A RESIDENT of Macoupin county, Ill., claims the proud distinction of owning the largest steer in the world, so far as known. He weighs 4,500 pounds.

A SMALL gold chain was recently found imbedded in a lump of coal by an Illinois woman. It was about ten inches long, of antique and quaint workmanship.

A NEW Monte Carlo is soon to be established in the little republic of Andorra, on the south slope of the Pyrenees. Its location will be one of the most beautiful in the mountains, where the highest peaks are covered with snow the year round.

THE Atlantic Ocean has evidently been asserting itself, testing the qualities of the great steamships in a decidedly painstaking and efficient manner. So far they have all stood every requirement and ridden triumphantly over the most mountainous of waves.

THE meanest man has turned up in Santa Anna, California. He inveigled a man out into the hills quail hunting and then informed on him for the sake of the reward. Several indignant citizens, however, seized the informant, rode him on the rail to the town limits and warned him away.

A GERMAN professor brought from Japan sixteen years ago some sprigs of the lacquer tree, from which the natives produce the famous lacquer work. The trees have now grown to the height of thirty feet. It is proposed to plant them in different parts of the German Empire, and to import a Japanese to teach this artistic industry.

A LONDON dispatch announces the complete success of the musical treatment of insomnia by a party of harpists harping on their harps in a hospital. People who have tried to sleep with an organ grinder under their window will now for the first time appreciate how very wrong they were in not going right off to the land of Nod. They didn't know how to take their medicine, that's all.

THE waiters in the Paris restaurants recently held a meeting to protest against the conduct of their employers, who have not kept their promise to allow them to wear a moustache. They assert that "their dignity as men and citizens" suffers keenly at having to shave. They shouted "Vive la moustache!" and passed resolutions embodying that sentiment.

THE residents of Los Gatos, Cal., were much interested recently in a peculiar vehicle. It had wheels at one end and a sled at the other, not for alternate snow and bare ground, but as a wagon up hill and sled down, the road being shifted as one or the other was met. Ten years since, says a correspondent from that place, hardly any other conveyance was seen; hundreds of elegant equipages are now seen every day.

You can find Bessemer, Ala., only in the newest maps. In 1887 the spot which the town of 40,000 inhabitants now marks was overrun by a primitive forest. The accidental discovery of all the materials—coal, ore and lime—necessary to the establishment of a great iron producing and manufacturing centre led to this sudden inrush of population. To-day the town counts over 900 coke ovens and numerous mighty rolling mills, which are in full swing day and night.

A GIRL of eighteen years, the daughter of a sea captain, recently navigated her father's ship when he and all the crew were down with yellow fever. The bark, a sailing vessel, bound from South America to Savannah, was last spoken at sea off Navassa, when all hands were reported ill with yellow fever, and no attempt was made by the vessel which reported her to give any assistance. The master of the bark had with him on board his only daughter, who appears to have been the last to catch the fever. With the aid of one or two sailors, who managed to crawl on deck, she navigated the vessel for several hundred miles, and succeeded in reaching port with the crew dead and dying and the captain in a critical condition.

As no powder was kept in the office the explosion is supposed to have been the work of discharged employes. J. W. Waggener, president of the company, has offered a reward for the apprehension of the culprits.

The committee of the French chamber of deputies having the matter in charge has agreed to vote in favor of suspending the dramatic censorship for three years. This action is in the nature of an experiment.

The French senate committee met again when the subject of the admission of American pork was debated at considerable length, finally recommending in favor of a proposition to impose a duty of 25 francs per 100 kilos on salted meats of all kinds including pork, ham and bacon, instead of 20 francs which the chamber of deputies had already passed.

Several eminent French lawyers have been consulted upon the matter of the release of the fund of the Irish parliamentary party, now on deposit here. They agree that the problem is a knotty one, and believe that the first step must be an application to the court of chancery by the heirs of Mr. Parnell and those of Mr. Biggar, for Mr. Biggar was a trustee of the fund at the same time Mr. Parnell was. The French judges will not act, probably, contrary to the decision of the English court, unless in declaring themselves incompetent to adopt it. This would cause prolonged trouble. If the money goes into the Caisse des Consignations it is lost to all but the French treasury. Legal proceedings will serve to keep it from everybody for many years and then it will fall to the state. Meantime Messrs. Monroe & Co., the Paris bankers, have funded the whole in securities bearing 5 1/2 per cent interest, worth $2,500,000. This amount added to the fund, will reach a large total before the vexed legal question can be settled.

THE RAILROADS.

GOHEEN IS HANGED.

Adelbert Goheen, Her Slayer, Is Hanged at Fergus Falls Soon After Midnight.

He Marched to the Gallows as Erect as a Soldier Without a Flinch or Tremor.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., Special Telegram, Oct. 23. 1 a. m.—Adelbert Goheen was hanged at 12:15 for the murder of Rosa Bray.

At 11:30 Goheen was taken to the second floor of the jail. He walked nimbly up the stairs and cast a furtive glance at the trap as he passed by it into a side room.

