Gulden and H. Ruelke, and was introduced by Hubbard & Larson.

Last Tuesday an accident occurred in the town of Lafayette that came nearly costing a young man his life. Simon Pehrson, a young man of 21 years of age, had a runaway with a team hitched to a mower. This week all is phrenology in New Ulm. Some people are being permitted to find out that they don't know anything, others that they know just a little, and some that they know more than anybody ever gave them credit for. Great is phrenology.

Henry Goede opened his summer gardens across the river for picnic purposes on Sunday. A large crowd was in attendance, and Mr. Goede has concluded to continue to give picnics every Sunday. The grounds are certainly well-fitted for such purposes.

The presence of two female prisoners in the county jail calls attention to the necessity of hurrying the new court house to completion so as to permit of the present court room being divided off into cells for women prisoners. This is a matter that should not be lost sight of.

The papers all over the second district take kindly to Mr. Ives of St. Peter as a candidate for congress, and Mr. Ives, with true reciprocity, seems to take kindly to the expressions of the newspapers. While many papers have spoken of Ives as good gubernatorial timber, the Review, we believe, was the first to mention him for congress, and it would look now as if the hint had gone a great ways.

The hearing of Mrs. Miller, the woman who shot her husband at Nicollet a few days ago, was to have come off yesterday at St. Peter. Senator C. R. Davis is the defendant's attorney, while A. A. Stone will represent the state. The woman willingly admits the crime and in her testimony before the coroner says she fired three times at her husband and once at his paramour. The defendant has been examined once or twice already on the grounds of apparent insanity, but has always been vindicated of the charges.

Yesterday afternoon there occurred the marriage of Miss Bertha Berndt and Chas. Davin. The ceremony was performed by Judge Brandt at the home of the bride's parents, and the affair was entirely devoid of ostentation. But while of the most quiet nature, it was nevertheless a pleasant event. The bride is the estimable daughter of Julius Berndt, and the groom is a respectable young man, now engaged in the insurance business under Col. Pfander. They will make their residence in this city, and the Review with a host of friends will unite in wishing them prosperity and pleasure in our midst.

There was a cutting affair in the audience of the Kickapoo show Saturday night in which a trampish sort of a fellow, with only one leg, slashed a knife upon Billy Boodle's arm, cutting through his coat, and slightly cutting the arm. Being a cripple, Boodle was restrained from giving him the thrashing he deserved. He was kept in the cooler over Sunday, tried for assault on Monday, sentenced to thirty days at the New Ulm jail, and sentence stayed on condition that he would get in some other county to do his dangerous work. Look out for a one legged band cutter in a threshing crew.—Marshall News Messenger.

The Rolf bastardy case which was tried at the last term of court, and which resulted in the conviction of Rolf, and for which defendant has been in our county jail for the past three months, seems to be about coming to a conclusion. E. St. Julien Cox, his attorney, on Saturday last, made an application to Judge Webber for an order requiring County Attorney Stone, the Commissioners of Nicollet Co. and the female, Annie Krohn, to appear before the Judge at his chambers in New Ulm, on the 10th day of September 1891, to show cause why defendant should not be discharged from further confinement. Should Rolf be discharged, Nicollet Co., in his case will be saved a further board bill, only to be called on by the other side to support the child at so much a month for the next 14 years. The law in such cases in Minnesota is entirely too tame.—St. Peter Tribune.
