

CLAY, WEBSTER AND CORWIN.

The editor of the North American, in the city of Mexico, is, at the same time, the Mexican correspondent of the North American in Philadelphia. In the latter capacity he has been much complimented by our Federal neighbors, and on one or two well-known occasions, his opinions have been paraded as the eloquent condemnation of the war and the administration. Lieut. Tobey, who conducted the North American, in Mexico, is a most intrepid writer, and although he may, like others, sometimes lose his patience by the non-arrival of reinforcements and of supplies, yet there are few men in the American army, whose heart and whose pen are more thoroughly patriotic. This able editor—the favorite army correspondent of the domestic North American, in his paper, the North American in Mexico, thus alludes to the correspondence of those who have opposed, and continue to oppose the present war. He alludes to a compliment paid to Messrs. Clay, Corwin, Webster, &c., from the Monitor Republican, of the city of Mexico:

"Hear this Americans! Hear it ye whose relatives and friends have fallen in the desperate encounters of Mexico, while upholding the banners and the honor of your country! Hear it ye stricken widows and helpless orphans, whose support and guide have laid down their lives in defence of the rights guaranteed them and you by the blood of the patriots of the revolution! And hear it ye few remaining links between the glorious achievements of '76 and '47, though it freezes the feeble life-pulse and still your brave hearts beating forever! God of Heaven! Can men thus false to their country—thus flattered by the common enemy of the land of their birth—have the effrontery to retain their places in the Congress they have dishonored? We hope not. If they have any sense of shame left, let them desert the companionship of Americans and join our foes. Here they could but kill their countrymen—there they stab their country."

Yet, one of these men is to be the Whig candidate for President—is about to solicit the support of the fathers and brothers of those brave men who died for their country in Mexico!—men, whose memories he has stigmatized as robbers and land pirates! Surely he must have a "front of brass" to do an act like this. The arch fiend standing upon the verge of chaos, had a more enviable position, than Messrs. Clay, Corwin, Webster, & Co., the political Lucifers of the nineteenth century.

The following version of a capital old story we find put into the mouth of Simms, the South Carolina novelist:

In our vicinity (says Mr. Simms) there is a wild place called Pea Ridge, where a certain noisy politician resides, who is a wonderfully great man among his immediate neighbors. This individual recently made his first visit to the Empire city, where on the day of his arrival he was accosted by a friend from Charleston.

"Well, Tom," said the friend, "how do you like New York; it's a good deal of a town isn't it?"

"I don't like it at all, and I'm off by the first boat, though I didn't get here till this morning."

"But what do you mean; what's the matter?"

"Why, I have just spent more than four hours walking up and down this long road called Broadway, and have met five thousand people, but not a devil of the whole crowd has spoken to me. I haven't received a bow from a single man, and yet you know as well as I do, I'm hell on Pea Ridge." Darn this New York, I'll leave it for Pea Ridge, where my credentials is known."

THE KNOWING ONE CAUGHT.

A person was once complaining to a tavern-keeper in this State, where he had stopped to dine, that he had picked up a firkin of butter on the road, and had carried it on his back half a mile to overtake the team from which it had been lost, but the only reward that he received was a mere "Thank you!" Oh! said the tavern-keeper, I consider that of the same value as 25 cents, and if he had said, "Thank you very kindly," it would have been equal to 37 1-2 cents! The man was silent, and went into the dining room to satisfy his hunger. After he had eaten a plentiful meal he went to the landlord and said, "I thank you very kindly." "Hold!" said the landlord, who immediately saw the joke, and was withal a very good humored personage, "Hold, there's 12 1-2 cents your due."—[Phil. Bul.

He that can please nobody is not so much to be pitied as he that no body can please.

SOUND VISIBLE.

In this age of wonders what will the world think when we assure it that a method has been discovered and matured by which sound will be made visible to the human eye, its various forms and waves demonstrated to sight, and the power to discriminate between the tones of one musical instrument and another be as complete as to observe the action of water when disturbed by any material cause. The experiments, we believe, are likely to be ere long repeated before the Royal Society. The exhibition of effects on fine sand has probably led to this astonishing issue.—Lon. Lit. Gazette.

The giant strides of our city in almost every direction, is truly astonishing. Not long since Bachelor's Grove, near Rocky Branch, was considered quite out of the city; but this ceased soon to be the case, as the Mound Tavern, still farther up, was only viewed as "about the limits." Then Flora Garden was viewed as some distance from the city; but this is almost no longer the case as Wilson's Garden can scarcely lay claim to the remark, as is evidenced by College Farm Retreat, near five miles north of the Court House, now strongly contending that it is only applicable to it.—Saint Louis Union.

THE MAMMOTH OF THE WORLD.

1848. JOHN T. MARTIN. 1848. THE OLD ESTABLISHED CLOTHIER, No. 114 Main Street, St. Louis, Mo. AS for the approaching Spring of 1848, I have made the most extensive and unequalled arrangements of any other house in the United States, so as to be enabled to accommodate the hundreds of thousands that will throng my store for the Spring and Summer Fashions. Motto—Large Sales and Small Profits. have on the way and shall receive by the first of March,

300,000 Garments,

by far the largest and most complete stock of Ready Made Clothing ever manufactured by any one house. From the many advantages I possess, I am confident in asserting that my goods are manufactured at much lower prices than any other house, and I am determined to sell them at such low prices as to defy any and all competition.

My Spring stock has all been bought for cash and manufactured by myself in the city of New York, and having paid great attention to the cut and fit, will make my stock one of the most desirable ever offered in any city of the Union. I am confident that I can give you as good a fit as any tailor, and cut in the latest and most fashionable style.

MERCHANTS throughout the West wanting Clothing, at any time by ordering and enclosing the amount, will have it attended to strictly with every care and correctness, and forwarded by the first opportunity.

The great variety my stock will consist of this Spring, will be far superior to any other previous season and as regards price and quality will be at least 15 or 20 per cent, cheaper than ever before offered. The great amount of business I have been doing, (and hope by strict attention to continue to do,) will enable me to offer to my old customers and strangers visiting St. Louis, much greater inducements than any other house this side the Atlantic.

My desire is to increase my sales, and by doing so can afford to sell you at a very small advance upon the manufacturing price. Transient customers visiting the city and calling on me, will be convinced that my assortment is much larger and far cheaper than anything ever offered to a generous public.

Beware of those who tell you this is MARTIN'S but bear in mind that I have but one store, 'tis No. 114 Main street, a large No. 114 on the top of the house, and in front a portico with the name MARTIN in large gilt letters: I pledge myself to sell lower than any other house. JNO. T. MARTIN. St. Louis, Feb. 11, 1848.

Louisiana Livery Stable.

IN view of the inconveniences to which individuals and the public generally have been subjected, for the want of proper conveyances to, and from, our city, the subscribers have been encouraged to establish in Louisiana, at an immense outlay of "tail and treasure," a Livery Stable, well supplied with Horses, Buggies and Hacks. They flatter themselves by keeping constantly on hand, and well rubbed, horses of all gates and colors, suited both to the saddle and harness, that they will receive a generous support from community. Business men, and pleasuring men, as well as the travelling community, can at any time be supplied with single horses, buggies, or hacks, by calling at their stables, between Georgia and South Carolina streets.

It is also their design to run an accommodation hack to all the Bowling-Green courts, and neighborhood meetings, to which four or five passengers can be obtained. Their prices shall be as low as the lowest.