At 12 o'clock the priest knelt down and prayed with him for about two minutes. Then the sheriff slipped in and handcuffed his hands behind his back. The priest led the way to the trap. Goheen followed with Sheriff Billings in the rear. He marched out as erect as a soldier. There was not a flinch or a tremor as he passed into the hall, he looked up at the rope and took his position on the trap. He was then strapped as usual.

Sheriff Billings then said, "Adelbert, have you anything to say?" He said, "General, you see one way of dying." As the black cap was being put on him and the priest said the Lord's prayer, "Let her go, Jack," said Goheen, and the sheriff pulled the trap. Then there was a heavy fall and a slight rebound and the rope straightened. It seems that a noose slipped around a little and his neck was broken. He died of strangulation. The body was allowed to hang about twenty-five minutes. Goheen died as he said he would. No more nery man ever stood on a death trap.

The greater part of the evening was spent in playing on the accordion and listening to the priest's reading. At 11 o'clock he was given an oyster stew which he ate with a relish. At 11 o'clock every reporter was excluded from the jail and only the officials and spectators allowed by law were present.

WHY HE DIED.

History of the Crime and the Trial Which Resulted in Conviction.

Monday morning, March 23, the body of Rosa Bray was found on the Great Northern railroad crossing near Broadway, in Fergus Falls. She had evidently been dead some time and the body was frozen stiff. It was at first supposed she had frozen to death, but at the inquest two bullet wounds were discovered, one back of the ear and the other in her breast. Either would have caused instant death. It was learned that Adelbert Goheen, who had been intimate with the woman, had disappeared on Sunday, the 22d. Search for him began, but it was not successful. The following Sunday morning he reappeared home voluntarily and was arrested.

At the trial parties testified that Miss Bray was to meet Goheen that night; that he was going toward her rooms. Two people were seen talking on the Great Northern track who resembled Goheen and Miss Bray. Two shots were heard. Afterward a man was seen running who resembled Goheen. Deputy Sheriff Johnson described Goheen's actions when arrested. On his person were found a number of 38-caliber cartridges, which he was trying to hide. Being the same size as those found in the woman's body, Bowma-ter, a fellow convict of Goheen's at Stillwater, visited Goheen in jail, and he had asked Goheen if he killed the girl and that Goheen did not make any answer, but winked at him. Goheen's brother and his mother testified that he was not out of the house that evening that he slept with Anderson that night and both retired at 8 p. m. Goheen's father refused to testify to this. It took the jury just twenty hours to agree and it brought in a verdict of guilty. Today he made a statement to County Attorney Daly, in the presence of Sheriff Billings and Mr. Mason, in which he asserted that his brother Anderson was the murderer of Rosa Bray. He gave details of the occurrence, claiming that he saw it all from a distance. He accounted for his presence by saying that he was light nightingale and had a victim, and had loved them. He gave such a clear statement of the matter that the officers thought it advisable to let him go. He was arrested at Moorhead and brought here for trial. A preliminary examination Goheen refused to go to the stand to testify against Anderson and the case was discharged. Goheen had made several threats that he would never be hung.

KILLED A HALF-BREED.

Tragedy on an Indian Reservation Caused by an Old Feud.

SPOKANE, Wash., Special Telegram, Oct. 23.—News reached here tonight of a tragedy at Little Katharine's ranch on Colville Indian reservation, near the mouth of Boundary creek. Tuesday, when Duncan Travel, a half-breed, was shot and instantly killed by James Brown, one of the best known miners and prospectors in that section. After the shooting Brown started to Marcus to give himself up, but was met by an Indian policeman, to whom he surrendered, and was taken to Marcus yesterday.

The killing was the outgrowth of a feud of several years' standing, and Little Katharine, who is a half-breed Indian woman possessed of considerable property, is said to be at the bottom of it.

Brown says Travel had threatened to shoot him, and when they met accidentally at Little Katharine's ranch he felt that his life was in danger and shot Travel dead with his Winchester.

Made a Good Deal.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Special Telegram, Oct. 23.—The postoffice here was entered by burglars early this morning and a big haul made. Entrance was effected through a window in the rear, which was pried open. A hole was then drilled through the safe and it was blown open and hastily robbed of its contents. Three thousand five hundred dollars in stamps were taken, besides $100 in currency and a large package of registered letters. The amount of the money contained in the registered letter is not accurately known, but it is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $2,000—over $1,200 is positively known to have been taken.

The noise of the explosion attracted the attention of one policeman and he gave chase and fired several shots after them, which were returned by the burglars with such vigor that he was obliged to give up the chase.

The stamps were recovered to-day. They were found hidden in some boxes back of the postoffice. The police authorities have been scouring the country in every direction and this evening arrested three men who it is believed were connected with the robbery.

Little Love Ends in Death.

TELLURIDE, Colo., Oct. 23.—A murder and suicide occurred here last night. The principals were Mrs. A. E. Watson and J. A. Mercer, express messenger on the Denver & Rio Grande Southern railroad. Mercer, although married, has been living with Mrs. Watson here. Last night they quarreled and three shots were heard by the neighbors. On entering the room, Mrs. Watson was found dead, with a bullet hole in her head, and Mercer with one through his shoulder and another in his head. Mercer, who was returning to his home, had shot himself, when she turned the weapon upon herself and killed herself. He then took the revolver and inflicted another wound upon himself.

ALL EXPLAINED NOW.

Why Eugene Van Schaick Has Eschewed Society of Late.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The papers yesterday printed a wedding notice which announced that in 1886 Eugene Van Schaick had become the husband of Miss Sarah Howard Payne.

Eugene Van Schaick comes of an old and rich Knickerbocker family. Mrs. Van Schaick does not. Then and the lady's youth made it seem best five years ago to keep the secret of such an eventful thing as a marriage. It was a romance, that courting of the Jersey girl by this Knickerbocker scion. Miss Payne was the daughter of James Walter Payne of Newark, near which place he owned quite an estate. Miss Payne has a pretty face and a little form, and spent a good deal of the time in New York with relatives while she attended school. They met Van Schaick was twenty-six years old.

There was trouble in his family. The match was not exactly liked over in Jersey. The young lady's father wished her to finish her education. The young man's father wanted him to finish his. So the young people ostensibly decried to the objections. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Buddon, friends of the bride, were let into the secret. The little company went over to Williamsburg and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stodach to perform the ceremony. The good man made no searching inquiries regarding identity. He tied the knot and presumably got his fee and then, just as in hundreds of similar cases, after registering the ceremony, forgot all about it.

Mr. Van Schaick and his bride parted company that evening, she going to her Jersey home and the latter returning to school. Time rolled on and Mr. Payne died. Mr. Van Schaick took his father, Henry Van Schaick, into his confidence. Troubles were smoothed over all around, and Mr. and Mrs. Van Schaick began married life by taking apartments at the Gerlach some time ago. Little bits of gossip came to float around. Mr. Van Schaick's intimates were let into the open secret. But it was apparent that a regular public announcement would straighten matters out. It was made yesterday. The "God bless you, my children" of fiction became a reality. Feminine opposition in the Van Schaick household was relaxed and now all the family unite in saying that it just pleases them beyond expression.

Though rich and handsome, Mr. Van Schaick has had an aversion to society for the last few years. It can now be explained to mothers of marriageable daughters. He has been a leading official of the Manhattan Athletic club in various capacities. He was the first president of the Knickerbocker Fencing club. Last year he went to Europe as captain and manager of the Cherry Diamond Athletic team. He is a member of the Union club.

CHRONIC DROWSINESS.

A Young Woman Who Gets More Sleep Than Nature Requires.

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 26.—One of the most remarkable cases that has ever engaged the attention of physicians in this vicinity is that of Miss May White, twenty-three years of age, who for the last thirty-five days has been in a continuous state of slumber. She is now lying at the house of Dr. Brown of Stockbridge, several miles south of here, who has had charge of her since its inception, and had the patient removed to his own house so that he might give her closer attention.

Miss White, until stricken, was a bright young woman, and had taught school in a neighborhood of her home. While attending business school in Jackson in July of last year she was attacked by neuritis. An access tormented her side, and after intense suffering she was relieved of it some time after she was attacked by convulsions, having as many as fifty in an hour. These continued until June last, when the young woman suddenly dropped into a slumber so deep that for days no one was able to rouse her. Her weight has steadily decreased until at present she weighs but fifty pounds, having lost over seventy pounds since the beginning of her slumber.

Dr. Brown is the only person who is able to rouse the sleeping girl, and the operation requires from twenty minutes to one hour. She is fed three times a day with light nourishment. She remains awake for half an hour during the day, and converses intelligently and takes an interest in reading newspapers. At the end of the half-hour she relapses into an unconscious state, in which she remains until her physician awakens her. Dr. Brown thinks that such a patient gradually gaining more vitality, and he believes she soon will come out of the lethargic state.

MATRIMONY OR M.S.E.R.Y?

To Which Does This Point the Way?—To Both?

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—For some time a number of young ladies in the towns in this vicinity have been receiving circulars from Chicago which read as follows:

"Chicago, Oct. 9, 1891. Dear Miss—A gentleman in your neighborhood is very anxious to keep your company. He has known your name since the beginning of the world. He would like to pay his attentions to you, but he does not know whether you care for him or not. On the enclosed list write the names of gentlemen, not less than ten, whose attentions you would be agreeable to receive. If your list contains the name of the gentleman we refer to it will be evident that there is a mutual liking, and we will inform you at once. Otherwise your name will not be mentioned. Perhaps this discovery will lead to a happy marriage between yourself and the gentleman. It does not forget to send me a piece of wedding cake. I charge you nothing for the service, as the gentleman has paid your fee. All you have to do is to send in your names and see if you can guess the right one. Yours in confidence, Miss—"

Accompanying the letter is a blank on which to write the names and instructions to the red circular, which depicts the troubles of a forlorn young woman who is turning into a sour old maid because the man to whom she has given her heart unobscured is not acquainted with her, and she has not the means of making his acquaintance. The agent in Chicago sends an introduction card which is to be exchanged on the street. The circulars have in a number of cases been given to the police.

Expecting Too Much of Alaska.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The czar's continued absence from St. Petersburg is much resented in the famine districts of Russia.
